Ismail Kiamil Pasha Man Who Broke Sultan's Power.

FATHER OF REVOLUTION

Albanian Christian Converted to Moslem Faith Engineered Plot From Exile in Macedonia. Well Known in London.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—Whose name is a household word in the Young Turkey revolution which was met with such complete and sudden success? The question has been continually asked and can be answered with certainty. The man who brought freedom to Turkey is Ismail Kiamil Pasha, Albanian Christian by birth, Moslem by conviction. He is 45 years old, son of an old family and has lived for years in exile in England. During the revolution his headquarters has been at Serres, in Macedonia. There he plotted and planned, and thence he dispatched his orders to the officers of the army of reformers he had brought under his sway. The first strands of the web of revolt were spun from London and Paris in both of which cities Kiamil Pasha is well known.

At 17 Kiamil entered the Turkish government service in a subordinate capacity, but by assiduity and perseverance attained the position of second secretary to the Imperial Ottoman Embassy in London. After remaining in England some two or three years he returned to Turkey and was created a Councillor of State. Then came the Transvaal war and Kiamil, accompanied by about 20 others, went to the British Embassy and made prayers for the success of the British arms. News of this ceremony was quickly carried to the palace by a spy. Kiamil, however, was raised to the rank of pasha and appointed Governor of Tripoli. Kiamil considered this to be merely an attempt to hoodwink him and determined upon flight from Turkey. But he knew that he was watched. Accordingly he accepted the appointment and ostensibly made preparations to depart to Tripoli. At that time he had a house at Arnaukoul on the Bosphorus, and also occupied rooms in Pera. One evening in May about nine years ago, he having paid some visits in the city, instead of going home, went to his rooms in Pera, and carrying a light into his bedroom, pulled down the blind and commenced to go through all the contents of his wardrobe. If he were retiring to rest, taking good care that his shadow should be thrown upon the blind. The police who were watching, carefully noted all this and believed he was safe for the night.

About 1 A. M., however, Kiamil emerged from the house, completely disguised, and was awaiting him in the carriage was a man in a Turkish uniform. The carriage was in waiting, which drove him to a small landing place near to Arnaukoul, where a boat manned by English marines was awaiting him. In this large crowd collected. It was found that a carriage was rowed to the English guardship and three days later was taken to a British steamer bound for London.

STOP MEADOWING SALES

Irish Nationalists Resort to New Form of Violence.

DUBLIN, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—A new form of agrarian violence is reported from County Meath, where recently sales of meadowing on lands covered by the peasantry have been boycotted and intending purchasers have been intimidated. After an abortive sale on the Williamstown estate last week, auctioneers engaged a number of men to cut the meadows in the adjoining property, which is held by the representative body of the Church of Ireland. Monday when they went to work, horns were blown and a large crowd collected. It was found that wire had been laid in some of the meadows, and one of the machines was damaged. The auctioneer withdrew the men before the arrival of the police reinforcements who had been sent for, and the meadows remain uncut.

On Thursday last the same auctioneers attempted a sale of meadowing for the representative church body at Newton, Moynagh, near Trim. Before the day of the sale the local branch of the league passed the following resolution:

"That we call on every one to refuse to take meadows on the church body ranch at the coming auction, and call on every Nationalist in this and the surrounding districts to follow in the footsteps of the brave men of Kilbeg and assemble in force on the day of sale and make a strong protest against the letting."

When the auctioneer arrived to carry out the sale only 10 policemen were present. There were no bidders, and the meadowing remains uncut.

AVERT CLASH ON BORDER

French and German Officers Cool-headed in Serious Emergency.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—War between Germany and France was averted by the coolheadedness of French and German army officers in a dramatic frontier episode which is reported from Lunenburg. Two German army corps are engaged in maneuvers near the border, and yesterday morning a battalion of French Rifles, marching out from Rambergville, approached within 50 yards of the frontier. Suddenly they found themselves face to face with a German regiment which was drawn up at an equal distance on the other side.

The troops stood looking at each other for a moment without uttering a word or giving vent to an explanation, and then their respective commanders simultaneously ordered them to fire round, and they were soon at a prudent distance from each other.

A fine illustration of military discipline was given on both sides, as a cry might have been the signal for serious trouble.

OLD GAME STILL WORKS

Scotland Yard Forced to Warn Against Gold Bricks.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—The Criminal Investigation Department at Scotland Yard has issued another warning against the "gold brick swindle."

Scotland Yard, describing the fraud in its warning, says the scheme "usually begins with a letter addressed to some person of property and lately deceased so that the letter may fall into the hands of the executors expressing gratitude for past kindnesses and stating that the writer has made a valuable discovery of gold and desires to share his good fortune with his benefactor.

