MISS ABOTT IS FAMOUS AS SOPRANO

American Singer From Metropolitan Opera-House Appears in Concert Recital Tomorrow.

THE charming American coloratura soprano, Miss Bessie Abott, from the Metropolitan Opera House, New York City, will be heard in a grand concert recital at the Heilig Theater, Fourteenth and Washington streets, tomorrow (Monday) evening, May 11, at 8:30 o'clock. This celebrated singer will be assisted by the brilliant pianiste, Edith Moxom Gray, recently heard in this city with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra at the annual Spring musical festival, also the noted English 'cellist, Hans Dressel. This excellent combination of artists will give Portland music-lovers one of the most delightful and artistic concerts ever given in this city.

"Memory cannot recall a finer concert than that given by Bessie Abott," says the Omaha Excelsior. "Miss Abott is in her prime. She has a genuinely beautiful voice, one that can be characterized as purely American, which Europeans now concede to be the finest in the world. It is exquisitely clear and sweet. Her training has been of the very best and small wonder that she has captured Paris and New York by her grand opera roles. She is the essence of refinement and grace. Her conceptions are artistic in every detail. Vocally, nothing could be more perfect than her singing of the mad scene from 'Lucia' and the enthusiasm following it was so great that two encores were added. The 'Queen of the Night' aria from Mozart's 'Magic Flute' was given with the same exquisite finish and luscious quality of voice as the preceding songs. Her high tones possess a quality of surpassing loveliness, displayed very effectively in her encore number. Her English songs were a strong rival to her operatic selections for favor with the audience."

Following is the programme to be given:

Piano solo, "Novelette".....Schuman
Edith Moxom Gray
Mad scene from "Lucia".....Donizetti
Miss Bessie Abott.
Cello solo, Sonata in A.....Borcherini

OLDEST DOLL IN WORLD

Made in Egypt 2500 Years Ago and Exhibited in London.

LONDON, May 2.—Dolls of all nations and all ages were "at home" at the London Day Training College. They had been drawn together for the toy exhibition of the Sociological Society, which Lady Margaret Campbell is conducting.

Toys, even more than spearheads, may be regarded as characteristic of racial life, explain the sociologists, and in toy science dolls play a very important part. Huge charts on the walls of the college, compiled from scientific observations, indicate the bearing of dolls upon the life of the child. From the age of 1 to 8 interest in dolls steadily increases. Eight is the high-water mark, and from then till the age of 14 interest declines.

The doyen of all the dolls at the exhibition under notice is of Egyptian origin, and came from the collection of Edward Lovett. It was made 500 years before the Christian era and is believed to be the oldest doll in the world. An iron doll from the Congo, a flint doll from Suffolk, dancing dolls from Burma and the Punjab, a brown-faced doll dressed in blue and white from Jamaica, a doll from Khartoum made out of the forked branch of a tree, an Armenian doll with a little bead chain to keep off the evil eye, and a Rhodesian doll, tolletted in blue beads, are some of the many curiosities.

Among the freaks of doll-land may be mentioned a South African doll made out of a gourd, a West African doll made from a lizard's skin, and a ghost doll from Gironde, France. An 1860 doll in white muslin and quaint poke bonnet is one of the treasures of the Maria Grey Training College. From another educational institution, the Goldsmith College, came a group of battered dolls with a little note of explanation. They have been childhood's treasures for three generations.

A doll's house de luxe—with the telephone in the dining-room and real jam in the pantry—is one of the treasures of the exhibition.

HE IS TIRED OF PARTY

Mr. Buckman Longs for a New Political Shibboleth.

ASHLAND, Or., May 8.—(To the Editor.)—A great many newspapers today are largely prating about the people abandoning party principles, as if there were such things as well-defined party principles to be found at the present time.

The State of Oregon at her primaries gave an overwhelming Republican majority, yet some Republican newspapers are in a fever of excitement for fear that the vote for Senator will be Democratic. There must be something wrong with party principles, or they must have little meaning to the great mass of the people, or the vote would not fluctuate to such an extent.

The people of the state must not have felt that they suffered any great loss from the fact of having had a Democratic Governor, or they would not have returned him as they did two years ago. The fact is, the people are beginning to look in vain for anything like a well-defined party principle, further than to get into office and make all they can out of it. They are beginning to make this discovery that so far as the principles of either Democrat or Republican parties are concerned all the part they have to take is to vote to ratify principles that have been made to order for the private interests of large capitalists to exploit them to a finish. The people see that so far as any move either party has ever made that in any way looked to their interests, it was sprung by those outside of the party and forced before them so they had to consider it. So that any hope of getting anything different from what we now have must be looked after from the outside.

Anyone who is perfectly satisfied with what we have at present can very consistently vote for the old parties, but the one who is in the least dissatisfied, and is hoping to bring about some change, will have to get outside of either of the old parties to make his work in any way effective, as the policies which govern and control the party are fashioned and shaped beyond his reach. He has to break ranks, and it is then he must be prepared for a battle royal, as he will find heavy odds against him, let his cause be ever so righteous.

Whether Oregon is represented in the Senate when Senator Fulton's time is out by a Republican or Democrat, the difference can only be figured out in this manner: The Republican would be likely to have the most influence, if he could get his hands deeper into Uncle Sam's pocket in the interests of the State of Oregon. Further than that, party principles can the most safely be summed up by saying that what one party advocates the other party is very likely to be against.
