Chamberlain's Resignation Is Now in Hands of Private Secretary.

STARTS FOR EAST TODAY

Benson Expected to Call Special Session of Legislature for March 13 to 20 and Thus Limit

Proposed Legislation.

SALEM, Or., Feb. 27 .- (Special.) -- Governor Chamberlain today placed his resignation as Governor in the hands of his sacretary, Mrs. C. B. Shelton, to be de-livered to Secretary of State Benson at the opening of office hours Monday morn-ing. The resignation reads that it is to take effect at 12 o'clock midnight Sunday night, so that Benson will become Gov-ernor at the beginning of March I. In fact he will not be Governor until the resignation shall be handed to him by Mrs. Shelton and he shall have taken Mrs. Shelton and he shall have taken the oath of office. In his resignation Governor Chamber-and other state officers for their courtesy and co-operation in official transactions. Governor Chamberlain left today for his home in Portland and tomorrow morning he will leave for Washington, expecting to arrive there on March 4.

Special Session Expected.

Mr. Benson will assume his duties as Governor Monday, and, presumably, one of his first acts will be to call a special session to meet about March 15 or 20 to pass the appropriation bill which falled to become a law because of an omission in become a law because of an omission in the legislative proceedings. Mr. Benson feels that the improvements at the asylum are absolutely necessary and that the special session is therefore unavoidable. An effort will be made to limit the work of the Legislature to the passage of the appropriation bill. It is believed that by calling the session for Saturday the Legislature will want to ad-Saturday the Legislature will want to ad-

Mulit Lost Normal's Money.

An investigation of the record show ing the vote by which the last Normal School appropriation bill was defeated leaves no doubt that the Normal School leaves no doubt that the Normal School question will be presented at the special session. There were plenty of votes in the House to pass any kind of a Normal School bill through that branch. In the Senate the bill appropriating $10,000 for each of the Normals to carry them through the remainder of this school year was defeated by only one vote, and among the absent was Senator Mulit, from Ashabsent was Senator Mulit, from Ash-land. Had Mulit remained until the vote could be taken the bill would have passed. Just a minute or two before the roll was called on the bill before the roll was called on the bill he left the Senate chamber and ran to the passenger depot to catch the train for home. The bill had only 15 affirmative votes, with 16 necessary to pass a bill in the Senate. Assuming that those who supported the bill before will support it again, it is certain that with Mulit's added vote an appropriation can be made to carry the Normals through the present year. mals through the present year.

How the Vote Stood.

The vote by which McCue's bill appropriating $10,000 for each of the Normals falled to pass was as follows: Ayes—Abraham, Balley, Coffey, Cole, Hedges, Kay, Merryman, Miller of Linn, Miller of Linn and Lane, Norton, Oliver, Scholfield, Sunnort, Smith of Manager, Smit ver, Scholfield, Sinnott, Smith of Ma-rien, Smith of Umatilla—15. Noes—Barrett, Bingham, Chase, Hart, Johnson, Kaller, Markey, Markey, Markey, Markey, Markey, Markey, Markey, Markey, Norton, Oli-Johnson, Kellaher, Nottingham, Wood Absent—Albee, Beach, Caldwell, Mu-lit. Parrish, Selling—6.

But while it would be possible to pass a bill to carry the hormals through the present year, if is not probable that the Legislature would provide for the normals for a longer period, for the Senate was decidedly opposed to such

Mr. Yates drove an ox-team across the plains from Arkansas, reaching The Dalles in 1852. He went down the Columbia from The Dalles to the Cascades in an Indian canos and walked over the portage. From the Lower Cascades he took the steamer Kanema for Portland. That night he slept on the west bank of the river—a mere boy of 18 years of age, who was 3000 miles from home without a nickel in his pecket. He soon moved to Oakville, where, by teaching singing-school, raising stock and farming, he became one of the most prosperous farmers in

STEAMER COLUMBIA BREAKS PROPELLER.

Vancouver Ferry Hurries to Vessel's Assistance and Passengers Are Taken Off.

Before leaving today Governor Chamberlain made a number of appointments, the most important being that of Representative C. L. Hawley, of Polk County, to be a member of the Board of Regents of the Agricultural College, to succeed W. P. Keady. Mr. Keady was reappointed by Chamberlain, but the Senate refused to confirm the appointment for the reason that Keady has moved to Spokane. The term for which Hawley has been appointed will expire February 15, 1918.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Feb. 27.—(Spg-cial.)—The steamer Columbia, in charge of Captain Horsford, on its way from Washougal to Portland, broke its propolite this morning at 9 o'clock, when it was about half a mile above Vancouver. "I have been held up and threatened." he declared. The Speaker, who has been allied with stringent local optionists, said that he had been told that the bill would never pass unless he would consent to the removal of fourth-class cities from the county unit in the local option bill. Meigs Is from Yakima County, where the fair is located, and the bill was introduced by Cameron, of the same county, in the Senate, who is a member of the managing board of the fair.

The trouble was precipitated by Slayden of Pierce attempting to have the bill made a special order for next Wednesday, which is the day following that set for the resumption of the local option fight. Meigs insisted that the bill go on the calendar, where it would likely be reached Monday, and a motion to that effect made by him carried after several acrimonious statements

Palmer Charges Graft.

Slayden and Palmer attacked the bill solely on the ground that it was for a deficiency appropriation, and Palmer called attention to the law prohibiting the creation of deficiencies.

"I am surprised," he said, "at the gall of these men coming here asking for us to make up a deficiency; instead of passing this bill it is our duty to swear out warrants for the arrest of the fair of-

The bitterness over the local option ssue cropped out again in the afternoon, when Palmer of King declared that he had been jobbed in the return from the printer of the Nichols bill to the House with only the amendments thereto printed. He asserted he had moved to have both the Nichols bill and the committee substitute printed in full, and that the motion had been carried.

The gentleman from King has no right to address such remarks to the chair," declared the Speaker, which caused Palmer to explain that he did not intend to imply that the chair had 'jobbed' him, but that some one else had. Palmer then secured the adoption of a motion requiring the printing of the Nichols bill in full.

State Keeps Its Credit Good.

In spite of attacks by House members and the claim that it was a gigantic steal from the state, the Senate bill providing for the issuance of $208,000 in state bonds to take up lilegal Normal school warrants issued in 1895, passed the House. The original principal of the warrants was about $106,000, but the interest has practical. 000, but the interest has practically doubled the obligation of the state, which is a moral and not a legal one. The passage of the bill is the culmi-nation of numerous attempts made in previous Legislatures to secure appropriation to pay off these warrants.
