ARMIES DESCEND ON BIG GATHERING

Prosperity Congress Besieged by Unemployed and Suffragettes.

BERKMAN HEADS ONE ARMY

Man Who Shot Frick Says Idle Men in East Can't Reach Jobs in West-Right Way to Revive Prosperity.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 .- Two rival "armies" descended upon the meeting of the Commercial Travelers' Interstate pros commercial Travelers interstate pros-perity Congress here yesterday. First came grim-looking men under the leader-ship of Alexander Berkman, the professed enarchist, who in 1892 shot 14. C. Frick, the millionaire, during the Homestead glots. It was necessary to dispel the "army," and Berkman angrily reproached "army," and Berkman angrily reproached his followers "as a lot of spineless, driv-rilling kilots" for not opposing the police. Berkman and his followers said that they represented 40,000 unemployed working-men. The second "army" was composed of determined suffragettes. They also demanded recognition by the Prosperity Congress.

Too Poor to Go to Jobs.

After Berkman and his followers had After Berkman and his followers had been dispersed a committee of "unemployed" asked that a resolution it had prepared be presented. It was accepted but not presented to the congress. It stated that, while there was a demand for workingmen in the Western states, the men had been out of work so long they did not have clothing or tools or mency for, transportation to the waiting positions. The resolution was free from bitter language and stated that the authors of it were in thorough sympathy with the presently movement.

with the prosperity movement.
At the afternoon session Henry Clews,
the New York bahker, spoke on the financial situation. He said that the total value of the combined crops this year would be about $8.000.000,000. "That means," he added, "that farmers will have money to burn this Fall."

Cause of Panic Defined.

Before the session adjourned the com-

Before the session adjourned the committee on resolutions reported and it was learned that recognition had been given the "committee of unemployed." The committee deplored the fact that so many men were out of work.

The resolution offered by the committee described the financial panic as being partly caused by a lack of confidence in the people controlling the common carriers of the country, in failing to give a fair deal between the strong and powerful shipper and the small and weak shipper and unwise and hasty legislation by state Legislatures afterwards. The resolution concludes as follows:

"We are in favor of any measure which will give employment to the unemployed will give employment to the unemployed and will start the wheels of every manu-facturing plant in America and we further pledge ourselves to the sale of American-

In speaking on "The Return of Com-mercial Travelers to Prosperity" E. C. Simmons, president of the Prosperity League, said:

League, said:

Gentlemen of the traveling fraternity, we want to enlist in the ranks of prosperity workers every one of you; we want your persevering and persistent personality; we want your good talking qualities, for none can talk better than the traveling salesman; we want your splitty to convince people that what you say is right—which no set of men pussess to a greater degree than you do; but above all, we want your splendid optimism to permeate this land so that every inhabitant old enough to understand the meaning of the word may be inoculated with it.

imeaning of the word may be inoculated with it.

Our work at the present time is a campaign of education, and we now call upon you io "carry the message to Garcia."

I would rather have the induence of the traveling salesmen of the United States today, to hasten the return of business activity, than any other influence there is in the country, or than all of them combined. When I speak so strongly of the important place of the traveling men in this National prosperity movement, I do not forget what the press has done to spread the information and to encourage the spirit of it. The publicity given this movement by the press, in the midst of a period of great political excitement, has been surprising. But, after reviewing the gratifying ald this movement has received from various sources, I come back to the part the traveling man has performed—and he only can perform—to show, if I may, the reason why he is the most effective emmisary of optimism.

Text of the Message.

Text of the Message.

The message we want you to carry to the merchant—and the message we want you to convey to the farmer, through the merchant—is that fundamentally conditions are all right; that thre is nothing in the world to interfere with a return to a full measure of prosperity quickly—and by that we mean not later than December 31, 1805—excepting the restoration of confidence, which was so bidely shattered—in fact, I may say, so "everlastingly smashed" by the panic of the Fall of 1807. Tell them that good times have returned in great measure in that great productive and constructive region of the Southwest. Remind them that the greatest drops—in value—is always corn, and that is not only greater today in dollar value, but in number of bushes, than it has ever been before; tell them that the second crop in value—which is hay—has already been made, and far exceeds, in volume and value, anything heretofore known; tell them that the cotton crop prospects are so very bright and fattering; tell them thes wheat crop promises to have greater money value than it has ever had before.

