

The Work That Lasts

IS THE CHEAPEST DENTAL WORK

And at this office that is the only kind we turn out. During the past 14 years I have treated thousands of Portland people. All of my patrons send their friends. Why?

Because they are satisfied with the treatment and results, the only safe foundation on which to build a satisfactory and constantly increasing dental practice.

Spring is approaching and the poets are leaving their attics. Listen to what my friend Flarety has to say:

FLARETY'S DISCOVERY

Said Murphy to Flarety: "Shure, I'm wonderin' All this long afternoon you're so spry at your work. When only this mornin' you'd thought it was thundersin'. For you grumbled and growled like a cranky old Turk."

"Shure," says Pat, "and I'll tell ye; come in while I trate a bit. I'd a tooth, and it ached like the devil all night. So I went to a dintest that lives up the strate a bit. And his name, like his work and his price, shure, was Wright.

"Well, he grated me, Mike, with a smile that was honey-like. While he worked on my tooth, 'stead of growling, I laughed. For shure, that young man was so smilin' and funny-like. He'd a jovial grin jest like Prissidint Taft.

"Shure, I'll stind my relations to him by the dozens. There's Charlie, and Annie, and Lizzie, me gurri. And father, and mother, and nine of me cousins. You take it from me that dintest's a purri!"

PUT 30 IN COUNCIL

New Charter Board Favors More Numerous Body.

WOULD KEEP CITY BOARDS

No Radical Changes From Present System of City Government Proposed by Committee at Its First Session.

More Councilmen, instead of fewer; retention of the Executive Board and the other city boards, and no pay for Councilmen, are some of the features discussed by the new charter board of seven members, at its first session yesterday morning. That the committee will not recommend anything so radical or out of the ordinary as the committee of 15 did, seems certain. There was no indication of anything very startlingly new for a proposed charter during the meeting. The committee is not even in favor of abolishing the ward system of representation. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, when the committee on judiciary, public improvements and finance will report. F. L. Willis was chosen as president and C. Wiegand, Deputy City Auditor, as secretary. He served the other charter committee in that capacity.

City Treasurer Weirlein is the sole member of the committee who favors a different system of city government. He made a strong argument for some other plan than the present one, with all of its boards and commissions, its numerous red-tape machinery, but he was outvoted and cannot hope to secure any such concessions from his colleagues, as they are opposed to any change from the present municipal plan of government. They all oppose the commission scheme, which is the basis for the proposed draft submitted to the Council last week by the committee of 15 taxpayers.

While it is yet too early to state definitely as to what the new committee will recommend, it is already regarded as certain that the body will not propose to eliminate any board or commission, or seek to lessen the number of officials; in fact, it seems that there will be more offices. There are but 15 Councilmen now, ten from wards and five at large, but it was suggested by some of the members of the committee that it might be wise to increase the number of Councilmen to perhaps as many as 30; it was thought that 20 councilmen, or about that many, might serve the people more capably than ten would. If the number was increased, it was intimated, the committee will recommend that they serve without pay, although this does not meet with unanimous approval. Some of the members feel that the Councilmen should receive at least fair compensation for their services.

In all of its deliberations, it is quite certain the committee will keep to the policy of striking a golden medium between the present charter and the one proposed by the committee of 15, in an endeavor to tone down the radical ideas embodied in the proposed draft, and to cure alleged defects in the present charter.

News Notes of Portland High Schools

Lincoln.

THE Athletic Association of the Lincoln High School met Thursday afternoon after school. In addition to the reception of some 40 new members, the principal business was to fill several vacancies in the management. Ever Peterson was unanimously chosen football manager. Sam Holden was elected track manager. Both are prominent in school athletics, Peterson being on the season's basketball squad, and Holden having played "sub" on the football team. Jay Gunnell, Fred Geispach and Ernest Vosper were elected to the board of directors of the association.

It was voted that the Lincoln High join with the other members of the Interscholastic League in adding tennis as a league sport. With such a well-known player as Kenneth McAlpin to lead off, we ought to make a good showing among our competitors.

The second assembly of the term was held Friday afternoon. Messrs. H. C. Campbell, of the Board of Education, and Tom Richardson, of the Commercial Club, gave short addresses, showing the students how they might assist in the movement for a greater Portland. Kenneth McAlpin, taking advantage of the enthusiasm aroused by the previous speakers, got in a good word for the basketball game that immediately followed at the Portland Academy.

The event of the week was the basketball championship game Friday afternoon between the Lincoln High and Columbia at the P. A. gymnasium. The societies adjourned, that their members might attend. The large crowd that gathered for the game, was a good word for the basketball game that immediately followed at the Portland Academy.

Washington.

ONE of the biggest treats the Washington High School students have ever had was the address last Monday morning by Professor George Wharton James. An assembly was called for 10 o'clock in the morning and Principal Herdman introduced Rev. Clarence True Wilson, who made a short speech introducing Professor James. As soon as Professor James began to talk everyone began to sit up and take notice. The speaker made a few opening remarks that set everyone in a roar of laughter, and before he had gone far with his speech everyone was in rare good humor. No speaker has ever appeared before the school who seemed to have such a way of making friends with his audience and understanding his hearers so well. In fact, after he had begun to speak, even those who are usually inattentive, were listening with both ears.

The talk was for the most part on the Great American Desert, the Salton Sea and other objects of interest in Southern California, Nevada and places in that

DECLARES PICKETS LEGAL

OAKLAND, Cal., Feb. 20.—It is not illegal for a labor union to picket a place of business that has been declared "unfair," if the picketing is done in a peaceable manner, according to the decision of Judge Ellsworth, given here, in the case of Joseph Davis, a local restaurant man, but contended inasmuch as the union had not brought it about "by unlawful means," damages could not be imposed.
