Showing a Number of Fine Reproductions of the Flanders Furniture

Those interested in distinctive styles in furniture will appreciate the first showing in Portland of these correct reproductions of this quaint and artistic style known as Flanders furniture. The originals were produced during the latter part of the sixteenth century and during the first part of the seventeenth century, in the province of Flanders, which embraced a portion of Holland, Belgium and Northern France. The craftsmen of this period devised for their own native oak a style which was so appropriate to this material. The Louis XIII styles of France and the Elizabethan and Jacobean styles of England so strongly resemble the Flanders that it is often difficult to identify the country where it was first produced. The distinguishing features of this style of furniture are the plain, substantial and yet quaintly artistic designs, and the finish, which is a rich dark brown. We are showing a number of fine reproductions, suitable for the library and living-room, the seating pieces being upholstered in appropriate leathers.

New Upholstered Pieces for Library and Living-Room

Just received and now being shown in our splendid display of Furniture for the living-room and library, are a number of overstuffed pieces—Davenport, Chairs and Rockers, embodying style, comfort and the best materials and workmanship throughout, the seats being of the double-spring construction. This is the most complete and the finest line of such pieces we have ever shown. They are covered in the denim, thus affording an opportunity for selecting fabrics to harmonize with the style of decoration of the rooms where intended. We show an extensive line of upholstery fabrics for all furniture-covering purposes.

New Importation of the German Seamless Rugs

They are universally accepted as finest productions, and in beauty of design and color rival the Oriental rugs. A special feature is the large range of sizes in which these rugs are made—up to 33 feet in width and in any length, and can be procured in any color—hand or machine-tufted. In our line of these beautiful floor coverings is shown many sizes. The Carpet Department, Sixth Floor.
