DUGDALE NEARING END OF HIS ROPE

Northwest Cities Now Fully Aware of Fat Magnate's Duplicity.

TROUBLE OVER CIRCUIT

Both Tacoma and Spokane Threaten to Sever Relations With Seattle Baseball Combine—Reasons for Dissatisfaction.

BY W. J. PETRAIN.

In spite of numerous denials issued from the sanctum of "Cupid" Dugdale, the Pacific Northwestern League is experiencing the greatest of difficulty in arranging a circuit for 1908. That Seattle will be represented in the league is settled, but that is about the limit of definite decisions reached by the fans of the northern territory outside the city on Elliott Bay.

It is quite possible that Vancouver, B. C., will hold one of the franchises, for an "angel" from Waterville, Wash., has been prevailed upon by Daniel Edward Dugdale and his chief lieutenant, President Lucas, to engage in the baseball industry on a greater scale than it was conducted in the little Washington town. The reason for importing the Waterville man was that he seemed the only person willing to take a chance in the Canadian city, which does not permit Sunday baseball.

This gives Dugdale and Lucas but two towns wherein they are assured of support in the organization of a circuit. This statement is made advisedly, for information is at hand of the most reliable nature to the effect that the Northwestern League is going to have considerable difficulty in lining up Tacoma and Spokane. Without the former Aberdeen will be left out, and without the latter Butte is not to be considered.

This state of affairs is said to have been brought about through the misrepresentations of Dugdale and Lucas, both of whom, it is said, have assured the other Northwestern magnates that Portland would surely be in the circuit during the coming season. It was mainly for the purpose of lining up McCredie that W. H. Lucas visited this city a few weeks ago, but on his arrival he found the opposition so strong that he departed without having seen Judge McCredie personally.

Find Dugdale a Fraud.

When it became known that all possibility of Portland entering the fold had vanished, the magnates whose teams had lost money, immediately became disgusted and are now greatly opposed to the Seattle fat man. They are at last beginning to realize that Dug is the "grab-it-all kid," and so long as his team makes money is willing that the others should whistle over any deficit they may encounter at the season's end.

George Schreeder, president and owner of the Tacoma club, is quoted as saying: "I'll turn my ball park over to the Tacoma amateurs sooner than hook up with this outfit again." Schreeder wants Pacific Coast League baseball rating and all that goes with a Class A league. It is claimed that the Tacoma magnate's chief grievance is that his team drew splendidly at home, but lost all this advantage by reason of being compelled to play towns like Aberdeen and Vancouver, where the receipts were hardly large enough to cover hotel bills.

Though Schreeder will not admit it, it is said that the Tacoma Club lost $2000 on account of games at Butte, Vancouver and Aberdeen, whereas Dugdale had the schedule framed so that several series were transferred from Aberdeen and Vancouver to Seattle, and thereby the "Fat Man" was considerably the gainer.

Seattle was the only club in the league to make money, and in this may readily be seen the cause for the displeasure of the other magnates.

The Vancouver men who backed that team last year lost $4000, and as soon as it was definitely known to them that Portland would not be in the league in 1908, they hastened to get from under and threw the franchise back on the league, i. e. Dugdale and Lucas, and the "league" immediately sought an "angel," which they found in the person of the Waterville man.

Aberdeen May Lose Out.

Aberdeen lost $3000 during the season, and this loss would probably have been greater had not several series been transferred to Seattle. In spite of this the Aberdeen ball magnates are desirous of being represented again this season. If Tacoma draws out, their chances will be rendered exceedingly small.

Spokane has always entertained a desire to be in the Pacific Coast League, for the fans of that enterprising city readily realize the prestige it would give their city to be affiliated with a class A league and lined up with the largest cities on the Pacific Coast.

Another thing that is worrying the Dugdale-Lucas faction is the stand taken by Bellingham. This rapidly growing city is much desired by the Northwestern magnates for the purpose of switching Sunday games there from Vancouver, but Bellingham refuses to be represented and recently declined to entertain any proposition whatever from the Seattle "Fat Man." Bellingham applied for a franchise once upon a time, and instead of being welcomed by the Dugdale-Lucas combine, the application was rejected and Vancouver or Aberdeen substituted.

