SPREADING the fame of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, a special train of Seattle and Tacoma people reached Portland yesterday afternoon on their way to Southern California. Their mission is to unite the Pacific states and invite all to visit the fair at Seattle this summer. The visitors were entertained here on their way south and left last night after expressing their appreciation of Portland's hospitality.

The special excursion party is headed by Mayor Miller, of Seattle; I. A. Nadeau, director-general of the exposition; Secretary Vandell, of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, and Secretary St. Clair, of the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce. After viewing the city yesterday from special trolley cars, the entire party was dined at the Commercial Club at 8:30 o'clock, and upon the completion of the dinner speaking was the order of the day.

After the meal was over, President Wehrberg, of the Commercial Club, who presided, introduced Mayor Lane, who made a short speech of welcome. Mayor John Miller, of Seattle was next introduced, and responded graciously to Portland's welcome to the party.

"I wish to express to you the deep appreciation we feel for this hospitality to us," he said. "I can only hope that when the fair is opened we may imitate the hospitality Portland showed during the Lewis and Clark Fair."

C. C. Chapman spoke for Portland, saying he wanted the visitors, as they go down the coast, to remember that they always have a welcome here waiting for them. He also urged the travelers that when all the visitors to the fair reach Seattle to send some of them down to Portland to see the sights of this city.

George H. Stone, of Tacoma, made an interesting address, and said: "It is said to be the secret of hospitality to make the guest feel perfectly at home. If this be true, Portland certainly is a perfect host. We have come from Puget Sound to fulfill a mission. We are going to have an exposition next summer, and we are here to speak of the things we have there. We want to invite you to come up and visit us. This new fertile region has greater opportunities than any other spot in the world. Nowhere else is everything so inviting. We believe no trip the citizens of the East can make will be worth his while so much as this one to the Northwest. So we are issuing the invitation and telling the story so that people will come out here and see us."

Mr. Stone closed with a graceful tribute to Mount Hood.

T. W. B. London spoke briefly, and said there is no cause for jealousy between the three cities represented. Tacoma, he said, was known as the chief grain port of Puget Sound, as well as for its lumber, while Seattle, the Queen City, held the Alaska trade. Portland, he said, had the trade of the Columbia basin, and was, consequently, the chief grain port on the Pacific.

I. A. Nadeau, director-general of the exposition, said: "The exposition belongs to the people of the Pacific Coast. It represents the loyalty and spirit of the great West. The best thing about it is that it will be complete and ready in every detail on June 1. Buildings not almost finished are well along. We ask the cooperation of all the people of the Northwest to make this fair a great success. We are thankful to be with you tonight, and extend a cordial invitation to be present in Seattle next summer."

W. H. Wehrung spoke briefly of the spirit of co-operation that has been manifested in this state, and W. C.

The Teacher's Duty

Children whose eyes are not exactly right should be sent to Thompson at once. Don't wait. The little fellows are depending on you. They don't know these things themselves.

Nine years in Portland, 2 years in the leading eye clinic of Europe.

Eye troubles are hereditary. They are handed down from parent to child, and if there is a defect in a parent's eyes, it is more than likely to be found in the eyes of the child also.

Eyesight of Scholars

There are many cases of eye defects which the teacher can help to bring under your supervision: Bending over books, slates, needlework (Shortsightedness). The writing tends to become unduly blurred (Astigmatism). The eyelids are closed into a horizontal chink when looking at a distant object, for example, blackboard (Myopia). Eyelashes matter or partially absent, with or without scabs at their bases. Temporary pain, swelling and inflammation of the lids. Your children's eyes are safe in Thompson's hands. One charge covers the entire cost of examination, glasses and frames. Prices the lowest consistent with expert service and quality of eye-wear.

WILLS MAKES HINTS

Says He Has Information to Disclose About Police.

FOLLOWS UP HIS RAID

Will Appear Before Liquor License Committee and Demand Revocation of Licenses of Saloons Upon Which He Descended.

