Governor's Daughter to Be Queen of Rose Festival

Miss Carrie Lee Chamberlain Chosen for High Honor and Will Be Known as Queen Flora.

MISS Carrie Lee Chamberlain, the charming young daughter of Governor George E. Chamberlain, has been selected for the high honor of Queen of the Second Annual Portland Rose Festival, and will be known in all the public functions in which she is to appear as Queen Flora. She is shown in the accompanying group, arrayed in her royal robes and surrounded by three of her four maids of honor, who will be her royal entourage during the coming week of gaiety. Miss Chamberlain was chosen Queen for the reason that as the daughter of the Chief Executive of Oregon, her appearance will lend distinction and prestige to the events of the Festival.

The Queen's maids of honor, whom she selected from her coterie of schoolgirl companions, are as follows: Miss Nell Franzen, 331 Hassalo street; Miss Freda Kirkland, 446 East Seventeenth street North; Miss Jeannette Scott, 648 Hancock street, and Miss Mildred Morgan, 689 East Ankeny street. The three former are shown with the Queen. Miss Morgan was unable to appear with her associates when they sat for their photographs.

Queen Flora will review all the day and night parades of the week from the grandstand at the Pennoyer block, and she will ride on her royal float in the decorated horse and carriage parade on Thursday morning, following which there will be a battle of roses at the reviewing stand as her float passes. During the parade the maids of honor will strew flowers along the route.

Queen Flora will lead the grand march, with Rex Oregonus, King of the Festival, at the Grand Ball, Friday night, at the Armory.

Meaning of the "Spirit of the Golden West" Parade

Glittering Pageant Tuesday Night to Be One of Features of Celebration, Typifying Fifty Years' Development of Country.

WITH its combination of historic interest, artistic beauty, and brilliant spectacular effect, the "Spirit of the Golden West" parade, Tuesday night, which will open the series of pageants of festival week, will surpass, the Rose Festival committee declares, anything of its kind ever attempted on the Pacific Coast. The finishing touches are now being added to the big floats for this display, out at the fairgrounds, where the float builders and decorators are working busily behind closed doors, and carefully hiding from the eyes of the curious their interesting products and their mysterious labors. Downtown costumers, too, are mysterious and as busy as bees, getting ready the hundreds of picturesque costumes to be worn by the present-day boys and girls and men and women who will impersonate the famous historic characters of half a century ago.

The "Spirit of the Golden West" idea has been carried out in detail, and with artistic care, in all the various floats which will compose this, one of the most impressive and most interesting of the week's brilliant pageants: From beginning to end, this parade will be redolent of that spirit of dauntless courage and progressiveness which has marked the development of the richly endowed West, from the days of the brave and hardy pioneers, fighting hostile Indians and wrestling mightily with the primeval forests, up to the present day of modern cities, world-wide fame in natural development, and mammoth undertakings tending towards the accomplishment of splendid possibilities yet in store.

Heading the parade will be the Lewis and Clark float, representing the two great explorers arriving in Oregon, with the historic Indian woman, Sacajawea, pointing the way. As the climax, showing the great attainments of the present day, after only a little more than half a century, a magnificent float representing the approaching fair at Seattle, the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, will conclude a long line of floats representing various intervening phases of Western life, history and development.

Following the Lewis and Clark float will be the Louisiana Purchase float, showing the figures of colonial statesmen, diplomats, Emperor Napoleon and other historic personages, all in costume, and portraying the atmosphere of the time when the great purchase was made—when so little was known of the vast riches dormant in the territory transferred, and when the name "Oregon" covered a vast area with no definite boundaries.

Chief Multnomah and his council of warriors will be shown on Council Crest, considering the famous treaty, this float being a remarkably realistic piece of work.

Portland's first house—the little log cabin whose logs were hewn from the forests which then covered the present site of the city's skyscrapers, will be among the features of the pageant, the design being taken from an oil painting at the headquarters of the Oregon Historical Society at the City Hall.

Among the historic pioneer characters to be revived will be the beloved missionary, Father McLoughlin. Many other courageous men who figured in the molding of Western history will be represented with appropriate scenic vestures and settings.

One of the striking designs is that of the "Western Civilization" float, which is in the form of a huge rose, the various petals of which represent different phases and factors leading up to the present development of the rich resources of the West, and the evolution of Western civilization.

"Rose-Planting Day" is the name of another interesting and beautiful float, and under the name "Early Inhabitant" there will be a big float whereon will be seen Indians, bears, lions, elk and other primeval folk of the West.

The scalping of white men by hostile Indians will be another feature of the parade, shown in the "Coming of the White Man" float, and a glimpse into pioneer perils and the horrors of the Indian massacre will be afforded by the realistic atmosphere. Many other floats, representing the struggles and triumphs of early Western days, will add to the general effect, and the "prairie schooner," with its patient men and women plodding for months across the tedious wastes which are now spanned by railroads and traversed in a few hours by passenger trains, will not be forgotten.

The more impressive features of the parade will be varied by features showing the humorous and amusing side of things, which is also entitled to representation in the "Spirit of the Golden West."

The Seattle float, which will conclude the parade, will show one of the mammoth fair buildings now being built on the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition grounds; it also shows a giant wheel being turned by water, and numerous industries in operation, in miniature, with the official emblematic design of the Exposition in exact reproduction.

GROWTH OF CHURCH

Seventh Day Adventists Are Gaining Ground.

REPORT OF ELDER BUNCH

Contributions Have Been Liberal for Support of Schools and Other Causes— Good Increase in Membership.

