VICTORY WON BY HAYTIAN REBELS

Cyriaque's Army Routed and Simon Is Advancing on Capital.

ALEXIS WILL HEAD ARMY

President to Lead Veterans Against Rebels—American and French Ships Calm Foreigners' Fears and May Land Men.

PORT AU PRINCE, Nov. 28.—Government troops under command of General Celestin Cyriaque, Minister of War, composed largely of young recruits, who were sent out to capture the leader of the new revolution, General Antoine Simon, have met with a severe defeat. The engagement took place at Anseaveau, which lies about 55 miles to the east of Jeremie, one of the disaffected ports. After severe fighting, the government forces were routed and driven back to Miragoane, about 20 miles distant.

President Will Take Field.

Miragoane is about 20 miles from Port au Prince. It is reported that General Cyriaque has taken refuge in the German consulate there. Some of the wounded were brought to Port au Prince by the Hytian gunboat Centenaire.

President Nord Alexis, who has always shown confidence in the ability of the soldiers to suppress the revolutionary movement, has decided to take the offensive with three divisions of disciplined troops, which have been concentrated here.

The United States cruiser Tacoma under command of Captain John Hood, and the French training-ship Duguy have arrived here and this has quieted the foreign residents.

Warships to Guard Capital.

Reports are current that the revolutionary army is marching upon Port au Prince, but even if these reports are true, a considerable time must elapse before it arrives. The residents have shown no signs of excitement, but the diplomatic corps has decided to prevent the entry of the revolutionists for the purpose of pillage by having forces landed from the warships here.

TO KILL STATEMENT NO. 1

Writer Tells Why He Voted for Mr. Chamberlain as Senator.

MYRTLE POINT, Or., Nov. 27.—(To the Editor.)—I read with great interest the letter of Hon. George H. Williams, as published in last Saturday's Oregonian, in relation to the subject of the ante-election pledge known as Statement No. 1. In that letter he says, and truly, that he did not question the right of the people to express at the polls their preference for United States Senator. Now, the question arises, did the result of the election of last June give an expression of preference as to United States Senator? It certainly was not in my case, and perhaps there are others who were influenced by the same impulse.

Of course, Statement No. 1 was obnoxious and I could only employ one method of defeating that particular policy, and that was to vote for Mr. Chamberlain to defeat Mr. Cake, and then vote for anti-Statement No. 1 candidates to defeat Mr. Chamberlain in the Legislature. This may appear to be a heroic remedy for a desperate disease and may prove futile. Nevertheless, I could employ no other method to defeat Statement No. 1.

WOOLMEN HAVE PROTEST

Declare Reserve Boundaries Work Injustice on Flockmasters.

BAKER CITY, Or., Nov. 28.—(Special.)—Probably the best meeting that has been held by the Baker-Union-Grant Counties Woolgrowers' Association came to a close here this evening about 9 o'clock. The attendance was large and the wool men entered into many questions with a will that showed their intention of making themselves heard. Forest Ranger Black, of Halfway, was here to represent the department.

Included among the resolutions passed this evening was a recommendation that the reserve lines between Baker and Wallowa Counties be investigated by the department because of apparent injustice in boundaries and apportionment of sheep permitted. The contention between sheepmen and cattlemen was also covered by resolution, the association asking that lines between the two be reconsidered. Those in attendance unanimously asked that the next Legislature pass a state law making it a misdemeanor for a sheepherder to leave his band without due cause and without giving the owner sufficient notice.

A strong resolution was adopted asking Congress not to change the tariff on wool, stating if the tariff is lowered sheepmen of Eastern Oregon will be forced into bankruptcy.

EXPOSES SELFISH SCHEME

Says if Elected Mr. Chamberlain Would Only Represent Himself.

PORTLAND, Or., Nov. 28.—(To the Editor.)—Much has been said recently, especially in Oregon, about the corrupt method of selecting or electing United States Senators.

There is no man with a fair and impartial mind, and no one who knows the facts as they are but would say that the last method of political engineering which is being attempted is the most low and contemptible scheme that has ever been hatched out by any human mind. Think of it, a man who has no other desire or ambition than to have the fame of being a United States Senator and to parade the halls and promenades at Washington, D. C., disguised in a garb of "people's choice," and who, in fact, is an exponent of the lowest scheme ever perpetrated upon the well-meaning people of Oregon, is a disgrace to our intelligence. A man who has watched the methods and performances of "Our George," and one who would not otherwise raise his voice but for the reason that the above-mentioned methods and performances are getting so rank, notorious and rotten as to impair the future welfare of our fair state, will protest to the uttermost the furtherance of such unscrupulous schemes.

As a voter, I protest against the sending of George E. Chamberlain to the United States Senate. His methods, previous to the primary election, were so defiling and raw, so polluted with corruption, that they dishearten the most loyal citizen. What will become of our courts and laws and our Nation if such influences have their sway, as they already have to some extent, such as the "honey-bulldozing," the "Chamberlain smile" and the meaningless but misleading phrases such as "Shall the people rule," the "people's choice," etc.? It is time for us to look through the man into his heart and not at his deceitful smiles. It is time for us not to be influenced by a wagonload of perjured affidavits accompanied with a lot of vulgar noise. Let us find out the intent of this smile and the cause of this noise. When we do that, the noise will cease, the smiles will decrease, and the petty grafting politician, with his "Shall the people rule" and the "people's choice," etc., banners, will have to resort to other means of livelihood. Then our courts, laws and Nation will be respected and our loyal citizens will again take heart. E. M.

SETTLER WINS HIS CASE

TITLE IS UPHELD TO SILETZ TIMBER CLAIM.

Ruling of Portland Office Is Reversed in Favor of Squatter on Valuable Tract.

An important decision has been rendered at Washington, D. C., by S. V. Proudfit, Acting Commissioner of the General Land Office, respecting the rights of settlers who have squatted on unsurveyed timber land which is sought to be acquired by other interests subsequently by the application of scrip thereon. The case decided is that of Robert M. Wonderly against the Northern Pacific Company and the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company. A copy of the decision yesterday reached A. W. Lafferty, a local attorney, who appeared for Wonderly and is also counsel for nearly a score of other settlers who have similar cases pending before the General Land Office.

Early in 1900 Wonderly and several other residents of Falls City, Polk County, each squatted on a quarter section of unsurveyed timber land just outside the Siletz Indian Reservation and made the necessary improvements, intending to file on the land as a homestead as soon as the survey could be had and approved. On June 6, 1900, a few months after the settlers located on the land, the same claims were selected by the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company with Northern Pacific scrip. The settlers made repeated efforts to have the land surveyed, but this service was not performed until 1904 and has never been approved.

Becoming disgusted with the delay in securing action on the survey which was necessary before the land could be filed on as homesteads, Wonderly and his associates instituted contest proceedings against the railroad company and the Weyerhaeuser interests, resisting the application of the lieu selection list by which the Weyerhaeusers sought to seize the property. The case was tried before the officials of the Portland Land Office and was decided in favor of the railroad company, but Wonderly appealed to the General Land Office, and in the decision of the Acting Commissioner the ruling of the local officials has been reversed.

The Acting Commissioner holds that unsurveyed timber lands cannot be seized by the use of scrip where prior to the date the scrip is offered the land has been settled on by a bona fide settler, regardless of whether or not the claim subsequently should be abandoned. Under this ruling all that Wonderly and his associates will have to do to acquire the land is to remain on the premises until the survey has been approved and then file on the same under the homestead law and complete the necessary proof. The claim for which Wonderly is contending is worth about $15,000. Wonderly has been living on the land and making some improvements annually since he first squatted on it in 1900.

SCANDAL GROWS IN STEINHEIL CASE

Every Detail of Faure's Dying Days Revealed in Paris.

WOMAN'S LATEST LOVER

Protesting at Disgrace of Exposure, He Tells of Intrigue With Charmer—More Exposures Threatened by Dreyfusards.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—The Steinheil case continues to be the sensation of the hour in all France. No one ventures to say where the revelations will end. The political side looms larger and larger every day and the interest harks back always to the tragic death in Paris in 1899 of Felix Faure, President of France. M. Faure died in the midst of the Dreyfus excitement.

The most minute details of the scene in the room where he expired in the company of Mme. Steinheil are flagrantly published by even the Republican newspapers. Up to the present time this incident in the career of Mme. Steinheil has only been referred to covertly. The royalist and anti-Dreyfus organs are demanding an official investigation into the death of M. Faure and intimate openly that M. Faure, as the insuperable obstacle to the leaders of the Dreyfus agitation, was murdered as the outcome of a plot. They have put forward the old allegation that M. Faure intended to yield to the petitions of the Dreyfusards and sign an order for the revision of the case, and that consequently he was poisoned.

The only reason to believe that M. Faure did not die a natural death is found in the fact that his body decomposed with unusual rapidity and to offset this, there are statements of seven of the best known physicians of Paris, who certified that he died of cerebral hemorrhage.

Letters Given Up After Death.

The other story that Madame Steinheil was present when he passed away seems to be true, and great regret is expressed that circumstances have now compelled the disclosure to the world of this old scandal, which the Faure family and the friends of the former President thought was buried with his body.

