WEDDINGS.

Sim-James.

The spacious home of the James family, corner of Irving and Eighteenth streets, was all aglow inside and out on Thursday evening for the marriage of Miss Helen Irene James to Archibald Moncrieff Sim. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. G. Elliot, pastor of the First Unitarian Church, in presence of a full muster of relatives and an assemblage of friends that filled the public rooms.

Mrs. Charles McCullough presided at the piano, and, just before the appearance of the bride, sang "Calm as the Night Breeze" in soft, shimmering folds from the clusters of lily of the valley and maiden-hair fern, which decorated her dark hair.

The arm bouquet of white roses which she carried seemed the most appropriate flowers which loving taste could have selected. The bride was preceded by her matron of honor, Mrs. Mary Weldon, whose costume of delicate blue harmonized with the bouquet of pink roses she carried. The front parlor had been enclosed with white streamers, to represent a church, which, at the bride's approach, were opened to allow her entrance.

In the bay window, at the upper end, stood the minister, and as the bride approached she was met by her waiting groom, and her brother, Marlon B. James, by whom she was given away. John T. Wheeler acted as best man. The beautifully simple service, which was to link two lives, was solemnly enacted, concluding with the reverent repetition of the Lord's Prayer, and then followed a surge of embraces and good wishes, led off by the bride's mother and members of the family party. The decorations, almost exclusively floral, were unusually rich and harmonious. The flowers were the gift of Mrs. Charles Ladd, and the acres of bloom at the country home on River-view Drive had been freely culled. Roses and snap-dragon of different colors, relieved and surrounded by masses of ferns and greenery, were mostly selected, and their arrangement reflected the highest credit on Miss Jessie James, the sister of the bride, to whose warm heart and deft hands the transient decoration of the home owed most of its creation. In the parlor in which the ceremony took place pink snapdragon and roses appeared in profusion—the mantel being a very bank of flowers; the room in the rear and the library were decorated with roses of different varieties; the stairway and hall with yellow snap-dragon, while the same flower, in white, appeared at every turn in the dining-room. Refreshments were served by a corps of waitresses, and nothing had been omitted for the comfort of the guests. Many were pioneer friends of the family—itsself of honored pioneer stock—and the story of Portland in earlier days was re-

Julius V. Seyler, Soloist at Two Musicales Given by Mr. and Mrs. Jay Smith on Tuesday and Wednesday Night.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Smith, of Portland, tonight gave formal musicales on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of last week. Julius V. Seyler, concert pianist, had the assistance of Miss Helen Barstow soprano, and William Wallace Graham, violinist. Mr. Seyler will leave for the East to spend the Summer months there and in California, returning to Portland about September 15. He has received invitations to give recitals for music teachers' associations in Seattle and Bay City, Mich.

heard in various corners to members of the younger generation. During the evening a number of telegrams of congratulation on the happy union were received, which were read aloud to the company. Some very handsome costumes did honor to the occasion. The bride's mother wore a rich black silk trimmed with fine point lace; Mrs. Richard Koehler a robe of black lace, with diamond ornaments. George V. James, elder brother of the bride, accompanied by his wife—to whom he had been married two weeks previously by the same minister—was present. Mrs. James wearing her white wedding dress. The presents were appropriate, and selected with care. China, silverware, fine linen, rare ornamental vases and Oriental shawls, etc., were each viewed with great interest. The young couple go for an extended trip over the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Sim, an Englishman, whose birthplace was Calcutta, India, has spent much of his life in the Isle of Man, and it is not improbable that the pair, before settling down to the business of matrimony, will make a voyage to England, to permit Mrs. Sim to make the acquaintance of her mother-in-law, who resides at Bedford, England.

Coman-Cahall.

At St. Mary's Cathedral, Monday, June 15, high noon, was solemnized one of the prettiest weddings of the season. The contracting parties were Miss Gertrude Mary Cahall and Daniel Joseph Coman. The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion, the dominant features being marguerites, Oregon grape and palms, the sanctuary being transformed into a bower of greens. The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Anna Cahall, entered on the arm of her brother, Edward H. Cahall, attended by her sister, Miss Katherine Cahall, as maid of honor. She wore a handsome ivory duchesse messaline, made princess en train, a veil of tulle completely enveloping her. The maid of honor was very attractive in pale blue messaline, cut empire, wearing a large picture hat and carrying a shower bouquet of Maman Cosset roses. Little Miss Helen Manning, as flower girl, looked pretty in a dainty frock of white. The groom was attended by Dr. Benjamin Norden as best man, John F. Cahall and William Coman acting as ushers. Rev. Father H. J. McDavit officiated. Just before the marriage ritual a solo, "Ave Maria," was beautifully rendered by Miss Irene Flynn. After the wedding a luncheon was served at the home of the bride to the immediate families of the bridal pair, followed by a reception, which was attended by a large number of friends. Large numbers of costly and beautiful gifts were effectively used in the decoration of the home. The popularity of the young couple was attested by the large number of costly and beautiful gifts of which they were the recipients.

Cronan-Lyons.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated on Wednesday morning, June 10, at St. Francis Church, when Louis W. Cronan and Miss Gertrude Catherine Lyons were united in marriage by Rev. J. H. Black. Miss Rose Schacht was the bridesmaid and John E. Cronan acted as best man. The ushers were Messrs. James O'Donnell, H. G. Ferry, James A. Lyons and W. J. Lyons. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride. Covers were laid for 50. The house was beautifully decorated with Caroline Testout roses and orange blossoms and asparagus fern, the arrangement of which was perfected by the artistic hand of Mrs. J. E. Cronan. Mr. and Mrs. Cronan are now touring the Northwest, visiting Victoria and several other Canadian cities. After leaving Banff Springs they will return to Portland and be at home to their friends at the Nortonia. At the wedding the bride was gowned in cream-colored voile, elaborately trimmed with cluny lace and wearing a picture hat of white, laden with plumes. The maid of honor wore a rich silk of a crushed strawberry
