Capt. Roald Amundsen the great Arctic explorer will arrive in Portland Saturday March

The Washington papers lately contained long accounts of the annual banquet of the National deegraphic Society, which, took place in the large ballroom of the New Williard Hotel.

Captain Roald Amundsen was the guest of honor and the whole function took upon itself the character of a grand personal ovation for the intreald Norwegian explorer such as has seldom in the Capital upon a foreign scientist.

The Vice-Prezident of the United States, Mr. Fairbanks, on behalf of the society handed Captain Amundsen their large gold medal, which had been specially engraved with a suitable design. This medal weighs $250.00 worth of gold and on one side has the Arctic map with a beautiful emerald set at the point of the North magnetic pole. In this way the society wished to emphasize the credit it gives to Amundsen for his work in locating the pole.

This medal is the highest scientific distinction that can tail to a discoverer in the United States for the society is the biggest in the world, counting more than 20,000 members and the medal has only been given to one man before Amundsen, as it was given last year to Commander Peary.

Amongst the 150 guests could be seen all the members of the diplomatic corps, the highest officers in the Army and Navy and all the noted adentities of Washington.

When presenting the medal Mr. Fair, banks said to Captain Amundsen. "You,

When presenting the medal Mr. Fairbanks said to Captain Amundsen: "You, Captain, have helped the scientific world to gain a certainty of knowledge about the North Magnetic Pole where formerly there only existed a well-founded theory. During the last 400 years very many vain attempts have been made to navigate the Northwest passage and many lives as well as untold sums of money have been lost in all these futtle expeditions. Many renowned names are tied to the history of the Northwest passage, but to you and to you alone belongs the honor of having nchieved the goal for which all the other courageous heroes fought but failed.

All through the evening the mere montion of Amundsen's name was the signal for immense ovations from all the guests.

In the past few years Mrs. Cora B. Miller has spent $125,000.00 in giving medical freatment to afflicted women.

Sometime ago we announced in the columns of this paper that she would send free treatment to every woman who suffered from female diseases or plies.

More than a million women have accepted this generous offer, and as Mrs. Miller is still receiving requests from thousands of women from all parts of the world, who have not yet used the remedy, she has decided to continue the offer for awhile longer, at lesst.

This is the simple, mild and harmless preparation that has cured so many women in the privacy of their own homes after doctors and other remedies failed.

Lakoff made use of his sidearm bail that was effective in pinches. After the battle Manager McCredle was well pleased with both youngsters. The catcher, Whalen, also got his first real work-out. The only scoring in the game was done n the second and third innings. Bassey scored in the second, and was safe on Martinke's boo. Danzig singled and he and Bassey worked a double steal. Mc-Credle bunted and while he was being thrown out Bassey scored. Walsh's single to left scored Danzig. Cooney

This was all of the scoring. Both pitchers settled down. Harmon had the best of the pitching honors. He struck out nine men and issued only one pass. Lakoff fanned three and issued three honors.
