START WORK ON FLOATS

TRACKS BEING LAID TO MANUFACTURERS' BUILDING.

Canvass for Rose Festival Funds More Successful Than Last Year and Great Show is Assured.

President Josselyn, of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, announced yesterday that a crew of men from the construction department had already been set at work to lay the tracks from the Willamette Heights line, beginning at Twenty-fourth and Vaughn streets, out to the Manufacturers' Building, the Lewis and Clark fairgrounds, which is to be used as the "den" for the construction of the Rose Festival electrical floats, 14 in number.

These are the floats which are to appear in the most imposing street pageant ever undertaken or devised in the Northwest, if not on the Pacific Coast, for the list will include one more than has ever been shown in the most elaborate of the Los Angeles floral fiestas. About one-fourth of a mile of track will be laid by the street railway company within the next 30 days, and several switches, together with four or five tracks, will be built inside the spacious manufacturers' pavilion, where these set pieces are to be designed and constructed by George Soule & Son, the firm which for the past 20 years has been building the electrical floats of the Mardi Gras celebrations at New Orleans. George Soule, the veteran float-builder, who has the honor of having constructed more of these artistic pieces than any other man in the world, will arrive in Portland some time in the early part of February, after he has finished his work for the next Mardi Gras, and will begin at once designing the floats for the streetcar pageantry for the Rose Festival.

The Portland Railway, Light & Power Company has agreed to furnish 16 cars, stripped down, to be used as beds for the floats, and within the next two or three weeks, after the special track has been completed, these cars will be run out to the Manufacturers' Building and made ready for the superstructures.

It is worth while to mention the fact that no float "den" ever brought into service by any similar organization has the space for constructive work that this particular edifice has. It is 240 feet in length and 150 in width, and will give ample room for laying the several streetcar tracks needed, as well as for accommodating the floats while under construction.

The quiet campaign of the Rose Festival, which has been going on for the past few weeks, has proved to be more effective than the canvass undertaken a year ago. More money has been pledged up to date this year with less than one-third of the city covered than was secured for the whole general festival fund of last year. There is now about $25,000 subscribed or in sight, and money is being added to the fund every day. No announcements have been made, with but few notable exceptions, of the amounts that have been contributed, and none will be made until the canvass is completed.

Several large gifts from sources that are regarded as unexpected have been promised, and will be published with the completed lists, and at the same time the canvassing committees will continue their work until the entire downtown business district has been raked over. Following this, the residence districts on both sides of the river will be attacked, and the hunt for dollars will not be given up until every bit of coin that can be enlisted in behalf of the magnificent demonstration has been safely stowed away in the strong box of the Festival. Immediately thereafter the management will begin to lay plans for the detailed celebration for the entire week of the Festival, June 7 to 12 inclusive, for it will know how much money it will have to expend.

Clan Macleay's New Headquarters.

Clan Macleay will in future hold its meetings on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month in Foresters' hall, in the Marquand building. The clan has leased the hall for every Wednesday night and has already rented the quarters to the St. Andrew's Society for the third Wednesday. They will consequently be available to other organizations on the remaining Wednesdays. The membership of Clan Macleay has been largely increased during the past few months. A schedule of interesting entertainments has been prepared for the Winter season.
