Indorses the Initiative.

Now, what I object most to Pulton's re-election is that is gives comfort, power and public office appointment to the machine men who have held Oregon in their grasp for many years until recently. Now I must stop as it is getting late. I have taken more of rour time than was necessary for telling less than I should have told.

Not Aspirant for Office.

The association by Heney of Fulton's name with Calhoun and Ruef provoked pplause and the speaker followed by harging that Fulton had sent repre charging that Fusion and sent repre-sentatives to San Francisco to investi-gate his (Heney's) record in the hope of defeating him in his exposition of the Oregon Senator. Mr. Heney ex-plained in refutation of Fulton's charge plained in retutation of Futions charge that Hency was an aspirant for ap-pointment as Assistant United States Attorney for Oregon, that he had come to this state only at the urgent re-quest of United States Attorney-Genguest of Chited States Attorney-cea-eral Knox, now Senator from Pennsyl-vania, and only for the purpose of con-ducting the trial of the indictment against McKinley, Puter, Ware et al., which was expected to require about

"When I reached Oregon in October, 1805," said Heney, "I found a gars of as bad criminals as ever got control of any state in the Union at any time in its history."

In its history."

The speaker than referred to the united action of Senators Fulten and Mitchell, who had forwarded to Washington a protest against his appointment as Special Assistant to Attorney-General Knox for the purpose of prose-cuting the Oregon land-fraud cases. The reason for this was that they did "The reason for this was that they did not want me to come to Oregon or any other mass who would investigate the facts," asserted Heney, "for they knew that their friends would be involved. My feeling in the matter was altogether impersonal and there was no mailee on my part, but as a citizen of the United States I saw that my country's laws were being violated by menholding high offices of public trust and that the Government was being undermined."

The history of the Oregon land-fraud The history of the Oregon land-fraud prosecutions was then reviewed briefly, including the deception of Hency by Hall and the latter's alleged agreement with Mitchell and Fulton by which he was to protect their friends from prosecution for complicity in the land steals. Referring to Fulton's denial that he had ever entered into an agreement of any kind to support Hall for reappointment, Hency cited the fact that Hermann had testified before the grand jury that the entire delesefore the grand jury that the entire dele-gation in September, 1904, voted unani-nously to recommend Hall. Hency said that he did not regard his source of in-formation the best of authority, but still did not think the witness would perjure mony of Puter, declared Heney, in the land cases was stamped with the seal of truth and showed that Mays, although a leading atterney of the City of Portland, was at the very time interested in all sorts of frauds against the Government. "And his law partner, C. H. Carey, was someduled for United States Judge as some as there was a vacancy. But later on, when the time came to appoint a United States Judge, Fution's candidate was not appointed, but on my recommendation, Judge C. E. Wolverton, at that time the Chief Justice of your state, was named by President Roosevelt."

Various chapters of the land-fraud trials were recited, including reference to Hall's alleged protection of Sorensen, one of the principal illegal operators, who was at the time in Wisconsin, aithough wanted here for trial. "It was then," said Heney, "that I discovered that Hall was deceiving me, and I decided to remain in Oregon and personally look after these land-fraud prosecutions. "Well, if he don't," followed Heney, "I'll teach him there is such a thing as punishment after death," and the prosecutor then teld the story about the man that beat the dead dog.

Turns to "Hold-Up" Session. Turns to "Hold-Up" Session.

The "hold-up" session of the 1897 Legislative Assembly was next discussed, liency renewing his charge that Fulton was in attendance as Mitchell's lieutenant and custodian of the sack. As to the afindavit by Fowell discrediting Representative Smith's affidavit that he had received $1500 from Fulton as Mitchell's agent, Hency intimated that such declarations could be obtained in many cases with the use of a little money. As further evidence that bribery and corruption were practiced at the 1897 session, Mr. Hency produced a letter that was written February 4, last, by a former resident of Salem. He explained that he was not at liberty to disclose the name of the writer, having not been able to secure that permission since receiving the communication. Continuing, he said:

dated February 4, 1908, and is as follows (reads letter):

"Accept my thanks for your courageous and timely speech detailing the crocketiness of our Senator Folton. It has not enlightened me as to his true character, but will add great weight to what I have been telling the Oregon people from time to time. We lived in Salem at the time of the best representative it can eccure. "Accept my thanks for your couragedus and timely speech detailing the errokeedness of our Senator Folion. It has not enlightened use as to his true character, but it will aid great weight to what I have been telling the Oregon people from time to time. We lived in Salven at the time of the hold-up Legislature and several of the quembers boarded with us. There was a Populist from Jackson. County named However and he was a very verdant spectrum of lawmaker. He had a conference with Mitchell and Mitchell's attorney one night, and overshody understood that that was the hold-up Legislature and several of the unumbers bounded with us. There was a Populisi from Jackson County named However and he was a very verdant specimen of lawmaker. He had a conference with Mitchell and Mitchell's attorney one night, and everybody understood that that was Palton. And the next day he showed up $5000 in currency and stated that he had been paid that for his vote, to come in and vote for Mitchell.

