BY W. J. PETRAIN.

After Bobby Groom had acted as chief donor in a gift party in the ninth inning of yesterday's matinee, Claude Berry and Nick Williams refused to be outdone in generosity. They came back at Portland in the eleventh and contributed a couple of miscues that gave Manager McCredie a chance to tally the necessary run to give Portland the best end of a 5 to 4 score.

The victory was a most popular one, for the matinee should not have progressed beyond the ninth. In that inning Groom developed a streak of wildness and with the sacks populated, principally owing to his inability to locate the plate, he handed out four wide ones to Claude Berry, and forced Hildebrand over for the tying ace after Portland had seemingly won the game.

No Grounds for Protest.

"Kid" Mohler, evidently wishing to stall off an inference that he was a quitter, galloped to the stand after Portland had scored two runs in the seventh and handed out the dope that he would protest the game on the grounds that Casey had interfered with him in fielding a batted ball. Mohler was under the influence of one of his pipe dreams, and endeavored to convince Umpire O'Connell that something had happened which no one else within the confines of the park had seen. Mohler simply quit cold when Cooney's bounder took an offside shoot, and he saw that he could not get either Bassey or McCredie at the plate.

The performance of Mohler is simply in line with the crabby tactics he has pursued all week. If a San Francisco player is out a city block on any kind of a play, the Seal captain kicks strenuously. The only way he can be satisfied is for the umpire to favor the San Francisco club in every decision. Woe betide the unfortunate official who does otherwise, for after the game is over the Kid amuses himself by scribbling off yards of protest to J. Cal Ewing and Danny Long, telling them how the San Francisco club has been robbed by the umpire. As a matter of fact the San Francisco club as it is now composed has no license to win any kind of a game from the Portland team. Dugdale's Seattle misfits could wallop Mohler and his men all over the field, and without any great amount of exertion at that.

Game Close at All Times.

Aside from the asinine performance of Mohler, yesterday's game was exceedingly interesting and full of excitement and doubtful of result from start to finish. Some of the Seals really played as though they wanted to win, and it was not their fault the victory came to Portland.

Bassey pulled off a fluke home run, which bounded against the left garden wall and settled politely down between the two fences. The little Portlander circled the bases amid the yells of enthusiasm among the fans. His clout was a good, long, healthy drive and, under ordinary circumstances, would have counted for two bases anyway. As Manager McCredie soused the next ball pitched by Salisbury for three bases, we would have had the run in any event.

The one run lead looked good until the fourth, when Bobby Groom threw a fright into the fans for the first time by walking Curtis. McArdle was an easy out, but La Longe shot one to second which was recorded as a hit, and Curtis took third on Casey's bad heave. Salisbury was passed by Groom and this populated the sacks. Mohler's single past Cooney chased two runs over. Groom then mussed up Hildebrand's bunt and the sacks were again loaded. Zeider hit a sharp one to Bobby and a fast double from the pitcher to Whaling to Johnson closed the Seals out.

With one out in the fifth, Melchoir and Curtis singled and the former took third when McArdle forced Curtis at second. A double steal was then successfully executed, and Melchior scored because Whaling fumbled Cooney's neat return to the plate.

Johnson Hits Three-Bagger.

Ote Johnson laced one for three cushions in the sixth and raced home when Tom Raftery sent a grass burner to center.

In the seventh the home team got busy in the base running line and aided by Mohler's brilliant display of quitting tallied twice and took the lead. Bassey walked, and when Zeider dropped and kicked McCredie's liner he took second. Whaling flew to Melchoir, and while Bobby Groom was striking out Bassey and McCredie executed a double steal. Casey was deliberately passed by Henley, who had succeeded Salisbury in the fourth, and Cooney hit a bounder which eluded Henley's grapplers. Mohler came in on the ball and glancing toward the plate lost the bounder as it shot to one side.

Seeing that he could not get Bassey and McCredie, the kingpin kicker of the league, he rushed madly to O'Connell and declared that Casey had interfered with him. O'Connell refused to be bulldozed into believing anything of the kind, for he watched the play closely expecting Mohler to attempt to get Cooney at first. Mohler's protest is not worth the paper it will be written on.

Pitcher Graney was in uniform yesterday, but is not likely to appear on the mound before the opener against Los Angeles next Tuesday. This afternoon's game will be called at 2:30 o'clock, and Kinsella will pitch for Portland, while Ralph Willis will occupy the mound for San Francisco. Yesterday's score follows:

FANDOM AT RANDOM

BY W. J. PETRAIN.

Kid Mohler's protest of yesterday's game is as silly as most of the kicks he has registered during the week. The kid seems to be emulating the example of Pete Lohman and Parke Wilson, who kicked themselves out of Pacific Coast League jobs.

• • •

Bassey's homer, while taking him around the circuit by a piece of luck, was a good, clean swat, and would have netted him two bases had it bounded back into the park. The "Count" was given the glad hand for fair as he trotted over the register.

• • •

Both Groom and Raftery were not at their best yesterday, and this is probably explained by the presence of the Cleveland scout, Tom O'Brien, who is in Portland for the purpose of meeting his chief, President Somers, of the Cleveland club.

• • •

Raftery secured only one hit, but that was as good as a dozen, for it brought in a much-needed run. Groom was as wild as a March hare and had himself in the hole so frequently that the fans were kept on the anxious seat throughout the game.

• • •

Harry Melchior seemed to know the big league scout was present, for he played the most brilliant game of the week. He captured several hard drives and distinguished himself at the bat and on the bases. The Seal right-fielder should not be overlooked by the majors.

• • •

Pitcher John Gladstone Graney arrived on the scene yesterday and decorated himself with a Portland uniform for the first time. He is about the same height as Jesse Garrett, but weighs more than the Texan. They also resemble each other somewhat in features. Graney will probably not appear on the mound until Tuesday, when he will be delegated to hand out his puzzlers to the Los Angeles bunch. Being a left hander, he will likely break into the league with a victory.

• • •

Little Phil Cooney played in hard luck toward the end of yesterday's game. In an attempt to get Zeider on a steal in the tenth the little Portlander turned an ankle, and later, when he ran to first on his infield tap, he collided with Nick Williams and had to retire from the game.

• • •

"Slim" Marshall took care of first base in the neatest possible manner when Cooney's accident caused him to retire and necessitated the switching of Johnson to short. He had but two chances, but accepted these like a finished first-sacker.

• • •

When Mohler's crew secured the lead in the fourth inning the crabby one hustled Salisbury to the cooler and delegated "Slivers" Henley to finish the game. Henley is charged with the defeat, for San Francisco had the lead when he hit the mound. "Solly" did not do so badly, for the only hard hits secured off his peculiar delivery were Bassey's homer and McCredie's triple.

• • •

Cold feet are all right in some cases in this weather, but not the kind of cold feet acquired by the two managers in Friday's game, nor the kind exhibited by Kid Mohler yesterday.
