PATTERSON TELLS OF COOPER'S MOOD

Tennessee's Governor Says He Tried to Shield His Friend. the Colonel.

TRIED TO SETTLE TROUBLE

While Not Expecting Violence He Thought Cooper Should Be Kept Away From Carmack for Awhile.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Peb. 27.-Two features stood out today in the Cooper-Sharpe trial for the murder of ex-United States Senator Cifrmnok. One was the calling by the defense of Governor Patterson, and the other was the failure of the state o cross-examine him.

The Governor testified twice, once before the court and again before the grand jury. In the court he told how he was called over the telephone by Colonel Cooper's daughter, Mrs. Lucius Burch. What Mrs. Burch told him he did not say. Whatever Mrs. Burch said so impressed the Governor that he took his private secretary and began a three hours' search for the Colonel, ending at the Maxwell Hotel, at noon, where he found Colonel Attorney-General Garner opened the day's proceedings by asking that the further cross-examination of T. Leigh Thompson be postponed until later. In the meantime, be questioned Mr. Thompson on other points.

The questions of the state were to show that it was impossible for the Coopers to recognize Senator Carmack nearly a block sway, or for John Sharpe to see the tragedy in every detail from the corner of Union street and Sevenih avenue, as

New Story of Shooting.

Robert B. Dillard, a lumberman from Lebanon, Tenn., testified he was near Seventh avenue and Church street when

Attorney-General McCarn cros hed briefly. "Call Governor Patterson, Mr. Sheriff," finally announced Judge Anderson. A murmur ran over the courtroom which was quickly suppressed as the tall slender, boyish-looking Governor walked into the room.

In answer to questions, Governor Patterson said he knew the Coopers well. On the day of the shooting he, with his private secretary. Mr. Scruggs, had unted up Colonel Cooper "as a result of a telephone message from his daughter, Mrs. Lucius Burch," and found him at the Maxwell House.

The state began to object, and the court ordered the jury to retire.

At this point Judge Hart indicated that he believed the results of the conference were admissible, but not the language used at them.

The jury was recalled and the Governor repeated those portions of his previous testimony which the court had declared were admissible. The restrictions of the court made the witness' testimony very brief. When the defense was through General Gardner said:
