

KRYPTOK INVISIBLE BIFOCAL LENSES

THE GREATEST DISCOVERY OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

After 50 years of time and labor spent by most expert lens-grinders of the world in trying to perfect a lens that would give two foci in one without any prismatic effects or spherical aberration, it was left to science to step in and supply the needed lens.

Do you understand the great blessing that this invention has been to glass-wearers? It means a saving of thousands of eyes, for more eyes are injured by badly-constructed lenses than in any other way. By allowing yourself to be fitted by incompetent Opticians, who know nothing of the process of constructing the lenses you wear, you are laying your eyesight liable to injuries which, when once sustained, can never be undone.

KRYPTOK LENSES are being worn by thousands of glass-wearers, and are being recommended by all the leading Oculists as the most beneficial lens for the sight that the world has ever known.

KRYPTOK LENSES are very neat in appearance, and can be worn by the most delicate eye, as the annoying features of the old-style bifocal have been entirely done away with.

KRYPTOK LENSES are the only achromatic eyeglass or spectacle lenses in the world.

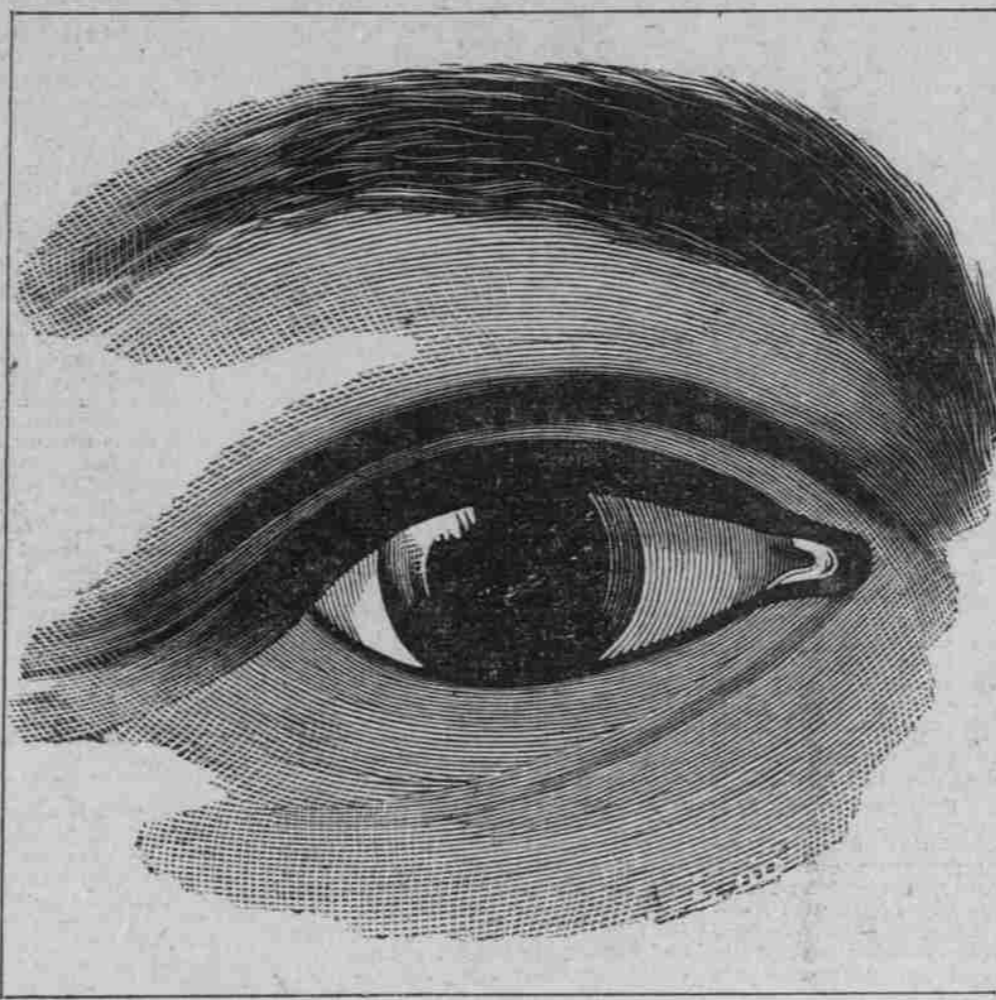

KRYPTOK LENSES can be fitted ONLY BY EXPERT Oculists and Opticians, who understand the construction of the lens, as well as the eye.

KRYPTOK LENSES require the most skilled lens-grinders that the country affords.

When you get KRYPTOKS you get the best. There are none just as good.

KRYPTOK LENSES cost ten times more to construct than the old-style bifocals.

KRYPTOK QUALITY means the best quality.

Thousands of dollars have been spent to perfect KRYPTOK LENSES.

The manufacturer does not make one-tenth the profits on KRYPTOK LENSES that are made on the old-style, imperfect bifocal lenses. When you get the KRYPTOK LENS you get your money's worth.

Sight is more precious than gold. Then why neglect it when you can get KRYPTOK LENSES, the greatest invention of the 20th century? They relieve tired and weak eyes. Will make poor eyes good eyes, and keep them good. KRYPTOK LENSES have revolutionized the optical business of the world.

Your sight is worth as much to you as a King's sight is to him. KRYPTOK LENSES are within the reach of all. You will spend more money in three years buying poor lenses than the KRYPTOK LENSES, the best of all, will cost you. Sight is injured by the use of poorly-constructed lenses. KRYPTOK LENSES are scientifically constructed, and will add to your appearance. Poorly-constructed lenses make you look old.

Our past record speaks for itself. We are the largest optical house west of the Mississippi River, and control the exclusive rights for the sale of KRYPTOK LENSES in this city. We deem the KRYPTOK LENS of such importance to wearers of glasses that we feel it our duty to more fully acquaint them with this wonderful lens.

For the purpose of introducing these lenses more fully we will sell them for a week only for $8.00 to $13.00 per pair, including mountings or frames. KRYPTOK LENSES can be fitted to your mountings or frames.

Read the testimonials of thousands of KRYPTOK wearers, furnished upon request.

EYES EXAMINED COLUMBIAN OPTICAL CO. EYES EXAMINED
 133 SIXTH STREET, OREGONIAN BUILDING
 DENVER OMAHA KANSAS CITY SALT LAKE DALLAS, TEXAS

SOME SPECULATIONS AS TO AIMS AND STATUS OF SENATOR JONATHAN BOURNE OF OREGON

Indications That Studied Cultivation of Taft Is Calculated to Forfeid Against Senator Finding Himself Out in Cold, Politically.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Aug. 28.—Nearly six weeks ago Senator Bourne, like the Arab, packed his trunks and silently stole away. He had announced that he was going to Bar Harbor for a rest, but he turned up at Hot Springs, Va., the summer headquarters of William H. Taft, and he has remained there ever since. From the day of his arrival up to the present he has thrown himself as much as possible in the company of Mr. Taft, both by night and by day, and much of the time, in fact most of the time, he has been the only Senator on the premises.

Private advices from Hot Springs state that Mr. Bourne plays golf with Mr. Taft almost daily; that he gives and attends coaching parties, and is frequently a guest at dinner with the Taft family. Between times Mr. Bourne interviews himself, and tells how Taft is steadily gaining in strength. These interviews are passed around to the corps of newspaper correspondents on the ground, but it is apparent that the interviews do not get beyond Hot Springs, for the correspondents on that job are mostly Washington men, and Washington newspaper correspondents had more than their fill of Bourne interviews during the past winter and spring. Nevertheless, the interviews continue to appear almost daily, and are religiously consigned to the waste baskets.

Time Alters Viewpoint.
 The manner in which Senator Bourne is now cultivating Mr. Taft is in marked contrast to his attitude toward him prior to the Chicago convention. In those days when the Senator was pumping air into the deflated "second elective term" boom, Mr. Taft was a weakling; a creature of corporate wealth; a puppet, ready to dance at the signal from Wall street; he was so weak that Bryan could defeat him without half a struggle. Suddenly Mr. Taft undergoes a great change, and instead of a weakling, he becomes a tower of strength; popular with the masses; the foe of special interests, and the one man who is going to defeat Bryan. This is all from the Bourne point of view.