That the letters containing evidence of M. Faure's relations with Mme. Steinheil were surrendered after his death probably is true, but the idea that these communications contained compromising statements was rejected by all who were behind the scenes at the time.

With regard to the murder of Madame Steinheil's husband and mother, the net is drawing closer and closer around the wife. Scores of romantic affairs with persons of note in political and artistic circles are coming to light, and they prove what a remarkable woman she was. She is now called "the charmer of men." Her salon was dazzlingly brilliant.

Latest Lover Is Frantic.

Her last lover, in whose eyes she declared she wanted to justify herself, has now been discovered, and his identity furnishes a clew to a motive for the crime. He is a rich widower, and resides in a famous chateau near Mezeirs, in the Department of the Ardennes. He is not implicated in the crime. When seen by a journalist, this man, who is the father of three children, protested frantically at the disgrace that the exposure would bring. He said he was ready to commit suicide, but nevertheless he made a clean breast of his relations with Mme. Steinheil. He described how he had met her at a reception at the Steinheil's. The gathering was a distinguished one.

He soon got into the habit of meeting her at the "Green Lodge," a villa at Bellevue, which Mme. Steinheil rented under the name of Mme. Prevost. Marietta Wolff, the cook whose son was accused by Mme. Steinheil of being guilty of the murders, lived at the lodge and was her mistress' confidante. This was early last year.

Exquisite Idyll, He Says.

For a month it was an "exquisite idyll," said this man in describing the episode. "Mme. Steinheil said she adored me, and at each meeting she made new avowals and swore I was the only lover she had ever had.

"She told me of her past," the widower continued to the newspaper men, "and denied this gossip of her relations with other men. She insisted particularly that the Faure story was a legend, and said she could prove that she was home ill at the time of M. Faure's death. She admitted, however, that she hated her husband, and said he led an 'infamous existence.' She detested her mother also for having forced her to marry Steinheil. She assured me that she would get a divorce and marry me."

Woman Still Pursued Him.

Continuing his explanation, this man related how the scales gradually fell from his eyes. When the spell was broken he returned home. Mme. Steinheil, however, continued to pursue him and telephoned him every day. On the morning of the crime she called him up by long-distance telephone, but the wire was not working well, and he could barely understand what she said. Finally she exclaimed:

"I am satisfied, for I have heard your voice; that is enough for me." The next day, when he learned of the murders, he suspected the truth and came to Paris. He saw Mme. Steinheil and told her never to see him again until she had cleared herself.

The prevailing belief in Paris today is that Mme. Steinheil deliberately had her husband and mother assassinated.

Trying to Explode Magazine.

The police developments of the political side of the case can best be likened to a powder magazine, and the Dreyfusards are moving heaven and earth to explode it, absolutely regardless of the National scandal that may result. M. Berrey, Conservative, gave notice in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon that he intended to present an interpellation on the matter. The sensational afternoon papers are filled with the wildest rumors and the most minute details.

May Stifle Further Inquiry.

It has been predicted already that Mme. Steinheil will be declared crazy and locked up in an asylum and that in this manner all the further proceedings will be stifled. As a matter of fact, the experts agree that she is today a nervous wreck, even if she were responsible at the time of the crime.

Several newspapers pretend to know the name of the assassin of Steinheil and Mme. Japy, as well as that of his accomplice.

Late this afternoon the widower who admitted that he was the last lover of Mme. Steinheil, came into Paris and voluntarily told his story to M. Andre, the examining magistrate. The name of this man has not yet been disclosed.

ISSUE EDICT FOR SACRIFICE

Ascension of Pu Yi to Be Marked With Elaborate Ceremonies.

PEKIN, Nov. 28.—An edict was issued today ordering the necessary sacrifices preparatory to the ceremonies of December 2 to mark the ascensions to the throne of the infant emperor, Pu Yi. Another edict of today fixes the beginning of the Hsun Hsuang Tung era (the reign of Pu Yi) for New Year's day and sets forth that Pu Yi makes his ascension to the throne immediately because having received this great responsibility from Kuang Hsu, the late Emperor, he must lose no time in undertaking it.

Raid Chinese Gambling Joints.

That Chinese gambling continues unabated was evidenced last night by the discovery by Detectives Hyde, Craddock and Johnson of a fantan game at 130 Second street. The officers raided the place and secured as prisoners three Chinese, giving the names of John Hung, Jim Sam and Young Wa. The detectives could find only $1 in money on the table and this was taken as evidence. The customary $50 bail was asked of each. It was secured and the prisoners were released.

Stephenson, now of Pittsburg, Pa. Three years later Rev. W. W. Logan, now of Los Angeles, was made pastor. The present pastor, Rev. A. W. Wilson, came to Portland five years ago from Brooklyn, N. Y. The congregation at the present time has a membership of 170.

