

RACING BALLOONS SOAR SOUTHWARD

Chicago Leads Flock of Eight Contesting for Distance and Endurance.

OHIO DROPS OUT EARLY

Aeronauts Sail From Indianapolis and Drop Messages as They Soar, Traveling Close Together at Same Altitude.

CHICAGO DROPS MESSAGE. BARGERSVILLE, IND., June 5.—The following was dropped from the balloon Chicago which passed over this town this evening: "We are sailing over Bargserville, Ind. Time 5:30. We are going as far as the wind goes. Am out for distance record."

INDIANAPOLIS, June 5.—Eight of the nine balloons which late this afternoon started from the Indianapolis motor speedway in the National Long distance and endurance races are soaring southward tonight. Dispatches indicate that the aeronauts were carried south and a little to the east at the beginning of the flight.

The Ohio, which entered the endurance contest, is the only balloon to abandon the race. A message from Captain T. S. Baldwin, of the Hoosier, showed that the Indiana, New York, St. Louis, Ill., and Cleveland were traveling close together when they passed Trafalgar, about 30 miles south of Indianapolis. A message from there said that the Chicago, which had entered the endurance contest, was leading.

Three in Endurance Race. Of the nine balloons, six are competing in the National endurance races for the trophy of the Aero Club of America and three for the cup offered by the Indiana Aero Club to the pilot and his aide who shall be able to stay aloft the longest period.

Thousands witnessed the start. The first to get away were the three entered in the National endurance races for the trophy of the Aero Club of America and three for the cup offered by the Indiana Aero Club to the pilot and his aide who shall be able to stay aloft the longest period.

Entries in Distance Race. The National distance race was started at 5 o'clock and the entrants sailed off in a line to the south in the following order: A. Holland Forbes and Clifford Harmon, of New York, in the New York; Carl G. Fisher and C. L. Bumbaugh, of Indianapolis, in the Indiana; Albert and H. E. Honeywell, of St. Louis, in the St. Louis III; A. H. Morgan and J. H. Wade, Jr., of Cleveland, in the Cleveland; Captain T. S. Baldwin, of New York, and Charles Walsh of Mount Vernon, N. Y., in the Hoosier; and John Berry and John McCullough, of St. Louis, in the Indiana.

Each basket carries a large amount of food and water, heavy clothing, instruments and ballast. One hundred and fifty soldiers are coming across tonight. Some of the aeronauts have equipped their baskets with life-preservers as a precaution against dropping into one of the Great Lakes or a river.

Have Maps of Atmosphere. The United States Government is represented at the race by Major H. B. Hersey, of Washington, who is connected with the Weather Bureau. Just before the start, he and W. T. Birtch, in charge of the local weather bureau, gave the pilots maps, supplying them with the latest information, as to the probable conditions in the higher altitude. The balloons were started five minutes apart.

MONOPLANE RECORD MADE. Herbert Latham Stays in Air for Over an Hour. MOURMELON-LE-GRAND, June 5.—Herbert Latham today established a new record for monoplane. He made a flight with an Antoinette machine of 1 hour 7 minutes 40 seconds.

WHY A SILENT ONE? An Exposition in Portland of Interest to All Music Lovers. As announced in this issue, there is to be a magnificent exhibition of genuine pianola pianos at Ellers Piano House during the coming week.

Six carloads of these truly magnificent instruments shipped here through an awkward and expensive misunderstanding on the part of our buyer and the manufacturers. These will be displayed tomorrow upon the second floor of our retail department, corner of Park (Eighty) and Washington streets.

A showing of a magnitude never before witnessed in this country, and probably never to be seen again. There's many a "silent" piano in many a home, where there ought to be a pianola piano, a genuine pianola piano, an instrument that is not "mechanical," but, on the contrary, "makes it possible for any member of the family to produce the choicest of music with perfect individuality and expression.

TAFT NOT TO GO NORTH

ALASKA TRIP ABANDONED ON ACCOUNT OF MRS. TAFT. President Thinks, However, That He Can Get to Seattle Fair Late in Autumn.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—President Taft notified Mr. Tawney, chairman of the House committee on appropriations, and Representative Cushman, of Washington, that he does not wish to have an appropriation made for his traveling expenses to Alaska, as Mrs. Taft's health is such that she probably will not be able to make the trip.

The President said he did not think that Mrs. Taft's illness would interfere with his trip to the Seattle Exposition. Although he has made no definite announcement heretofore, it has been a friendly echo in distant France. He told the many expressions of regard given by both France and by America to each other, finally coming down to the time, three years ago, when the United States presented to France a medal commemorating the war in which the European nation received Franklin when he came to the shores of the struggling thirteen states.

Many Accused of Fraud. Prominent Men in East Indicted by Nevada Grand Jury.

GOLDFIELD, Nev., June 5.—Charging the defendants with having conspired to defraud the state by making false oath to billion tax returns upon the output of their properties, indictments which were returned by the grand jury yesterday against United States Senator George T. JUSSERAND GIVES DAY CITY MEDAL

Token of Admiration From France to City Which Has Resurrected.

HIS FORECAST FULFILLED

Ambassador Relates How He Conceived Idea of Medal to Commemorate Rebuilding While the City Was Burning.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Citizens of two republics commemorated anew today the reconstruction of a city virtually annihilated a little over three years ago, and San Francisco received from the diplomatic representative of France a great gold medal conveying a sister republic's acknowledgment of heroic achievement.

The Orpheum Theater was crowded to its seating capacity and men and women cheered when Jean Jules Jusserand, Ambassador of the French Republic, handed to Mayor E. R. Taylor the splendid token of a nation's appreciation.