Tell them that the farmers have had their greater money value than it has ever had before.

Tell them that the farmers have had their innings during the last three or five years; that the products of the farm have been enormously large, and the prices have been larger, in proportion, than the products themselves. Think over the results of the panic, and you will realize that the agricultural sections have been touched vary lightly indeed. The effects are largely in the manufacturing and enton-growing districts—the second of which is now recovering with marvelous rapidity. Tell them that the price of farm products has been heept up by the buying power of the laboring classes, and especially railroad employes. This class of people are the greatest spending of this money so freely and so generously by labor and railroad employes that has kept up the price of farm products; that is where the farmer comes in on this question, and comes in very strongly, inthat is where the farmer comes in on this question, and comes in very strongly, indeed. It is a vital matter to him as to whether labor shall be fully employed at good wages or not, and yet we doubt if he fully realizes that.

Praise for Rallroads.

Praise for Railroads.

Tell the people you meet that the railroads are the greatest buyers on the face of the earth; that they purchase 25 percent of all the manufactured products of from and steel last year, and 25 per cent of all the manufactured products of from and steel last year, and 25 per cent of all the lumber that was cut, and that cut of every dollar they received in the way of earnings, they paid out 48 cents in the way of wages to their smployes. Tell them that the railroads are the greatest friends of the laboring man-and especially are they the greatest friends of the farmer there are in the world.

Tell them not to condemn 100 per cent of the railroads because 10 per cent of the railroads because 10 per cent of them have been guilty of sharp practice or crooked work; tell them not to "burn down their barns trying to smoke out a few rais"; tell them to stop "rocking the boat."

Try to think of all the good things you can say about the railroads and their value to the community at large, and not speak of their shortcomings, which in the jast have been many.

Don't let anybody make you believe it is have been many.

Don't let anybedy make you believe it is too late to begin this work now. It is not. There are still thousands of worthy, industrious men who are idle, many factories still closed, and a great many furnaces and $1.000,000.

ever since their arrival.

There is more than a suspicion that the talk will drift around to a discussion of the possibility of a change in the makeup of the Const and Northwest League, before the visit of the gentlemen from the South is ended. The controlling powers in the Coas

TARIFF STUDY NEAR END

PARIS, Aug. 15 .- The American Tariff under the chairmanship of James B. Reynolds, assistant secretary of the American treasury, after having been in seasion for several weeks with the French commission, has now reached the last stages of its labors. The next step will be the preparation by each com mission of its answer to the requests of the other, after which there will be a joint meeting to exchange final views and proposals. The commissioners are inves-tigating the complaints of French and American exporters, and they have cussed generally the question of tariff re-lations between the two countries.

Butions between the two countries.

Bach commission is sitting separately. They have in the course of their meetings given many hearings to business men and business interests. The Associated Press is in a position to say that grounds have been laid for a future formal tariff treaty between America and France, but the consummation of such a treaty naturally consummation of such a treaty naturally depends upon a change in the American tariff system by which reciprocal conces-sions are to be given to foreign countries. In the meantime much practical good is expected to result from the frank talk of the commissioners regarding the American interpretation of existing laws. The principal request made by the American commissioners has been a reduction in the burdensome restrictions on the enthe burdensome restrictions on the en-trance of American cattle and meat into trance of American cattle and meat into France, which have made export trade to France practically impossible, and that the French encourage the exportation of flour to that country under conditions which do not amount, practically, to a bounty. The United States has asked also, for changes in the French customs proceedure.

The French commissioners objected t certain of the American customs regulations and the American methods of arriving at valuations, especially on France's high-priced manufactures, as porcelains, laces and silks. They claim, also that the rigorous pure-food laws in the United States are enforced so technically and interpreted so narrowly that this course might result in practically shutting the American market to French products.
