

ARCHITECTURAL DESIGNS ON DISPLAY AT MUSEUM OF ART THIS WEEK

PORTLAND ARCHITECTURAL CLUB

SECOND ANNUAL EXHIBITION IN THE GALERIES OF THE MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS
19 MARCH 24 TO APRIL 10 1909

EVERYTHING is in readiness for the opening of the second annual exhibition of the Portland Architectural Club which is to be held in the galleries of the Museum of Fine Arts. Tomorrow night there is to be a private exhibition of the display to members of the press and invited guests of the club. There will also be a meeting of the club during the day to greet visiting architects and possibly make some arrangement toward the organization of a chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the nucleus of which exists in the local club.

A supper is to be given by the club at the Portland Hotel, after the private view hours, to which invitations have been issued. On Tuesday the exhibition is to be opened to the public. Catalogues of the drawings and other articles comprising the exhibition will be obtainable and from the great number of separate examples included in the exhibition, these catalogues will be almost necessary to get any idea of the scope of the show.

Architects, terra cotta manufacturers, art workers from various parts of the country, embracing decorations and utility articles in brass and copper, landscape gardeners and, in fact, every branch of the architect and allied crafts will be on display. Examples have been sent in from not only all the cities of the Coast, but Eastern cities are represented as well in the exhibition.

The Museum of Fine Arts is located at Fifth and Taylor streets and being in the heart of the city may be reached by carlines from every direction. The exhibition is given jointly by the Art Association and the Architectural Club.

The officers of the club are: President, Jacob Jacobberger; vice-president, Edgar M. Lazarus; secretary, Ernst Kroner; treasurer, John G. Wilson. The chairman of the educational committee is A. E. Doyle, and of the scholarship committee, E. F. Lawrence. The exhibition committee is composed of E. F. Lawrence, E. M. Lazarus, Morris Whitehouse and C. F. Linde. V. A. Vinson is business manager of the exhibition. The show promises to be the greatest success ever attending any similar exhibition held in the city and will doubtless be attended by all interested in building, architects, builders, lovers of the art and by the public at large, for the great and swinging and swaying about apparently fairly happy.

"Hello, brother," said a well-dressed man to the ape, upon entering the inclosure. "How are you feeling this morning?"

The ape, however, scorned his question and turned from him in disdain, as much as to say, "You're not in my class."

Nero, the big African lion, is one of the notable attractions at the Zoo. Thousands upon thousands of people all over the city and throughout the Northwest remember Nero and the polar bear, after they have forgotten everything else seen in the Zoo. Nero is one of the pacers; he is never at rest, except when sleep overcomes him, and Mayor Lane says this indicates that the great powerful beast wants his freedom, and that he is trying to make people understand that he wants to get out into the open. Nero is fat, and so far as appearances go looks good.

The collection of smaller wild animals, such as the wolves, Alaskan dogs, coyotes, badger and the gray fox are always on the move, but the most remarkable of the entire tribe is the polar bear, which swings its head backwards and forwards continually. His evident dissatisfaction is really the prime factor in bringing about the agitation to make life more pleasant for the animals at the Zoo or mercifully chloroform them and mount them for educational exhibits. It is said that the bear is too far out of his native state to be made comfortable; that he demands arctic conditions, and never can be contented elsewhere. It seems to be the disposition of Mayor Lane, members of the Park Board and Secretary Shanahan, representing the Humane Society, to chloroform the bear and perhaps others of the less domesticated specimens and thus end their suffering, if they really suffer, and yet to preserve to a large degree the educational value of the animals by having them mounted and put on exhibition.

Parkkeeper Mische is preparing to compile a list of the more hardy animals and birds, those that thrive in captivity in the Oregon climate, as directed by the Mayor and members of the Park Board. He will submit this list at the next regular session, if possible, after which the members of the board will determine what course they will pursue in the effort to eliminate what, if any, suffering there is among the animals in the Zoo.

Lawler Accepts Place.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The position of Assistant Attorney-General in the Department of the Interior has been tendered and accepted by Oscar Lawler, of Los Angeles, United States District Attorney for the Southern District of California.

It is said he will assume the duties of the new position about April 1. Mr. Law-er will succeed George W. Woodruff, who at one time was coach of the University of Pennsylvania football team. Mr. Lawler was recommended by Secretary Ballinger.