This leads to a correspondence between the swindlers and the relatives or executors of the deceased and ultimately, if the story is believed, to the despatch of a messenger, usually to America, to receive the bullion found. When this stage is reached a demand for money is on some pretext or other sprung upon the victim who in the end is generally forced to a very considerable amount by the production of what appears to be bars or bricks of "solid gold."

Recently a number of cases in this ingenious fraud have been known of which the following are a selection:

A widow was about to leave for America with $2,000 for America with the mine but her bankers succeeded in stopping her.

Executors of a Portsmouth man were communicated with by the "gold brick" of New York but they kept clear of the fraud.

A Kingston-on-Thames firm of solicitors reported a case where $125,000 worth of gold was to be shared.

A lady was offered half share in a mine on condition that she paid $35,000 in cash. Her bankers, however, saved her money for upon withdrawing such a large sum, she narrated the story.

A short time ago a case was reported in which a man led for America with a large sum of money to pay to the swindler. His friends discovered the fraud just after he had left and a cablegram saved his money.

DOES NOT STRIKE SUNDAYS

TOWN CLOCK IN ENGLISH RESORT OBEYS BLUE LAW.

Queer Compromises Result From Vote on Rigid Enforcement of Ordinances.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—At Blackpool, a seaside resort not 50 miles from Manchester, the thorny problem of Sunday amusements has been settled with some curious compromises. The question of Sunday trams was put to the vote; the majority of the electors of the borough, which comprises the greater part of the town, voted against Sunday trams, while the majority of the electors of the district council, which governs the smaller part of the town, voted for them. Consequently, anyone who takes a Sunday tram through the borough to the district council area gets a free ride for the greater part of the journey.

Again, public motor-cars are not allowed to ply for hire on Sundays on the Marine Drive, but motor-wagons do so on the promenade. Yachts and rowing boats are not allowed on the marine lake, but excursion steamers and yachts do business at the end of the pier. The strangest compromise is in connection with the municipal open-air band, which now plays on the pier. Some of the songs which are played are sacred and some secular; the music-colored "fair lights" which usually enliven the gardens and boulevards are conspicuously absent; no coffee, chocolates or cigarettes are sold by the attendants, although the programme-boy is still trading; there is no interval, and "God Save the King" is omitted at the end of the performance.

Last Sunday the "Hallelujah Chorus" was substituted, the audience standing in the interval, and "God Save the King" with uncover heads. Finally, the town clock does not strike on Sunday nights.

KING OF SPENDTHRIFTS

English Baronet Rescued From Ruin by Bankruptcy Court.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—Some remarkable stories of extravagance are contained in the report of the Inspector-General in Bankruptcy for 1907. In one case the debtor, a baronet, became anti-social in his habits in 1888, when he was 24. In a short time he was charging his life estate and effecting policies as security for loans until in 18 years he owed £24,000. He was rescued from his debts amounting to over £200,000. The life policies were 373 in number for a total of $2,292,500. To extricate him from his embarrassment relief from Parliament was sought, and an act was passed in 1904 empowering the trustees to buy his life estate and policies, pay his unsecured debts, and make him a salable allowance. His expenses, however, again greatly exceeded his income, and at the date of the receiving order he owed £119,000 unsecured.

In another case the debtor on reaching the age of 28, shortly before his bankruptcy, came into a fortune of $2,235,000, on which, at the date of the receiving order, he had created charges exceeding $2,150,000. A solicitor who failed for $350,000 was the sole representative of a firm of a hundred years' standing. Not content with his professional income, about $500 a year, he speculated heavily on the Stock Exchange. Having squandered his own money and all that he could borrow or that came under his control as solicitor or as trustee, he abandoned. The admitted debts included $355,000 for money misappropriated.

One debtor, on obtaining his majority in 1889, inherited over $1,425,000, subject to certain family charges. On leaving Eton he owed $15,000, and on his 21st birthday his debts amounted to $125,000. His income was $35,000 a year, but he spent $125,000. His failure was due to extravagant living, financing impetuous friends, extortionate rates of interest, and losses on the turf.

TARGET RECORDS ALL HITS

operated by Electricity.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—A new recording electric target has just been perfected by an Australian engineer, Sydney Rose. The falling of the targets at present used is that bullets which strike larger areas of the target are all recorded alike so that the records can only be approximate. The new target gives an electric record of the exact spot at which the bullet hits it. The target is only used once and is then wound up on a roll. As the punctured paper passes over a set of electric fingers a contact is made through the hole which immediately causes the recorder to show where the puncture is located.