Bellingham thinks itself—though there are opinions to the contrary—to be as good a baseball town as either of the places shown preference, and therefore its fans are avowed enemies of Dug and Willie.

Dugdale has grown rich from baseball. He has hogged the franchise of the principal town in the Northwestern League. Seattle is a splendid baseball town, and so long as Dug continues to gather in the shekels, he cares not how the other towns come out. That is one of the reasons Seattle has never won a pennant. Dug is not out after pennants. He wants the coin and in the past he has succeeded in getting it.

Wants No Pennant.

"What's the use of spending good money on ball players in order to win a pennant?" says Dug. "The fans forget all about it the next year, and whether you win or not they'll come out and cough up their money just the same. I am in this game for the money, and don't you forget it."

And he gets it, while the Seattle fans tumble over themselves in order to hand him their quarters and halves, and go away acclaiming the efforts of Dugdale, no matter how rotten his players have conducted themselves.

The situation in the Northwestern League can be summed up as follows: Schreeder, with his Tacoma baseball park located conveniently, has at last come to a realization that he can set himself up as a dictator. Without Tacoma the league is robbed of strong support; one that is essential to its success, if success it can be called. The Tacoma magnate has become tired of spending his own money and barely breaking even on the season, while but a few miles away he sees the Seattle cherub expending hardly any money and waxing rich. Schreeder's stand, if he goes to the front as he threatens, will be backed by Spokane, and with these two mainstays of the league disgruntled, Dugdale and Lucas will have to come to their milk.

If they are forced into recognizing the demands of these towns, it is safe to bet that a Pacific Coast League, with Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and Portland in the North, and four California towns will be the circuit in the near future.

REMARKABLE WINTER TOU

FAMILY JOURNEYS FROM MASSACHUSETTS TO FLORIDA.

Left New England in November and Has Just Arrived at Jacksonville.

A big touring car glided up to a garage in Jacksonville, Fla., a few days ago, and four dust-begrimed and tired passengers alighted. The car was the property of John A. Miller, of Middleborough, Mass. Accompanied by his wife and two sons, he left his home in the far away New England State, November 7, headed southward for a journey to Ormond, Fla. When the car came to a halt in front of the garage it had successfully completed one of the longest trips that have yet been made in this country by automobiles. Leaving Middleborough on the morning of November 7, the party went to Worcester, thence to New Haven and down the sound to New York, where several days were spent. The car was then headed for Philadelphia; from Philadelphia to Baltimore and Washington. After a stay of several days in the Capital city they headed their machine for the Blue Ridge Mountains, and crossed at Snicker's Gap. Down into the beautiful Shenandoah Valley they sped, after a hazardous climb of a steep grade two miles long.

Then the car struck the old Virginia pike, and the gravel on the pike was so injurious to the tires that a pair of them were worn out. However, being prepared with several extra tires, the new ones were placed, and the journey was continued. Staunton was next reached and then Roanoke and Lynchburg, in the order named. The picturesque Natural Bridge was crossed in reaching Danville, and, after leaving that city, the machine was headed for Charlotte, N. C., where a delightful stay of four weeks was made. The car was then turned toward the direction of Atlanta and that city was reached after a pleasant ride. From Atlanta they went to Macon. They report the road between these two cities as being extremely rough and out of repair, causing much annoyance and delay. From the central city of Georgia they went to Waycross in remarkable fast time.