MORE TOLD BY BOY

Monmouth Postoffice Robbery Fastened on Johns' Gang.

ANOTHER MEMBER SOUGHT

Police Say His Arrest Will Cause Sensation—Boy Now in Custody Leads Officers to Cache, but Plunder Is Stolen.

Additional confessions were made Friday by the boy Gus Johnson, now in the City Jail, held as a partner in crime of the gang of safeblowers headed by C. A. Johns, which virtually established that this gang of robbers was also guilty of the postoffice robbery at Monmouth, Or. The police have kept the lad apart from his confederates and plied him with every conceivable question. The boy admitted that the gang was in Monmouth, but having become frightened at his previous disclosures, maintained that he did not know what was done there.

Following his admissions of yesterday morning, Postoffice Inspector E. C. Clement left Portland early yesterday for Monmouth to make some important investigations in this case. Before going he called at the City Jail and had photographs taken of Johns and Lloyd, which he took with him with the hope of having them identified in Monmouth. Before leaving he said that he had sufficient evidence now in hand to be sure that the Federal authorities would charge this gang with blowing the postoffice safe in Monmouth.

A sensational development yesterday was the fact that the police are searching for another member of the gang whose identity has not been made public, but who is said to be a resident of Portland and prominently connected. It is known on reliable authority that this man's arrest will cause a sensation.

The robbers' cache was located yesterday morning through the confession of Lloyd, who led the police to a deserted old powder-house in South Portland, beyond Fulton, near an old tannery. Here some of the jewelry which was taken from the safe at Nyssa was recovered, but it was also discovered that someone had discovered the hiding place and taken much loot. The police hold the theory that the missing member of the gang visited the place and removed the valuables. Lloyd would not give a detailed statement of what this cache contained, so the belief is also entertained that another hiding place may be brought to light.

By the confession made yesterday by the Johnson boy, it is shown that Johns has few masters as a cracksman. On the night the safe was blown in Nyssa he made his own nitroglycerin with cool deliberateness within the outskirts of the town. He took his own dynamite with him and, building a fire, boiled the explosive. After boiling it the necessary length of time he skimmed off from the top what the "yeggmen" call the "soup." With this he quickly repaired to the store, jimmied open the door, entered, bored the safe, placed the charge and fired it, all alone. The others kept watch on the outside.

Late last night Sheriff Robert O'Dell, of Malheur County, accompanied by City Marshal D. H. Kerfoot, of Ontario, Or., arrived in Portland. The Sheriff had warrants for the arrest of the trio now in the City Jail, and, accompanied by Detective Coleman, interviewed the prisoners. The men were all identified by Marshal Kerfoot, who saw them on the night they took the train in Ontario.

They made known for the first time last night that this band had stolen a horse and buggy from J. D. Lee, of Nyssa, on the night they opened the safe. In it they drove to Ontario and made their escape. The rig was not recovered until several days later.

At the time the prisoners were first placed in the City Jail they engaged Attorney John Logan, and Chief of Police Gritzmacher permitted the attorney to get $100 of the money which was found in their possession as his retaining fee. It has since developed that this money was part of the proceeds of the Monmouth robbery. The Federal authorities criticise the chief of police for having allowed it to pass out of his possession.

The disposition of the prisoners, whether they will go back for trial in Malheur County or whether they will be turned over to the Federal authorities will probably be brought up and settled this morning.

Detectives Coleman and Smith, to whose clever deductive ability is due the fact that the men were run down and placed behind the bars are receiving congratulations for having made one of the few captures of the year which has helped raise the odium of inefficiency from the shoulders of Portland's detective department.

JOSEPH BUCHTEL IS 78

Pioneer Citizen Celebrates His Birthday Anniversary.

Joseph Buchtel, a well-known pioneer, last Sunday celebrated his 78th birthday, at his residence on East Second and East Hoyt streets. Many friends called during the day and paid their respects to the pioneer citizen. Mr. Buchtel came to Oregon in 1852, arriving in Portland September 27 of that year. He opened a daguerreotype business in Portland, Oregon City and Astoria, and took the first photographs in this city. He served as Sheriff of Multnomah County, was twice Chief of the Volunteer Fire Department and also Chief of the paid department. In 1866 he organized the Pioneer baseball club, and was manager and pitcher for 15 years. With others Mr. Buchtel started the movement for the erection of the first bridge across the Willamette River and built the first streetcar line on the East Side. With Captain George A. Pease and Jacob Kamm, Mr. Buchtel is the only known surviving member of Multnomah Lodge No. 1, A. F. and A. M., organized at Oregon City in 1853.
