Home Team Puts Over Only Run in Fifth—Spectacular Fielding Stunts and Good Hitting Enliven Contest.

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE. Yesterday's Results. San Francisco 1, Portland 0. Oakland 4, Los Angeles 2.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—With baseball luck breaking their way for the most part, and a close decision at the plate, when they tallied the sole run of the game, Danny Long's Seals put one over on the Beavers today, 1 to 0.

In the second, Ryan worked his way as far as third on a fielder's choice and two errors, only to be caught trying to steal home. Fred Beck, for the Seals, retailed in the same inning with a three-bagger, but was forced at the plate. Danzig stirred up things in the fourth, when two were down, with a two-bagger, but when Ryan hit through the infield, the babe tried to stretch it into a run and was out.

In the fifth came the one run of the day. Mohler was safe at first on an error by Cooney, who had a hard hit ball to handle. He advanced to second on an out by Hildebrand, and when Zelder whaled, the ball came home, Batferry made a good throw to the plate, and when Perine called the runner safe there was a storm of protests.

WORK ON RECEPTION PLANS

FUND NEEDED FOR GREETING TO OREGON ATHLETES.

Business Men Are Subscribing Liberally and Committee Hopes to Complete Amount This Week.

Portland's celebration in honor of her three victorious athletes at London is to be one that will last long in the memory of the athletes themselves and the citizens of Portland and the state at large.

The business men of Portland who have been during the limited time the subscription committee has been at work have contributed liberally to the fund and there is no question but that there will be contributed an amount sufficient to meet all the requirements of the proposed celebration.

The general committee in charge of the celebration is not worried over funds, but is going ahead enthusiastically with the arrangements for the demonstration. Both the general committee and the various sub-committees are working hard to perfect all the arrangements as soon as possible, so that when the committee delegated to meet the Oregon world-beaters at New York is ready to depart the programme will be complete.

The exact date the athletes will arrive in New York will be known in the next few days and also the plans for their reception at that city. In the meantime Portland and Oregon will continue the programme for the reception of the three men from this state.

Seattle Complacent, as Always. The Seattle people seemingly do not realize the extent of the evil, for they are so confident of their success that they are careless with their own experiences, and those who have not been enticed by the pique game of chance, being satisfied with the running of the horses, do not take the pains to inquire into the reasons attendant upon the worried look on the face of a handsome woman, and the discouraging appearance of a youth of tender years, or the dependent attitude of a well-dressed young man.

HOGAN AND PUGILISTS

Kansas Bartender's One Hatred Was Fancy Fighters.

W. E. Lewis in New York Telegraph. I had a speaking acquaintance years ago with a bartender who served drinks in the Battle Row saloon, in Main street, near the old central police station in Kansas City. This bartender, who bore the martial name of Hogan, was a monomaniac in the subject of professional prizefighters. He hated the professional pugilist and never overlooked an opportunity to take a crack at him as he expressed it, and Hogan looked at him with much dislike.

"Give me some whiskey," said the stranger. "If you take it now or wait till you get it," asked Hogan, offensively. "Don't get funny; give me the drink," said the man. "Show your money first," shouted Hogan.

"Drink it yourself, you big loafer," said the man, as he left the place. Another stranger, standing in the saloon said: "You took a chance there. That man might have hit you. That's Mike Boden, the Jersey tit horse, a wated second-rate prizefighter. 'A fighter' ejaculated Hogan, as he literally hurled himself over the bar and rushed out on the street. He caught up with Mike Boden in three jumps and dealt him a furious blow in the back of his red neck. "Take that!" yelled Hogan, "just because you're a prizefighter!"

Kentucky's Bad Roads. Life. If there are any worse roads than those of the mountain portions of Kentucky, the localities they infest are ashamed to acknowledge it publicly. Last year Governor Wilson, Republican, who carried the state, heretofore all over the mountain counties where his majority came from. It was no pink tea job, either, and there were moments, as he got down to it by the roadside and rest his bones, when he thought he was paying a pretty high price for what he didn't know whether he would get or not. One day, coming down an especially bad mountain road, his horse slipped and came near throwing the Governor-to-be clear over the side and into a rock gorge of unknown depth. "See-hesaphat!" he gasped, as he dropped back into the saddle. "Just near went the whole 4-d campaign."

GARBAGE MEN SEIZES SETTLE

Whole City Impregnated With Passion for Betting on Horse Races.

BOYS PERMITTED TO WIN

Boys Squander Earnings and Clerks Mortgage Salaries—Many Women Yield to the Fascination of Tempting Fickle Goddess.