The worst experience of the Millers' journey was yet to take place, for hardly had they attempted to cross the edge of the big Okefinokee swamp before the car was buried to its floor in mud and slimy water. They had to remain in this plight for several hours before assistance came and the car finally was pulled out on to dry land only after the two sons had discarded clothing and had pulled and tugged for dear life for an hour or more. "It was the worst experience we had on the entire trip," said Mr. J. Alden Miller, "and although it was quite a novel one I would regret to have to pass through a similar experience again. Why, my brother and myself looked more like negroes than white people when we emerged from that mud and there was no getting the sticky soil off unless you scraped it off. However, I don't want to parade out worst experience, so will say that the most exquisite sight I ever beheld was when we crossed over the Blue Ridge Mountains into the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia. Over on one side we left a furious storm, wind, rain and the thunderous peals of a highly charged electrical atmosphere; as we emerged from the tops of those mountains into the Shenandosh we found ourselves ensconced in a glorious sunshine, with nature at its best. It was a great experience and we all thoroughly enjoyed it."

The Miller family will remain in Jacksonville for several days, after which they will proceed in the car to Ormond, their destination. They have traveled thus far 2500 miles.

Nine Months for Gun Play.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—R. E. Ragland, president of the Citizens' State Bank, which recently suspended, was today sentenced by Police Judge Conlan to six months' imprisonment for exhibiting a revolver in a "rude and threatening manner" to J. Pomansky, a depositor in the bank, who sought to recover his money. An additional sentence of three months' imprisonment was imposed on the banker for carrying a concealed weapon. Ragland's attorneys gave notice of an appeal.

ENGLISH BULLDOG GROWS IN FAVOR

Wealthy New York Exhibitors Raising High-Class Canines for the Coming Show.

ENGLAND IS OUTSTRIPPED

Breeding Develops Distinct Type. Animals Being Thick-Set, Low-Swung, Short-Faced and Very Smooth-Coated.

There is probably no breed of dogs that has made more progress in America than the English bulldog; the prime reason for this has been the work of the Bulldog Club of America, says the New York World. Great credit must be given the gentlemen who compose this club, as the following objects of the club mean a lot to the dogs.

Its objects are: To encourage the propogation of thoroughbred bulldogs, especially in the United States; to promulgate a "standard" to secure uniformity of type for excellence in the breed and for guidance of breeders and bench show judges; to stimulate interest in public exhibitions and to safeguard the interests of breeders and exhibitors of bulldogs, and to further the just claim of the bulldog to greater public favor.

The members of the club have lived up to these resolutions to such a degree that our American bred dogs compare very favorably with the imported ones. The standard for the old English bulldog as adopted by the club is a good one.

The perfect bulldog must be of medium size and smooth coat, with heavy, thick-set, low-swung body, massive, short-faced head, wide shoulders and sturdy limbs.

The general appearance and attitude should suggest great stability, vigor and strength. The disposition should be equable and kind, resolute, and courageous (not vicious or aggressive), and the demeanor should be pacific and dignified.

These attributes should be evidenced by the expression and behavior. An entirely wrong impression has been created regarding the disposition of the bulldog. It is not a vicious animal, and never was. It is one of the most affectionate companions there is in dogdom.

Some of the Members.

The following are members and officers of the club, with some of their dogs:

The president is Richard Croker, Jr., whose kennels at Port Chester, N. Y., contain some of the best of the American product that has yet been shown. At the head of the kennel is Persimmons. The dog has proven to be a great sire. It is now 12 years old but is still active.

In the last three years Mr. Croker has shown two brindles, Broadway and Black Maria, and two brindles and whites, Buccaneer and Banshee. These four dogs are about the best quad that has yet been produced in America. Each season Mr. Croker brings out a few "crackerjacks." This year his youngsters promise to add even greater honor to the kennels.

The vice-president is John W. Mathews. While not the owner of many dogs, Mr. Mathews is often selected as a judge.

W. N. Le Cato is treasurer. His kennels are at Orange, N. J. Several high-class youngsters have been produced there.

Robert S. McCreery has been secretary for years. Mrs. McCreery always has as a pet and companion a high-class bulldog.

W. C. Codman and his sons have for years been active members. Some of our best bulldogs have been shown in their name. H. C. Beadleston has been judge for the club a number of times. Mr. Beadleston showed one of the best litters of puppies of the season at the club show last Fall.

