THOMAS THOMPSON.

No fewer than half a thousand of my friends have asked me the reason why the COLUMBIA WOOLEN MILLS COMPANY is closing out its business, hence the following explanation:

The present company was organized 3 1/2 years ago. Since that time it has grown to enormous proportions. Now it is the largest tailoring establishment in the Northwest. This company employs more tailors, buys more cloth and makes more suits, overcoats and raincoats than any company from the Mexican to the Canadian line. Realizing, however, the tremendous demand for ready-made clothing and furnishings for gentlemen, the best method of combining these two departments for tailor-made clothing was sought. It has resulted in the organization of a new company, to be known as the SALEM WOOLEN MILLS CLOTHING COMPANY. Incorporation papers have been filed, and the new company is perfected. Beginning the first day of March, the succeeding company will take the field. All-wool, ready-made clothing will be the leading specialty. A complete line of furnishing goods will be purchased, and the tailoring business will also be maintained. As in the past, the new company will perpetuate the policy of the old, THE BEST THERE IS AT THE LOWEST PRICES. This seemingly unusual move is the result of constant urging on the part of 5000 of our customers, and the existence of conditions which make the departure very promising to ourselves and our big list of friends.

Roof of Bore Rakes Framework on Car, Pinioning Five Men. Two Escape Death.

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 9.—Officers of the Western Pacific Railroad Company in this city tonight received information of an accident in Flower Lake tunnel, 14 miles west of Shafter, Nev., which caused the death of three men, and the serious injury of two others.

At the time of the accident the five men, all carpenters or helpers, were riding through the tunnel on a flatcar. A "jumbo," or improvised scaffolding, which was erected over a platform on the car, came in contact with some timber work on the roof of the tunnel and the "jumbo" was wrecked. The men were pinioned beneath the pile of wreckage, three of them being instantly killed.

When news of the accident reached Wells, Nev., a number of physicians volunteered their services, and a special train was started for the scene of the accident. The company's officials here have not learned the names of the dead.