But through it all Mr. Taft has not changed. It is Senator Bourne who has changed. Taft is no greater today than he was six months ago, but Senator Bourne, having lost one idol, has inspected Taft at close range, and decided to "tie up with him" if possible. When Senator Bourne believed or pretended to believe that there was a chance of renominating Roosevelt, he could see no good in Secretary Taft; now that Taft is nominated and on the road to election, and Roosevelt is preparing to take to the African jungles, the Senator has found the nominee quite as good a man as Roosevelt, and has turned all attention to him.

Some Possible Considerations.
 No one can speak Senator Bourne's mind but himself, and no one can authoritatively say why the Senator has changed his colors, but there are several things that might be considered by way of speculation.

First, there is the question of patronage, dear to the heart of every Senator. When Taft becomes President, Mr. Bourne will have a Democratic colleague, if his primary law holds good. That means that Chamberlain will have no voice in the naming of Federal officials in Oregon. The Oregon delegation, however, has an arrangement whereby the entire delegation is to be consulted about Federal appointments in the state, every member to have equal voice with each of his colleagues. That agreement, of course, holds good only to the 4th of March next. The agreement did not work out to the satisfaction of the delegation for reasons which need no further elaboration. Nevertheless, under that agreement, two representatives, who have been re-elected, were obliged to make concessions they would not have made had the agreement not been in force; they gave up patronage that would otherwise have belonged absolutely to them.

Now Senator Bourne wants to abrogate that agreement, and the Congressmen and Senator Fulton want to keep it in force. If Fulton is eliminated, Bourne will have to fight it out with the Congressmen, and he has no chance of success. If he had this in mind when he went to Hot Springs, for after all it will be with the President to accept such recommendations as he chooses; it will not be incumbent upon him to hearken to the Congressmen unless he so chooses.

Fulton in Line for Preferment.
 This patronage matter also has another phase. While Senator Bourne was antagonizing Taft, Senator Fulton was doing his utmost to bring about Taft's nomination. He was one of the first Senators to declare for Taft, and one of the hardest laborers in the Taft camp. At Chicago he took prominent part in the work of the Taft people. Since the convention he has been devoting much of his time to Taft's interests in Oregon. It was rumored that Fulton, even though defeated for the Senate, would have a voice in the selection of Federal officers for the state—a sort of reward for his efforts. This report reached the ears of Senator Bourne, and it is quite possible it made an impression.

Virtue of Standing In.
 Then there is another thing that might be considered. A Senator from a Western state, to make a hit, must "stand in" with the administration. The penalty for antagonizing the administration is severe, as demonstrated in Kansas, North and South Dakota, where three anti-Roosevelt Senators have recently been defeated. Mr. Bourne's term will expire with the administration of Mr. Taft—that is, the first administration of Mr. Taft. There is every reason to expect Mr. Taft and his policies and his administration to be popular in the West. Therefore, it behooves a Western Senator to be on good terms with the administration, rather than antagonistic. A practical politician would so view it.

Another consideration. Oregon sent an instructed Taft delegation to Chicago, and unless the Statement No. 1 bugaboo works havoc in the state, Oregon will line up for Taft in November. Without the primary law there would be no doubt where Oregon would stand in the general election. It, therefore, behooves a United States Senator, especially a Senator from a Western state, to get in line with public sentiment among his constituents.

This Is Unpardonable Sin.
 Still another consideration. Senator Bourne has publicly declared, in an authorized interview, that he advocates the election of Chamberlain to the Senate. The United States Senate forgives its members much, but it does not forgive a Republican for advocating and aiding in the election of a Democratic member of that body, and particularly when the Democrat comes from a state overwhelmingly Republican, and where the Legislature is overwhelmingly Republican. The Senate has no regard for the Oregon primary law; it looks upon it as "fool business," and for that reason the man responsible for that law, and the most enthusiastic advocate of its strict enforcement is not adding to his popularity at the Capitol by urging the election of Chamberlain. But a Republican Senator, in a Republican administration, must stand in somewhere. Why not with the President, if he is an outcast in the Senate?