Returned Bribe of $3500. Returned Bribe of $3500.

"Now, he went back to Jackson County to show the raise to his wife, and on his seturn commenced talking about it, so that his Populist brethren knew that he had been tampered with, and a Mr. Williams, of Jackson County, was sent for to talk him tack into line. I had several talks with Williams and found him a very calm and diplomatic gentleman, who had no difficulty in working from Howser all about the bargain and in convincing him that he could not comply with his promise and continue to live in Jackson. It was at that time that smith had refused to return the money be had received. But Howser was on Senator Fulion for a few minutes, Mr. Hensy charged that corruption and bribery have no place in a representative form of government and that when those elements enter into its administration if immediately becomes a debauched and tyrannical system of government. On this premise he took up the discussion of machine politics and asserted that Fulion was only in favor of the direct primary for the reason that he could not keep was only in favor of the direct primary for the reason that he could not keep away from it. Referring to the men who are active in the support of Fulton at this time. Mr. Hency enumerated the names of Jack Matthews, Whitney L. Boise, T. B. Wilcox and W. D. Wheelright and called attention to the fact that Matthews and Boise especially were machine men of the old school. In speaking of what was meant by corrupt conditions in poli-tics, he used this language:

Refers to Old System.

You people of Portland ought to know what this sort of thing means. It means the kind of government you had when I first came up here; when Grant Broa, were running their big sailon down here in the tenderion and Jack Matthews was your political boss. (Applause). Yes and who is behind Fulton in this fight; Jack Matthews. Is fer for or against Pulton for United States Senator? Don't you know? I will tell you—he is for him, tooth and nail. Whe else is for him? Whitney Bolso—in a minute! Who else is for him? Whitney Bolso—in a minute! Who else is for him? Och and hall, who else is for him? Oth as hig merchant, alle same likes Chinaman.—Mr. Wilcox My friend Wheelwright is for him; he is a Democrat.

I should think Fulton would be suspicious. I have been called a Democrat, called myself one, have been one. De you want to call myself a Republican and I am ashamed to call myself a Bemocrat. And I am ashamed to call myself a Bemocrat. And I am ashamed to call myself by any mane that brands me as belonging to something that has no existence. I am a Rooseveltian in principle. Refers to Old System.

Digressing still further from a direct at-tack on Fulton, the graft prosecutor criticised the system which has permitted tark on Forton, the grant proceeding criticised the system which has permitted a few wealthy men in the country to acquire and control all of the industries, including the waterpower and oil wells. On this subject, he said in part:

Some of these men have all the land and others all the oil and others all of something else. They have the grain of the country, too. Mr. Wilcox, a most estimable man, and I have nothing against him personally, is getting the benefit of the laws which enable certain men to set control over a certain industry—which ought never to be allowed in any country. Those men who farm and take chances upon the weather being right to produce their crops are entitled to all the profits that are in a good year, but they do not get it, they do not get it. And, moreover, they won't get it under the present system.

system. Mr. Wilcox, naturally, wains to see the system perpetuated, and so does Mr. Wheelright. They would even go so far as to throw the gates down and permit the Chinese and the Japanese to come into this country ad libitum. You know you cannot afford to have that done, but these men who are accumulating this means as a market. lating this money are a menace to the Work for T. Cader Powell.

Returning to Fulton, Hency submitted documentary proof of the embenzlement of about $5000 from Multnomah County by T. Cader Powell, who is now United States Marshal in Alaska, having been appointed on the recommendation of Fulton. He charged that Fulton had worked for Powell's appointment, having a full knowledge of his defalcation in this county.

Whitney L. Bolse, another supporter of Fulton, came in for some mention, Hency referring to the election in June, 1904, when it was reported that while Bolse was chairman of the Republican county central committee a scheme had been formed for the wholesale voting of intregistered voters in the North Returning to Fulton, Heney sub-

"Where did Fulton get the last 11 votes that were necessary for his election to the United States Senate in the 1993 assion?" Inquired another member of the audience.

"Well," replied Heney, "W. W. Banks was one of them and he was afterwards appointed Assistant United States Attorney, Another was Willard N. Jones, who at that time had a steal on in timber lands in the Siletz country. He had induced a number of old soldiers to file on the lands fraudulently many of them never having visited the claims on which they filed. And from the time that Jones was indicted by a Federal grand jury for land frauds, Fulton was doing his best to get the Ceneral Land office to issue patents to the very lands for the theft of which Jones was indicted. And mind you, Fulton was doing this very thing in face of the fact that complaints of the fraudulent entries had been on file in Washington for two years and had been called to the attention of Fulton personally."

the writer, having not been able to secure that permission since receiving the communication. Continuing, he said:

I want to refresh Senator Fulton's memory. I am guite sure this gentleman will permit the use of his name. It is methods. "That sort of thing don't go In concluding, Mr. Heney repeated that
