OWN AN ORCHARD TRACT

On the Umpqua River

Aptly termed "the land of opportunity"

We offer every man the opportunity to secure a home and a tract of fruit land in the famous Umpqua Valley of Southern Oregon on the most liberal terms ever heard of—and then we will develop the tract for you with our own money and make the land pay for itself by returning to you one-half the net profits resulting from the growth of small fruits and vegetables between the trees. Live on the land if you will, but if you are not prepared to just now, we will care for it and make it yield you a profit each year.

Do you fully grasp our offer? We sell you the land on easy monthly payments, and then make the land take care of them.

If you can suggest anything more liberal than our offer we want to hear of it.

Situated on the beautiful Umpqua River, just north of Roseburg, and every acre cleared ready to plant trees. Soil of deep, sedimentary deposit, adapted to growing apples, pears, peaches, walnuts, almonds, cherries, prunes and all small fruits and vegetables—and not only equal to any grown in the state, but ready for market three weeks earlier than from any other point.

This land planted to potatoes alone will yield a crop sufficient to make your payments and put money in your pocket each year. WE CAN PROVE IT.

The earliest fruit belt in Oregon

Delightful climate, fine schools and churches, splendid neighbors, hard-surface roads leading in all directions from the tract. A Fruitgrowers' Association at Roseburg solves the market problem for you, and means a big saving for growers. Come to our office and let us explain our plan in detail—you will be interested. Price $150 per acre. Terms $150 cash, balance on easy monthly payments. Development between the trees will take care of the installments after next Spring. This land will double in value in 12 months.

Are you going to wait until every acre of Oregon Fruit Land is under cultivation and then pay five times the present price?

Every Foot of Every Tract Is Equal to the Best Fruit Soil in Oregon, and Superior to the Most of It

JOSEPHINE COUNTY CHERRY TREE THAT HAS BORNE FRUIT HALF A CENTURY

GIANT CHERRY TREE IN YARD OF SAMUEL COOK, OF GRANTS PASS.

GRANTS PASS, Or., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Josephine County's largest cherry tree for nearly one-half century has stood in the farmyard of "Uncle" Sam Cook. It measures 102 inches in circumference, with limbs reaching out over a surface of 40 feet. This tree has never failed to bear fruit since maturity, and each year there is gathered from its branches a wagon-load of cherries. Near this tree, in the same yard, stands a peach tree 45 inches in circumference, and 49 years old. With its heavy-laden boughs of fruit it looks as healthy and in as perfect condition as the day it began to bear. In one corner of the yard opposite these two aged trees is a grapevine as large as an ordinary man's body, which sends out its new vines each year. The area over which it spreads is fully one-eighth of an acre, thereby forming an arbor nearly 100 feet long. The annual product of this one vine amounts to one ton of grapes. From these pioneer producers Mr. Cook's family has long enjoyed each year cherry pie, peach cobbler and luscious grapes, and his children and great-grandchildren are yearly going to his home to eat from the same old tree and gather from the same vine.

FACES CRIMINAL CHARGE

Man Driven From Eugene Is Again in Trouble.

John Cruzane, 22 years of age and married, occupies a cell in the County Jail, and the residents of Kern Park are up in arms against the prisoner and his family. Cruzane is charged with an attack upon his 6-year-old niece, according to the information filed with Constable Lou Wagner. Cruzane and his relatives are said to be most disorderly persons, and the citizens of Kern Park desire to be rid of them immediately.

Before moving to Portland and locating at Kern Park the Cruzane family gained considerable notoriety on account of orgies in the vicinity of Eugene. Several months ago the entire family was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Bryson, of Eugene, charged with disorderly conduct. The trial was sensational and finally ended in bloodshed, for three men were killed in a quarrel that resulted. Justice Bryson found the Cruzane family guilty and ordered them to remove from the vicinity. On the return to their home, which was located at Marcola, a short distance from Eugene, Cruzane, his brother and one of the witnesses against them met in a store, and words led to the drawing of guns, which resulted in the killing of a brother of Cruzane, the witness and one bystander. Immediately after this episode the Cruzanes moved to Portland and have lived at Kern Park ever since.

Constable Wagner and Deputy Constable Kernan visited the home of the Cruzanes Thursday and placed all of them under arrest except John Cruzane, who had fled to Vancouver, Wash. From the mother of Cruzane it was learned where he had gone, and yesterday she was prevailed upon to accompany the officers to that place, where the arrest was made. Cruzane volunteered to accompany the officers to Portland and was locked up in the County Jail in default of $2500 bail. The case will be heard before Justice of the Peace Bell tomorrow morning.

NEUTRAL NO LONGER

Germany Fears Denmark Would Help Britain.

ALLOWED USE OF HARBORS

British Naval Maneuvers in North Sea Arouse Teuton Suspicion of Preparation for Future Naval War.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—(Special.)—That it would be the duty of the Kaiser's government in case of a war between England and Germany to seize the kingdom of Denmark is the upshot of a number of articles in German papers following the gigantic maneuvers of the British fleet.

Commenting on the fact that up to the present time the annual British naval maneuvers were nearly always confined to the Atlantic ocean or the Mediterranean, the Hamburger Nachrichten says that two important strategical problems have brought the British fleet into northern waters. It continues:

"The one problem concerns war with Germany, as becomes obvious when it is noted that Denmark has allowed two of its harbors to be used as strategical points for the British maneuvers. Esbjerg is, by its geographical position, a basis for a hostile fleet operating against Wilhelmshaven, the German North Sea harbor. In the same way Aalbeck would be exceedingly useful for all operations carried on in the neighborhood of Jutland, and from there across to Scotland, and on the other side in the Skagerrak and Cattegat. The fact that Denmark is thus taking part in these maneuvers displays a tendency to withdraw her neutrality in the event of a war.

"Moreover, these strategical experiments show not only that plans drawn up at the British Admiralty and directed against Germany are being tested in practice, but that these two harbors are fully counted upon. The British Admiralty is doubtless not unaware that the German government fully grasps the meaning of these maneuvers, and it is important that German public opinion should likewise have no illusions on the matter.

"The second important problem with which the present maneuvers are concerned is the investigation of the condition of the Scottish and English coasts as bases in case of war, and their protection against German attack. Great Britain is persuaded that German torpedo-boats will endeavor to enter her harbors by night and damage her battleships. Rosyth, on the Scottish coast, is the future basis of an English North Sea fleet, and the operating point of the north in the event of war.

"We see, then, that England does not hesitate to expose her plans and intentions in the publicity of her fleet maneuvers, and over this we can only express our satisfaction. But the attitude of the two Danish harbors affords matter for reflection."