Superfluous Hair
 Doctors Say There is a Harmless, Safe and Sure Way to Remove Superfluous Hair.

Dr. Fowler, who has made a thorough study of superfluous hair growth, speaking of a case in which he used DeMiracle, says: "I applied DeMiracle, and in a few minutes I had her lip devoid of hair without any pain whatever. I instructed her to call again in two weeks, which she did. I found about one-fourth of the hair roots were not killed by the first application, so I made a second application. I saw her again in about a month, and found her lip again clear of hair as if an infant's. I can heartily recommend DeMiracle for all the uses for which the manufacturers recommend it."

It is well to remember that DeMiracle is absolutely non-poisonous, antiseptic and germicidal, therefore it will not produce blood poisoning or sepsis which is so common with hair removal. DeMiracle is the only method in the world which is endorsed by physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, medical journals and prominent magazines.

DeMiracle, mailed, sealed in plain wrapper, for $1.00. Your money back without question (no red tape) if it fails to do all that is claimed for it. Booklet free in plain sealed envelope by the DeMiracle Chemical Co., Desk 2, 1909 Park Ave., New York. For sale by Lippman, Wolfe & Co.

PARK ZOO ANIMALS BLISSFULLY IGNORANT OF HUBBUB OVER THEIR CONDITION

Polar Bear and African Lion Face Cells Unceasingly, but Most of Other Beasts Seem Fairly Well Contented.

AT the City Park Zoo there was the usual "doings" yesterday among the animals, and there appeared to be no concern among them over the agitation in their behalf, started by Mayor Lane early last week. Notwithstanding the fact that the Mayor and members of the Park Board, as well as Secretary Shanahan, of the Oregon Humane Society, have threatened to end the career of the polar bear with chloroform, the old white brute does not care anything about it, so far as could be discovered by close scrutiny. In his iron-barred cage, he stood, peering into the open fields behind. Swinging his head to and fro, to and fro unceasingly, it seemed that he was longing for liberty. Old Nero, the African lion, paced rapidly back and forth in his little pen, evidently in search of a means of escape; the Alaskan dogs were nervous, and ever on the move, as were also the coyotes, the gray fox and the badger.

As far as can be judged by the ordinary individual, after a trip through the Zoo, nearly all the animals are happy and contented, but the actions of the polar bear, the coyotes, the Alaskan dogs, the fox and the badger indicate that they are dissatisfied with their lot. This is likewise true of the old lion. Year in and year out, these animals show their displeasure at confinement, by their restlessness, but it is as yet unknown to science whether or not there is any mental suffering, according to Dr. J. R. Wilson, chairman of the Park Board. He declares that there is not, but Mayor Lane holds the contrary, saying that all beasts, birds and reptiles, natives of the wilds, are never contented in captivity. Nobody knows the degree of their contentment in their native liberty.

One fact that seems evident to even the casual observer is the inadequate room devoted to the Zoo. One of the animals or birds has sufficient space, and many people believe that this alone contributes to their discomfort. It is the intention of the Park Board, however, to provide more ground, and to distribute the various collections of specimens as to make them more contented, even though they be in captivity.

The herd of buffalo, confined to a very small inclosure, do not present a good appearance. There is no green pasture for them, and they have no room to run. Their pen is not well kept, and they look dirty and neglected.

The various breed of deer look well, being sleek and fat, and they are clean and do not appear dissatisfied with their lot, although they have but little room in which to live. They are quite domesticated, and are friendly, greeting strangers without the least fear.

The monkeys, the baboon and the ape comprise a queer collection. In the winter they are kept in cages indoors, where it is quite warm. Yesterday they were engaged in the gentle art of eating peanuts, chasing each other around the cages at a furious pace,

EXPERTS IN WOOD

Tonal Beauty of the Stradivarius Violin Utilized by Modern Piano-Makers.

A secret of the pre-eminent tone beauty of the Stradivarius and Cremona violins lies in the expert selection of the wood. This is equally true of the modern piano, and in no part more necessary than in the sounding board. In the Kimball piano the sounding board is made of the best-selected mountain spruce—of finer, finer grain than any grown in lower altitudes. As a consequence they yield a more powerful singing tone, the wood being compressed in such a manner as to obtain the tonal resonance of the rare violin.