When the liquor license committee of the City Council meets tomorrow afternoon Councilman Wills promises to show up the present police administration and substantiate what he has already said about conditions being exceedingly bad in the North End district. He says he will disclose information that will have a tendency to make Mayor Lane and his political lieutenants sit up. The action will be on the charges preferred by Mr. Wills against Ed Blazier and Max Zetos, saloonkeepers in the district named. In the Blazier establishment two weeks ago the Councilman from Sellwood found a large, full-fledged poker game in progress and caused a raid to be made, in which 36 players were arrested and later fined, and in Zetos' place he discovered a bartender selling liquor to an intoxicated man.

The raid was personally conducted by Councilman Wills, who called in the police and remained with them until the entire outfit was lodged at headquarters, after several patrol wagons full of humanity had been carted from Blazier's saloon and deposited at the station house. It was the biggest surprise the police had experienced for many a month, and they at once began to say it would be difficult for Mr. Wills to prove the men were really gambling. The Councilman remarked, however, he would prove it without a bit of trouble, and when the matter was called in Municipal Court the next day the defendants all entered pleas of guilty and were fined.

The fact that a Councilman discovered and directed a raid on a full-fledged poker game caused much comment, and it was hinted the police were not as watchful as they should be. However, Chief Gritzmacher, in explanation of the affair, said Detective Sergeant Kay had been planning a raid on Blazier's saloon for some time, and that he was about to act when Councilman Wills got in ahead. Referring to this statement, Mr. Wills said he was very sorry if he interfered with the plans of the police, but he maintained he knew one thing—there was gambling running in the open, without any apparent fear of molestation by the police.

The raid on Blazier's saloon was the occasion for activity in the office of Mayor Lane also. The executive immediately issued a statement that the police were handicapped in their operations by various tricks played by gamblers to thwart the officers of the law in the effort to detect gaming, and that the orders to the police were to allow no gambling whatever, but to arrest all offenders.

In view of the facts that have developed since the raid by Councilman Wills, it is believed in official circles that the session of the liquor license committee, scheduled for 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, will be highly interesting. The saloons on board the special from the Sound cities are as follows:

"There's a Reason"

DROWNING IN MILLPOND

Joe Zazaro, Italian, Slips Off Logs and Goes Under.

Joe Zazaro, an Italian mill laborer, was drowned in the millpond of a sawmill at Middleton, Washington County, yesterday afternoon. The mill is operated by J. H. Johnson, successor to the Middleton Lumber Company. The Italian was crossing on logs when he slipped and fell into the water. He was employed as a yardman, and his duties did not require that he go on the logs, it is said, but he did so in order to take a short cut. Fellow-workmen saw Zazaro fall into the pond, and immediately went to his assistance. Before they could reach him he had gone down for the last time, and, although men dived for the body, the water was so cold they could not reach him. The body was recovered about an hour after the accident, which occurred at 3 P. M. Zazaro was a single man, 28 years old, and had worked at the mill only a short time. He had lived in the neighborhood for the past five years, and, so far as known, had no relatives in this country.

PIANO LOGIC

If we advertise to sell you a piano today for $223.00 that was $446.00 yesterday, would you not think the man who paid $446.00 was wronged?

We have no reason for offering a $400 piano for $200. Values do not fluctuate in this way. Our $400 values are worth $400. Our $200 piano is worth $200. Why should your neighbor pay twice as much as you pay for the same article?

Visit our store—every piano marked in plain figures. Every figure is right. Every piano worth what the figures say. It is worth something to know the value is right. It is no mistake to buy where you get "An Honest Piano at an Honest Price."

verbal encounters of the matter-of-fact portpicker with the father of his aristocratic son-in-law afforded frequent opportunities for humor. Though the play was written in German by German authors for the German stage it practically culminates in a glorification of American ideals, and testifies to the respect and regard manifested in some German circles toward this country. The eight characters in the cast were all well portrayed. Marguerite Ortman was pleasing as the Chicago waitress. The Moor, added much to the success of the performance.