New Dogs to Be Shown.

Thomas Lawson's Dreamwold kennels, the most elaborate in America, have not been represented during the last season, owing to a death in the family. This year some of the old favorites and many new ones will be seen. In the brindle female Champion La Roche, and the cream-colored dog Champion Fashion, Mr. Lawson has two of the best bulldogs of the day. Andy Albright, Jr., of Eatontown, N. J., has been considered one of the club's best judges. His services are always in demand, which speaks for his ability.

John F. Collins, of Brooklyn, has been selected this year to judge bulldogs at the New York dog show. Mr. Collins has long been a breeder, and as chairman of the bench show committee of the Bulldog Club, has managed the two successful specialty shows. He has a large kennel and his dogs are always on exhibition at the leading shows. His present favorites are Moston Colonel, Kilburn King and Master Coronation. F. F. Colte, the owner and breeder of Pewter Mug, one of the best brindle and white American bred dogs, has taken great interest in the club. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harding Davis have always been active in the club affairs.

Mrs. George J. Gould has been exhibiting a few good bulldogs. M. Robert Guggenheim judged the last specialty show, and expects to have a large kennel in the near future. Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Morse have been importing some good specimens recently, so that their exhibits will soon be seen again at the shows.

YALE MEN TO AID

Old New Haven Stars Will Help Forbes Coach Oregon.

VARSITY LOSES ARNSPIGER

Crack Tackle Ineligible Under the Four-Year Ruling Adopted at the Whitman Conference — High Schools Promise Good Men.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Or., Feb. 15.—(Special.)—Students of the university and local admirers of the Oregon team are highly pleased over the selection of Robert W. Forbes, the great Yale end, as head coach for next season. With the possible exception of Dick Smith, the newly elected coach comes to the Northwest with a greater football record than any other man who has taught the game in this section. It is known for a certainty that Forbes was considered seriously as head coach at New Haven last season, but that he could not afford to accept the position. Yale pays nothing more than expenses to her coaches, so the positions usually go to young men of more than ordinary means who can spare time for the work.

Members of the Oregon team and other Members of the Oregon team and others who met Forbes when he was in Eugene a few weeks ago were very favorably impressed with him and his selection meets with general approval.

Oregon men who have made a study of Eastern football conditions have concluded that Yale's system is superior to the style of play in vogue at other Eastern colleges and there is a strong likelihood that Oregon will hereafter look to Yale for her coaches.

A number of former New Haven stars who reside in the Northwest and in California have volunteered to assist Forbes during the last few weeks of the season. Conspicuous among these is Foster H. Rockwell, All-America quarterback for two seasons and head coach of the Elis during the year 1906. Yale men generally will give Forbes material assistance during the season, for the Yale system will be on trial against the football systems taught by other Northwest coaches.

It is certain that the athletic council will select an assistant coach from the ranks of the alumni. The names of several former gridiron stars have been mentioned for this position.

Although eight months will intervene before the opening of the football season, Oregon's schedule is practically arranged. There will be a number of early-season campus games, including a match with Whitworth College, of Tacoma. Oregon will meet Idaho, at Moscow, on October 31, and Washington, in Eugene, two weeks later. The college season will close with the Oregon-O. A. C. game in Portland, on November 21. The big game with the Multnomah Club will be played on Thanksgiving day.

For the first time since the year 1900, Oregon will put a freshman team in the field. Games will be arranged with a number of the high school elevens and possibly with the O. A. C. freshmen.

Olen Arnspiger, '09, the all-Northwest tackle of last season, will not be eligible to membership on this year's team. The recent Walla Walla conference adopted the four-year rule and made it retroactive. Arnspeiger, who has already played four years, will not be permitted to compete in the conference games. The loss of Arnspiger will be a serious one to the varsity, but the general results of the Walla Walla conference are highly satisfactory to Oregon students and there is no disposition to complain because of temporary hardships.

