BATY FOR HEAD OF DETECTIVE STAFF

Chief Gritzmacher Announces Permanent Successor to Patrick Bruin.

RANK WILL BE SERGEANT

At First Opportunity He Will Be Advanced to Captain—Will Come With Establishment of East Side Station.

Chief of Police Gritzmacher announced yesterday afternoon that Charles E. Baty will be the permanent head of the city detective staff, with the rank of sergeant. This seems to settle the question as to what disposition will be made of the matter, which has been hanging in the balance for a long time. Baty has been directing the work of the secret service branch of the department since the resignation of Patrick Bruin, three months ago, and is highly complimented by his superiors.

While Chief Gritzmacher would not go into the details of the case, he officially declared that it has been decided to retain Sergeant Baty as chief of detectives, and that no other officer will be named for the place, "at least for awhile." This is taken to mean that Baty will remain in command of the detectives as a sergeant until such time as there is an opportunity to advance him to the rank of captain. This will sooner or later occur, as it is probable that an East Side station will be established in course of time, and that it will be officered by at least one captain. This would make possible the appointment of one man from the Civil Service eligible list of three, and would thus move Baty up from fourth place and put him where he could be made captain.

There has been much discussion over this subject in official circles, and by many it was popularly supposed that, after the Chief of Police applied for a captain to the Civil Service Commission, he must appoint one from the list of eligibles as soon as such list was made. This, the Chief says, is an error.

"There is no provision in the Civil Service rules that requires us to appoint a captain out of the list of three eligibles certified to us," said Chief Gritzmacher. "Consequently we will not appoint any, but will keep Baty as chief of detectives with the rank of sergeant for a little while."

When the vacancy occurred, Chief Gritzmacher asked the Civil Service Commission for an eligible list, and Secretary McIntosh replied that there were no eligibles. An examination was ordered, with the result that three patrolmen passed with credits higher than Baty, and were certified ahead of him. Baty, meantime, was named as an emergency captain, as provided by Civil Service rules. That he did not pass higher, Chief Gritzmacher states, was due alone to the fact that he had been working for four days and nights on the Wolf murder case, without sleep, and was in very poor condition to take the examination.

That Baty passed fourth on the list and was not certified for the position was a great surprise to Chief Gritzmacher and Police Commissioners Greene and Sabin. Stating that he is the best man for the position, they have steadfastly declined to make any appointment from the certified list, which comprise the names of Patrolmen Harry Circle, Harry Riley and Fred Mallett. What view the members of the Civil Service Commission will take of this latest announcement will be known when the next meeting is held.

REAL STORY OF INDIAN WAR

Colonel Parker, Scout for General Howard, Tells It for First Time.

LYLE, Wash., July 4.—(Special.)—Colonel Frank J. Parker, pioneer miner, General Howard's old scout in the Indian war of 1878, newspaper man, later United States Marshal for Washington under Cleveland, now retired, residing in Portland, has just concluded a trip up the Columbia, noting changes that have been made since he and other miners floated from The Dalles to the Cascades in an Indian canoe, in 1854. Colonel Parker expressed regret that some of the grotesque scenery of the Cascades had to be so ruthlessly obliterated by the recent railroad construction.

Before taking the Portland train, the old miner-scout related a little incident that will clear up, to some of the "old-timers," what was reported falsely at the time to be an Indian outbreak. The story runs that General Howard's scout, with a Cayuse Indian guide, was en route to intercept General Howard and army in Harney Valley. They had made camp on the headwaters of Owyhee River, near Silver City. During an intermission in the long ride while the horses were grazing and resting, Colonel Parker and the Indian were shooting "wind" hens. Peaceable Indians passing heard the gun reports and tarried long enough to see dogging through the brush the Indian guide and presuming at once a band of their mortal foes, the Bannocks, were upon them, they hastened with reports to Silver City. Soon there appeared in the newspapers the story of "another outbreak of Indians near Silver City, Idaho."

Colonel Parker says he has kept the real story of the Indian raid secret these 30 years in order not to detract from the fame of the then rising young journalists.

Little Falls Wins This Time.

CASTLE ROCK, Wash., July 4.—(Special.)—Castle Rock and Little Falls met again this afternoon on the home grounds in the second of the three-game series, and though the home team made a brilliant start, they went to pieces in the third, and let their opponents run up a score of 6 against their 2. Final score, 11 to 3.