Another target, says the Electrical Review, has been perfected by the same engineer for recording the number of volleys practised or rapid firing.

MASK IS TORN OFF

Lord Cromer Hypocritical Toward Age Pensions.

DRAWS BOUNTY HIMSELF

Commoner's Pertinent Question Develops Fact That Majority of Peers Who Opposed Bill Enjoy Government Paps.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—Lord Cromer, it seems, was not in the strongest position to identify himself advantageously with the opposition to the Old Age Pensions bill. Mr. Crook's question in the House of Commons must have been a painful reminder to him of this fact. Mr. Crook suggested that, as Lord Cromer had received a gratuity of £200 a year from the state of £250,000, his pension of £250 a year for the same service should terminate at the same time—1916—as he proposed that the Old Age Pensions bill should cease to operate. The opposition were, of course, horrified at this irreverent to quogue. But it hit the mark all the same, and sheds an appropriate light on Lord Cromer's desire to get as much as he possibly can in the shape of pensions and gratuities out of the state while refusing the aged working people the paltry allowance of £1.25 a week.

It is curious that nearly all the peers who were particularly hostile to old age pensions were themselves pensioners. Lord St. Aldwyn had £90,000 a year political pension until he received his capitalized value in the shape of an arbitration fee in connection with the litigation over the Singapore docks. Lord Balfour of Burleigh is the smaller part of a pension of £6000 a year for so-called services to the state which would not earn him $500 a year from the most generous private employer. Lord Haldane enjoys a pension of £5000 a year, having actually drawn $25,000 in salary from the government during his career.

NEW GOLD REEF IS FOUND

Rich Strike Reported Near Jameson's Sprint, South Africa.

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—It is reported that an important gold discovery has recently been made near the spot where Dr. Jameson had his first skirmish with General Cronje at the time of his famous raid. Encouraged by the discovery of two prospectors in the neighborhood, a syndicate recently acquired some 50 claims, embracing the whole of the ground from Jameson's sprint to the Zeerust Railway line, and systematic and intelligent search has brought to light a reef, believed to be the West Reef, which yields surprisingly good assay values.

Samples taken from the top shows that the casing is of sandstone, with a body of quartzite. There is visible free gold in the hanging wall, and the panning of samples taken haphazardly from different parts has yielded good results. The reef is now fully exposed, and has been traced over the property, and the assays made by one of the experts of the Randfontein estates justify the optimism of the members of the syndicate, who believe they have "struck it rich," and that the small man with his pickaxe can make the ground yield handsome returns.

OPEN NEW RUBBER FIELD

Belgian Capitalists Get Concessions in Angola From Portugal.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—There is about to be a new development in the supply of rubber. The Portuguese province of Angola, though rich in forests of the rubber tree, is a source of annual loss to the government of Portugal, owing chiefly to failure of capital to work the forests, and the formidable competition of the Congo. The Portuguese government has determined to make an effort to secure something from the great riches in rubber of Angola. It has accordingly accepted the offer of a group of Belgian capitalists who have applied for a concession to work the district of Lunda, the richest part of Angola, and situated on the border of the Congo.

The Belgian financiers offer to halve the profits with the Portuguese government, and further pledge themselves to export all their rubber by the port of Lunda.

PEOPLE QUEER MIXTURE

Macedonia Potpourri of All Nations of Orient.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—It will be interesting to see the results of the vote in Macedonia under the new Turkish constitution, if the boon ever spreads so far. For no one knows how the population of that blessed province is made up. A Serbian newspaper says that there are 990,000 Servians in it, 180,000 Albanians, 75,000 Turks, 47,000 Greeks and 10,000 Jews; whereas a Greek paper coolly declares that there are 600,000 Greeks, 250,000 Albanians, 150,000 Turks, 30,000 Servians and 5000 Jews, and if the Bulgarians had the counting the results would be still more extraordinary.

The solution of the Macedonian question is like the one propounded in the United States many years ago for use between the Irish and the negroes: every Servian should kill a Greek, and be hung for it.

Princess Good Democrat.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Special.)—During her latest impromptu visit to the Franco-British Exhibition, the Princess of Wales went for a pond-side trip off the lake. Among the other passengers was a man who, unaware of the Princess's identity, carried on a lengthy conversation with her, at the same time puffing away contentedly at a large briar pipe. Her Royal Highness chatted amicably with the stranger and seemed thoroughly to appreciate the opportunity of a discussion which was not "toned down" to the extent it would have been had the stranger known with whom he was conversing.