Besides Arnspiger, Oregon will lose ex-Captain Moores, Quarterback Kuykendall and possibly Halfback Zacharias. Aside from Arnspiger, no members of the team will be ineligible because of the four-year rule.

Many football men from the different Oregon high schools will enter the University in September and a number of the second team men of last season will make a lively bid for places on the varsity.

DIAMOND SLANG PUZZLES GUNN

English Cricketer Cawn't Comprehend Baseball Talk.

Archie Gunn, who, besides being an artist of international fame, is a famous cricketer, was commenting on the relative merits of cricket and baseball.

"When a batsman knocks out a long fly in our cricket matches," said Archie, "and the fielder runs after it, misjudges it and finally doesn't get near it, our British fans clap their hands and cry:

"'Well tried, old chap! Blooming well tried!'

"When a fielder in a baseball game almost breaks his neck to get under a fly that isn't within half a mile of him, and eventually gets near enough to have it break one of his fingers, but he can't hold it—how could he, under the circumstances—your rooters yell and scream:

"'Kill the bum! He's a piece of cheese! He couldn't pick an apple out of a barrel!'

"It's astonishing, isn't it? I can't for the life of me see what in the world cheese has to do with it. And let me tell you, it's a very different matter to catch a long fly and to pick an apple out of a barrel. I know, for I've done both."

The one bet that Archie has overlooked is that the attitude of the American fan toward his National game is the reason for the difference between baseball and cricket.

In the lexicon of the baseball fielder there is no such thing as "Well tried." It's "Get there, and get there, sure." If by any chance a cricketer were to catch a fly ball an aroused and grateful British public would pension the guy for life.

Lajoie Blames Spit Ball for the Low Batting Averages

WHILE there is much talk this Winter to the effect that several of the National and American League pitchers intend to cut the spit ball out of their repertoire, Napoleon Lajoie comes to the front and claims that to the spitter is due the falling off the batting, particularly in regard to long hits.

Larry was asked recently why he did not make as many home runs as formerly.

"I guess the spit ball and the foul strike rule are to blame," he answered. "Nowadays you have to pay more attention to hitting the ball and placing it in fair territory than to putting all your weight into the swing. If you swing your head off on a 'spit' ball, you would look mighty cheap. Then, again, you have got to try to keep from hitting the ball foul. Foul strikes hurt, you know. Those may not be the reasons, but that is how I figure it out. It may be, however, that the pitchers are getting better and the outfielders play deeper."

Larry never hit the ball any harder than he did in 1901, when he made 48 doubles, 13 triples and 13 home runs. In 1893 he achieved another great record—that of making 40 doubles, 43 triples and seven home runs. He had 50 two-sackers to his credit in 1904, but fell way off in triples and homers, making 14 of the former and but five of the latter.

He was out of the game a large portion of the season of 1905 and made only 13 doubles, two triples and two homers. He failed to get a homer in 1906, and his only two last year were of the freak nature. He got a fine lot of doubles in 1906, 49, but secured only 32 last season, with six triples thrown in.

Bill Bradley, of Cleveland, was also celebrated as a home hitter a few years ago. He has the credit for batting the longest hit ever made at American League Park. In 1902, during the Napoleons' first series in Philadelphia, he made four homers in four days. Bradley made 11 all told that season and six each in the next two seasons. Then he began to lose the four-sacker habit, and in the last three years he has made but two, both of them being hit in 1906.

He also used to make many a two-bagger, his record being 28 in 1901, 29 in 1902, 25 in 1903, 31 in 1904 and 34 in 1905. Bill knows why it is that he doesn't make so many doubles. The outfielders watch him more closely and get the ball to second in a hurry whenever Bill hits it out.

"They tell me that I use more of an arm motion in batting than I used to," said Bradley recently. "A few years ago I was in the habit of putting all my weight and swinging my shoulders with all my might when I met the ball. The boys say that I have changed my style now. Why? I don't know. I did not know that I had changed until they called my attention to it."

BEWARE

Don't Neglect Your Ailment

My Direct-Method Treatment Will Restore You to the Vigor and Strength of Perfect Manhood.