Elder F. S. Bunch, who is presiding over the Oregon Conference of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, which is being held in connection with the camp meeting at St. John, made his yearly report yesterday morning. The report shows a steady growth of the church. The membership in 1906 was 1541 and in 1907 1618. There were 41 churches in 1906 and 45 in 1907. The tithe receipts for 1906 were $19,714.55, while in 1907 receipts from this source were $25,094.77; $3565 was spent in the improvement of church schools, of which there are six in Western Oregon, located at Montavilla, Monitor, Astoria, Blatchley and Hopewell. Ten thousand four hundred and sixty-six dollars was also given to help pay the debt on the college at Walla Walla. In addition to this, $5524 was given to outside conferences, making a grand total of $78,132 raised by 1618 church members.

The increase in the number of members and church workers compares well with the record of finances. The number of ordained and licensed ministers in 1906 was 24, and in 1907 there were 30, and in addition 11 missionaries were also licensed. Besides the six church schools, there are in this conference three academies—Laurelwood Academy, near Gaston; Royal Academy, near Cottage Grove, and Gravel Ford Academy, near Myrtle Point. These institutions have a combined enrollment of 156, under the instruction of 15 teachers. In the two years just passed, 6400 sermons have been delivered, 4400 Bible readings given, 15,500 missionary visits made and 162 people have been baptized.

The conference has appointed the following committees:

On plans for the ensuing year—Elders T. H. Starbuck, Portland; W. F. Martin, Roseburg; E. M. Oberg, Astoria; C. W. Flaiz, Portland; W. A. Spicer, Washington, D. C.; H. J. Dicksen, Portland; F. S. Bunch, Myrtle Point.

On credentials and licenses—Elders W. L. Black, of Medford; W. B. White, of Walla Walla, and F. S. Bunch.

On nomination of officers—W. C. Emerson, of Amity; E. D. Hurlburt, of St. John; S. J. Lashier, of Portland; E. A. Wheeler, of Cottage Grove, and C. L. Butterfield, of Marshfield.

Selection of pastors—W. B. White, F. S. Bunch and J. M. Cole, of Salem.

The following daily programme has been adopted:

Rising bell, 5:30 A. M.; devotional meeting, 6 A. M.; breakfast, 7:15 A. M.; family worship, 8:15 A. M.; conference, 9:30 A. M.; preaching, 11 A. M.; dinner, 1 P. M.; preaching, 3 P. M.; young people's meetings, 6 A. M., 5 P. M.; preaching, 7:45 P. M.; retiring bell, 9:30 P. M.

In addition to this strenuous programme, there are two German and Scandinavian services each day, with committee meetings and social visits to occupy the spare moments.

TWO PORTLAND MUSICIANS

Success in New York of Miss Marion E. Bauer and Miss Week.

Miss Anna Louise Week, a pupil of Madame Edwards, gave a recital last week at which she sang the following numbers: Recitative and aria, "Ombra mai fu," Handel; "Sapphische" ode, Brahms; "Es hat die Rose sich baklagt," Franz; "Schattenleben," von Fielitz; "Im wunderschonen Monat Mai," Schumann; "Verborgenheit," Hugo Wolf; "Les Heures," Augusta Holmes; "L'Heure Rose," L'Heure d'or," "L'Heure d'amur," "Stolen Wings," Willeby; "Three Roses Red," Morris; "Morning Hymn," Henschel.

Miss Week is a young singer from Spokane, Wash., and studied with Mrs. Edwards in Los Angeles, Cal., and New York, subsequently coming to Chicago to finish her work. The voice is contralto, of excellent range and timbre, and she has good control of tone. She sang with grace, artistic phrasing and color, is decidedly musical and has temperament. Her diction was unusually good and her French and German quite exceptional.

The pupils of Marion Eugenie Bauer gave their first recital since Miss Bauer's return from Europe, where she supplemented the admirable work done by Henry Holden Huss with a course under Raoul Pugno, Campbell-Tipton and others. Miss Bauer proved Saturday afternoon that her talents lie easily in the line of teaching, as she showed splendid results with a number of pupils ranging from beginners to advanced players. All who participated in the programme are pupils of Miss Bauer, the singers and Miss Crawford being members of her classes in harmony.

The work of the students showed careful application and great interpretative finish, each one playing her allotment with a degree of finish that would have done credit to those of much wider experience.

Before the programme Miss Bauer took the occasion to address the students upon the seriousness of study and its influence upon life in general and the parents upon the matter of being helpful to the cause. Her points were well taken and proved her devotion to high ideals.

Mrs. Howell has a contralto voice of superb quality under the training of Oscar Saenger. She is very musical and sings with deep musical appreciation.

One of the piano selections played at the latter recital was "Light," composed by Marion Eugenie Bauer.

Miss Week, of Spokane, Wash., was trained in language by Madame Julie H. Bauer, of this city, mother of Miss Emilie Frances Bauer. Miss Week was a vocal pupil of Mrs. Rose Bloch Bauer.

NEW SETTLERS TOLD TO GO

Douglas County Ranchers Resent Encroachment With Loaded Guns.

TACOMA, May 30.—S. Wade Hampton, one of a number of Tacoma capitalists, interested in Douglas County land along the line of a new railroad, has just returned from a trip to that section after having been served with a midnight notice by masked men to get out of the country. The notice also warned others to stay out. Hampton was staying in the Woods home on the Columbia River. The masked men galloped away firing their revolvers. Hampton and his friends are endeavoring to have the Federal authorities take a hand in affairs along the line of the new road where, he says, many of the ranchers are using severe measures to prevent the entrance of newcomers. The ranchers, it is said, have fenced in much land to which they have no title and desire to hold it.
