Decidedly the Most Complete Showing in Portland—Sixth Floor

The past few days heralded the arrival of Summer and brought thoughts of Summer furnishings. We are now well supplied with quite a varied stock of floor coverings suggestive of this delightful season. Our window display of last week showed to Portland for the first time the wide variety of “Rag-style” rugs in all their harmonious colors, showing the evolution of the carpet of our grandmother's time. Distinctive in design and coloring are the Hodges fiber, and fiber and wool products. Adapted to the various needs of the household and creating an artistic environment. Wherever used, these floor coverings have made a permanent place for themselves in the science of house furnishing. This year's Tapestry Rugs are better than ever, especially in the lower-priced grades, where more care has been devoted to design and color. To those who prefer the softer carpets, the Axminster always appeals, and this season finds us more heavily stocked in this popular weave with its wealth of warm, rich coloring and wide variety of design, and lower-priced than ever, owing to favorable buying conditions.