It will stop all unnatural wastes, revitalize your nervous system, put VIM into your every movement—in short, it will make a COMPLETE MAN of you and imbue you with the buoyancy that belongs to perfect health.

While you are weak and debilitated you are unnecessarily morose and depressed, lacking in ambition, worthless to yourself and to others. You feel that life is a failure; that there is nothing worth living for. Every thought is poisoned with a morbid sense of weariness. While in this condition you are unfit for either business or pleasure. You eat without relish. You sleep fitfully, if at all and you awaken in the morning with a feeling of dissatisfaction, tired and listless. You are nervous and restless, feverish at times, your head aches and your eyes are hot and smart frequently. Struggling under the burden of disease, your chief desire is to be alone, to seclude yourself from both friends and strangers, and to hide yourself from the world completely.

Weakness---Its Cause and Cure

Over twenty-five years ago I discovered that WEAKNESS in man was due to prostatic or pelvic inflammation. I also discovered that there was no treatment known to medical practitioners that would permanently cure this disease. I set to work thereupon to formulate a treatment that would be effective. My present Direct-Method treatment was the result of my efforts. During all those years this method has never failed to cure any case that I accepted for treatment.

By this I do not mean to say that there are no incurable cases. I DO mean to say, however, that no disease peculiar to men is incurable, except in the last extremity of it. It is not the DISEASE that is incurable, but the CONDITION to which the disease has advanced. I have demonstrated in hundreds of cases that had been pronounced incurable by other doctors and specialists that my Special Treatment would perform a complete cure.

Men, Beware!

The incurable cases that come under my observation have been those of men who have neglected to seek treatment in time, or have tried to cure themselves with electric belts, patent nostrums, a drug store treatment, or some other worthless means. Such treatments are far worse than none at all. They nearly invariably produce complications that are as hard to cure as the original disease. Sometimes they appear to benefit for a time, but as sure as Fate their after effects will prove harmful—many times fatal. BEWARE OF THEM. They cannot cure you, no matter how eloquently they are advertised. Seek my scientific and sure Direct-Method Treatment, that will not fail to cure you. Do not delay until your case has advanced into the incurable state.

I Offer You Certain Cure

Don't fail to see me, therefore, even though you have been told that you were beyond medical aid. By other methods your case would doubtless be hopeless. By my treatment, however, you would probably be comparatively easy to cure. That is the difference between my treatment and other methods. My reputation and the invaluable and important discoveries I have made in medical practice have placed me in the front rank in the medical field in Western America.

My Fee for a Cure That Will Stay Cured in Only $10 In Any Simple Case

I Will Guarantee a Cure, and You Need Not Pay Until You Are Well

Why My Treatment Cures

There are several reasons why my treatment never fails to cure Weakness in men. The method I use is direct and positive; the medicine being applied locally. Its effects, so administered, are almost immediate, since it is at once absorbed by the tissues, which are thus stimulated to healthy action, throwing off the poisoned secretions, overcoming inflammation and congestion and clearing the blood vessels and canilliaries so that they can supply nutrition to the affected region.

Weakness is usually due to early dissipation, but often is the result of an improperly treated contracted disorder. Occasionally it is caused by a strain; or it may have its origin in some inherent defect or abnormal condition. Whatever its origin, its consequences are just as direful and sure. Do not delay its treatment if you value your health and happiness. If neglected, it will certainly destroy you.

Come to my offices today or at the earliest possible moment. It will cost you nothing to talk the matter over with me. I will give you expert advice.

I confine my practice to NERVOUS WEAKNESS, VARICOCELE, STRICTURE, CONTRACTED DISORDERS, CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON, BLADDER AND KIDNEY DISORDERS.

CONSULTATION FREE—MY HONEST AND CANDID ADVICE COSTS YOU NOTHING. I cheerfully give you the very best opinion, guided by years of successful practice. Men out of town, in trouble, write if you cannot call, as many cases yield readily to proper home treatment and cure.
