By Mrs. I. Lowenberg. "Is saturated with an object that is ex-pressed with every evidence of conviction and with no small literary skill." and "is vividly colored by splankes of genuine pas-sion and of real tragedy." The "irresistible current" is the tendency toward a better philosophy of life, an agreement upon the essentials of human conduct that shall take place of creeds, and a reliance upon a human love and brotherhood that is after all the highest expression of the best re-ligion."—The San Francisco Argonaut. "The Irresistible Current" will appeal to all readers who delight in a cleveril de-signed, charmingly told story of love."— Boston Globe, Ezzton.

The San Francisco Examiner says: "Among the novels of the day that seem to be penned solely with the purpose of en-ertaining, there comes occusionally one like binching "Mestropolis," Isac Stevens, "The Liberators" and Winston Churchill's "Mr. Gravs Carser," Mrs. Lowenberg's novel is written with a purpose. It is an interesting skeith of comedy and tragedy that protests against one of the last barriers that is said to impede the progress of social evolution-be intolerance of "modern creeds."