Last summer Senator Bourne cultivated President Roosevelt by remaining in Washington after all other Senators had left; this summer he is cultivating Taft in like manner. When Senator Fulton retires, it is very natural that Senator Bourne should want him to occupy a back seat. Fulton is close to Taft; the way to obliterate him is to get closer to Taft. During the next four years all blessings in the way of patronage must come from Cocunut oil is the strongest competitor of cottonseed oil.

STAR TO OPEN NEXT WEEK

"Hooligan in New York" to Be Inaugural Bill.

Bourne's Advice Ignored.
 Senator Bourne went to Hot Springs declaring that "residuary legateeship" was to be the paramount issue in this year's campaign. He urged Taft to declare, in his speech of acceptance, that he would not undertake to name his successor. His advice was ignored. It is also noticed that not since that speech has Senator Bourne said a word about residuary legateeship; Bryan has not found it in any value as a campaign issue and the so-called issue has followed the "second elective term" bugaboo to a "mouldering grave." Let it be noted that Senator Bourne is no longer giving utterance to sentiments not approved by Taft. He has his reasons. He has not stated them. So the public must make its own guess.

Cocunut oil is the strongest competitor of cottonseed oil.

STAR TO OPEN NEXT WEEK

"Hooligan in New York" to Be Inaugural Bill.

"Hooligan in New York," a melodramatic comedy drama, will be seen at the Star Theater the week of September 4. It is said to tell a constant story and is as full of laughs and tears as any ever staged. The author, Sam Morris, has taken for his theme the incidents made famous in cartoons of "Hooligan" and has woven around the character a story of metropolitan life that is unique in the manner of handling and presentation. Any story that deals with the mysteries of New York life has a peculiar element of interest in it. In spite of the newspapers, the police courts and the city authorities, hundreds of crimes are committed that are never heard of, hundreds of dramas in real life are enacted proving that truth is sometimes more strange than fiction. Here and there in the newspapers you may see a paragraph that puzzles you. Could you solve the mystery, you might tell a story of human passion and interest, of love and hate, as strange as any evolved by a dramatist. Such a story is "Hooligan in New York" and the author has not gone far afield in plot and situation to tell his tale. The scene is laid among the Tenderloin places of Gotham and some of the equally notorious landmarks of the seamy lower East Side, which includes the once-dreaded Five Points, a Chinese opium den, Cherry street at night, showing a view of the Brooklyn Bridge illuminated, and a thieves' den, exterior of the Tombs prison and the historic Bridge of Sighs. Of course Hooligan is the central figure of it all and thwarting of the villains in their efforts to injure and obtain the fortune of Nellie, a blind girl, is laughable at times and at others equally sensational and exciting. A stirring climax is the rescue of Hooligan, who has been tied to a rail on the New York Central Railroad track, in the nick of time by his dog Flip just as a train is approaching.

The character of Hooligan is a creation of the newspaper supplements and his transition to the stage has scored a ## big hit everywhere. The supporting company is a large and capable one and numerous specialties are introduced throughout the various acts. The preview will be popular.

Caught Between Two Autos.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 28.—General Charles E. Manderson, formerly general counsel for the Burlington Railroad, was dangerously hurt in an automobile accident last night. In attempting to avoid one automobile, he was run into by another. His buggy was overturned and he was thrown to the pavement. His extreme age has made the shock serious.

Will Celebrate Labor Day.

RAINIER, Or., Aug. 28.—(Special)—Labor Day will be appropriately observed in this city. The sports will include baseball, foot races and cart races by the firemen. The celebration will be under the auspices of the Rainier fire department. All the business houses and sawmills near here will be closed for the day.

For Convalescents

There Is Nothing Better Than a Glass of Pure, Cold, Sparkling

GAMBRINUS

Such a beer is especially beneficial to one with impaired health, for its gentle tonic properties stimulate and aid digestion, create an appetite and help to build sturdy strength. It helps to produce sound, healthful sleep and makes red blood. Drinkers of GAMBRINUS are not only among those who wish to get well, but among the thousands of sturdy, sensible persons who want to KEEP WELL; for it costs less than to have the doctor call.

2 DOZEN PINTS $2.00      1 DOZEN QUARTS $1.75
 25c the dozen for bottles when returned.      40c the dozen for bottles when returned.

Phone Main 41      Gambrinus Brewing Company      Portland, Oregon
A 1149