The presentation ceremony brought out one of the most brilliant assemblages since the earthquake of April 18, 1906. A miniature forest of living ferns and palms encircled the stage, where the official guests of the city were seated.

The Mayor presided, with the French Ambassador at his right hand, and Governor James N. Gillett at his left. At the Ambassador's right were diplomatic representatives from all over the world. Local leaders of French and American society filled the balcony.

In explaining the origin of the idea to present the medal to the city, the Ambassador reviewed the continued intimacy of the two nations. He said: "Since the early days of American independence no great event has happened in this country without awakening a friendly echo in distant France. He told the many expressions of regard given by both France and by America to each other, finally coming down to the time, three years ago, when the United States presented to France a medal commemorating the war in which the European nation received Franklin when he came to the shores of the struggling thirteen states.

On the day of the presentation of the medal detailed news of the disaster that had befallen San Francisco was being flashed through his mind that the next token of friendship between the two nations might commemorate the reconstruction of the city.

"When I had this spoken, on April 20, 1906, we knew but very imperfectly in the East what was happening in the West. But I know too well the American temper to have any doubt as to what might be expected to result from the disaster that would befall the city, where pluck, energy, fearlessness are more common than even gold in her banks, supplied the decision. All behaved as men and women of heart and honor.

The page written by the inhabitants of San Francisco on the moving ashes of their dead city is not one that any wind will ever sweep away."

Mr. Jusserand explained that the sentiments he expressed upon the presentation of the Franklin medal were so well in accord with those of the French Republic and San Francisco had been so quickly resurrected that a medal had been struck by his government and had been ordered to cross the continent to present it.

"This work of which one single copy in gold has been made," continued the Ambassador, "is destined to the American people and the town of San Francisco. One side emblematically shows your city rising from her tomb, and powerful and handsome as ever, throwing off her shroud; on the other side the figure of France is seen, presenting a branch of laurel to America."

He closed by saying: "Accept this gift, Mr. Mayor, and receive it you all, American citizens, in token that what once was still is; that we French continue, as of old, to feel with you in your moments of happiness or of anguish. Long live your city, and may continuous prosperity be the lot of the American Nation."

Repeating to the Ambassador's address, Mayor Taylor expressed, in behalf of the city, his grateful appreciation of the French government's gift, alluded to the historic friendship of the two republics, and in conclusion said: "San Francisco begs you will assure your government that it is in no perfunctory spirit who receives this medal, but with a spirit of gratefulness, and indeed of exultation, that so great a country as yours should deem our city worthy of its especial regard and favor. At the same time we cannot but realize that while this medal is given to our own city, it is in large measure a gift to the people of the United States, and truly symbolizes that warm and enduring friendship which has for so long a time existed between your country and mine."

The ceremony closed with an informal reception by Ambassador Jusserand and an inspection of the medal.

M. Jusserand was entertained tonight at a luncheon banquet given in the white and gold room of the Fairmont Hotel. A toast to the Presidents of France and the United States was the occasion for a great outburst of enthusiasm.

RESENTS JORDAN'S ATTACK. Jusserand Replies to Charge That France Is Decadent.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Ambassador Jusserand, Mayor Taylor and about 2000 members of the local French colony who attended a reception to the Ambassador and Madame Jusserand last night entered vigorous protests to the statements made by President David Starr Jordan, of Stanford University, in a recent speech at Bryn Mawr College that France was a decadent nation.

"In the face of what that nation is doing and has done, in art, letters and finance," said the Mayor, "a man who makes such a statement conclusively proves that he does not know what he is talking about."

M. Jusserand said: "The nation that can produce a Pasteur, that leads the world in the sciences, that first developed the submarine and that ranks first in the navigation of the air, cannot by any stretch of circumstances be termed a decadent race."

A telegram read to the assemblage by J. M. DuFas, president of the Federated French Societies congratulating him upon his protest against Mr. Jordan's remarks, was sent to Professor Foulet, of Bryn Mawr.

The entire audience arose when asked to endorse the message to Foulet. The telegram was as follows: "The French colony of San Francisco, assembled tonight, 3500 strong, under the protecting folds of the Stars and Stripes and the tricolor, on the occasion of the visit to San Francisco of the Ambassador of France, sends its warmest congratulations to Professor Lucien Foulet, who protested with so much dignity against the insults addressed to the French nation."

Jusserand Here on Friday. French Ambassador Jusserand and Mme. Jusserand are expected to arrive in Portland next Friday, June 11, and will be the guests for a day of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dolph at their home on West Park street.

A number of entertainments have been arranged in honor of the distinguished visitors, but whether they will be carried out or not will not be known until the Ambassador has been heard from. It is known, however, that he does not desire any elaborate entertainments for his benefit. Monsieur and Mme. Jusserand will leave for the East Saturday morning, June 12.

Several camps were closed today and others will follow unless there is an immediate settlement of the labor trouble. There is talk of attempting to extend the strike to Hoquiam if the Aberdeen millworkers decide to close down until after the Fourth. This, the strikers deny. The famine caused by the refusal of millworkers to deliver lumber is creating a most unfavorable impression. If this is persisted in, it may hamper the streetcar system. All building operations are at a standstill the millworkers refusing to allow lumber to be delivered.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 5.—(Special.)—Because of the indifference of the millworkers, gathered from their sentiments expressed tonight, the mills of Gray's Harbor may be kept closed until after the Fourth of July. To start now would mean a run of three weeks now before there would be a closing for several days, during the celebration of the Fourth and it is hinted the men will be in no hurry now to consider terms from the strikers.

The strikers at today's meeting decided to present, through Mayor Benn, a proposition to accept $2 for the $1.75 men and $2.25 for the $2 men. Most of the millworkers are out of town on business and Mayor Benn was not able