BY W. J. PETRAIN. The fact that Seattle is enjoying a lengthy summer this Summer has led to a considerable amount of grumbling on the part of a number of residents of Portland, who would like an opportunity of witnessing the bangtalls perform. If these same grumblers would visit Seattle and get in touch with the conditions as they actually exist, much of their envy of the Elliott Bay metropolis would be dispelled.

While no fault can be found, at least from a superficial inquiry, into the method by which the races are conducted, it is evident that the whole city is impregnated with the betting evil. It is only a question of a few weeks, or possibly months, when more defalcations among young bank clerks and others of sporting tendencies will have developed.

This evil is of such a pronounced nature that a stranger landing in the city is soon cognizant of the situation by overhearing conversation among bellboys, elevator pilots, clerks and young men in every walk of life. They congregates around the headquarters of the horse fraternity, with the hope of getting a "tip" on some good thing from the supposed "wise ones."

Not only are the young men and boys of Seattle pursuing the fickle task of endeavoring to recoup a long series of losses, but the fascination of the betting ring has become so prevalent among the women of Seattle that many who are of excellent and prominent families have become imbued with the spirit of chance to such an extent that the commissions of the betting solicitors in the stands at the Meadows have assumed the proportions of a railway magnate's salary.

consequence when compared to the great amount of losses. CHURCH MUSIC BOMBHELL Advises Abolition of Quartet Choirs for Chorus.

Musical Leader and Concert Goer. Charles Galloway, organist at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, conductor of the Apollo Club and teacher of the organ, threw a bombshell into the Missouri State Music Teachers' Convention with his paper on "Church Music." He flayed unmercifully the usual quartet choir singing, which constitutes the backbone of church music and the fashionable choir with its high priced singers as unworthy of consideration, in his opinion. The sum and substance of Mr. Galloway's verdict is: Church music should be absolutely pure. Quartet singing cannot do justice to the majority of the master compositions. Congregational singing is lamentably weak, because of the poor quality of the hymn books in use. A hymn book should be compiled with fewer hymns, comprising only those that have been written by great religious leaders, like Martin Luther and Johann Sebastian Bach, who stand prominently at the top. In a concise elucidation of his subject Mr. Galloway said it is a vexing question whether the old form of church music, of which Palestrina's works are the bravura style, of which Perkins, Bliss and Danks are representatives, should be adopted. The reader counted among his ideals of church music composers, Palestrina, Bach and Handel, and hit hard the would-be composers who are called musical factotums, who have nothing to offer but rhythm, rhythm again, and rhythm for the third time. He was merciless in his condemnation of the church music that is published and sung in preference to works of compositional value. He likened this form of music to obscene literature which should be suppressed. "A mixed quartet," Mr. Galloway continued, "seldom can interpret adequately the masterpieces of church music, and I stand here to make a strong argument for a mixed chorus, as far better able to do this, and I need not refer to such authorities as F. W. Wodell, of Boston, Dudley Buck and Frank Donrausch, who are broad-minded, cultured musicians. "A church choir, as usually spoken of, does not necessarily preclude the singing of solos, duets, trios or quartets when occasion demands." Mr. Galloway reminded those present that the most satisfactory singers in local quartet choirs were graduated from one of the city's chorus choirs within the last six or eight years. Congregational singing, Mr. Galloway argued, is anything but thrilling, because the hymns sung are only joyless, and hardly that. "This is the reason," he said, "people do not sing them. His ideal hymn is Martin Luther's 'Kleine feste Burg ist unser Gott.'" He further attacked the present Sunday School singing, and said it is a crime and a shame that young people are not introduced to a higher class of church music.

Crime In Delay of the Law. Philadelphia Press. The dilatory methods so marked in New York practice are common to most of the states of the Union, and none of them is entirely free from this reproach. * * * A poor man cannot afford to secure these delays, for the cost is heavy. This creates an inequality before the law which is itself very unjust. Besides, justice is defeated by the delays. Witnesses forget or disappear, the prosecution becomes fatigued and its zeal slackens in the course of years. The conviction of a guilty man becomes almost impossible if his counsel can postpone the final issue long enough. They do these things differently in England, and, in the opinion of those most competent to judge, they do them much better. Cases are tried more quickly. The errors of the judge or of the public prosecutor are not permitted to defeat justice. Appeals are allowed now in criminal cases, but they are not merely to determine if the trial judge's law is right, but if the substantial justice has been done. The wide lane of separation between them is closed and American justice no longer is handicapped by its "lame and halting gait."
