

SALOON IS RAIDED

Police Arrest 14 Men in Fred Fritz' Resort.

CAUGHT IN POKER GAME

Players Charged With Gambling Deceit. Drives Were Only Stakes, but Police Believe Real Money Changed Hands.

Fred Fritz' saloon, theater and general resort, Second and Burnside streets, which has become notorious through frequent attacks of the police, was again raided last night, two police officers in plain clothes arresting 13 men and a waiter, charging them with gambling. In a scramble which followed the arrival of the police six men made their escape. A number of poker chips and playing cards were taken as evidence.

Notwithstanding the contention made by the proprietors of the resorts in this vicinity, after the raid recently conducted by Councilman Willis in the North End, that violations of the law were not being tolerated in their places, reports kept drifting into the police station that in Fritz' place gambling was being conducted in a very cautious manner. Captain of Police Moore assigned two of his uniformed officers, Patrolmen Stillwell and Long, to duty in citizens' clothes and sent them out to see if they could trap the gamblers.

In the rear of the saloon the officers found a score of players gathered about card tables. One of the waiters of the resort, J. A. Tillman, was also playing. After the arrest the contention was made that they were merely playing for the drinks, but while no money was seen to pass at the table the police say this assertion is only a subterfuge. The dealer, who is a real dealer, is said to be a man of considerable means. While playing for drinks or anything of value is construed under the present law as gambling, the police say that the gamblers take refuge in this mild deception in the belief that they will escape with a much more lenient punishment in the Police Court than if they had been caught gambling for money.

The victims of the raid are: John Lacount, F. Jacobs, G. Anderson, Henry Attwood, John Miller, T. McCarty, M. A. Thomas, William Conrad, Joe Miller, A. Johnson, H. H. Ryan, Joe Novacek and R. Davenport. All are working men. Fred Fritz appeared at the police station and deposited bail for the release of each prisoner. The case will come up before the Municipal Court on Monday.

WILL PLAY AT VANCOUVER

DeCaprio's Band Will Leave Thursday to Fill Engagement.

DeCaprio's Portland Band will leave next Thursday for Vancouver, B. C., where it will play an engagement of four weeks at a prominent hotel. The band will be accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Harwas as soloist, and her husband, a prominent business man, a triumph among the music-loving people of Vancouver. Miss Harwas has been rehearsing with the band, and has perfected herself in an extensive repertoire. Besides a long list of songs in English, she will be heard in a number of arias from the most famous operas, which are well suited to her splendid dramatic soprano. Among the arias are the two from "Traviata," two from "Il Trovatore," one from "Rigoletto," one from the second act of "Madame Butterfly," and one from "Aida." She will sing numerous other grand opera selections. Miss Harwas has adopted the professional name of Signorina Battini.

Mr. DeCaprio will carry a band of 30 musicians, including a full orchestra, popular music. Among his instrumental solos will be: Salvalini of Chicago, bassoon; Avanzo of New York, clarinet; Valera of San Francisco, violin; and Seattle Symphony Orchestra, French horn.

FIEND IS STILL AT LARGE

Authorities Have Good Description and Hope for Capture.

Trace of the wretch who assailed a 17-year-old girl while she was on her way from the end of the Council Crest carline to her home at Sylvan, Monday night, has not yet been secured by the Sheriff and his deputies, although a brisk search is being kept up. Several suspects have been taken in, but they explained satisfactorily their whereabouts Monday night.

The fellow is now believed to have gone on to Beaverton and it is thought he may live in that vicinity. His inquiries of the girl as to the location of a brickyard may signify one of two things—that he was searching for work at a brickyard or that he was thoroughly familiar with the district and spoke of the yard where his intended victim off her guard.

TRIBUTE TO OSCAR EATON

Life History of Prominent Member of Grange Who Died Recently.

PORTLAND, June 26.—The faint survivors of the men who 50 years ago calmly staked their lives to maintain the Union and who unscathed by bullets or disease carried the flag from Ball's Bluff to Appomattox now draw near the days when only their families will remain. The strength of youth is gone, but the spirit of those days is not dead; it is latent in the hearts of a younger generation.

Oscar Eaton, who died at Oswego, Or., June 19, was born at Portland, Chautauqua County, New York, August 8, 1820, of early New England stock, his ancestors having come from Wales in 1540.

Three generations of the Eatons had borne arms in American wars when the summons of "V" came to the twenty-sixth settlement in Northern Michigan, where he then lived. Like in any other patriotic men who found themselves on the frontier with a young family, he hesitated long between conflicting calls of duty, but when the draft was invoked (he would relate), "I wouldn't be drafted anyhow, and my wife said, 'You may go if you feel you must. I'll get along somehow.'"

What that somehow meant a diary kept by this pioneer woman reveals. Mr. Eaton served with the Twenty-sixth Michigan Volunteer Infantry until April, 1865, nearly three years, and his regiment was engaged in many important battles in the bloody campaign of 1864. In 1871 he brought his family to Oregon, settling at Forest Grove, where he lived nine years. In 1880 he bought a farm near Oswego. In recent years Mr. Eaton was a familiar figure at meetings of the Congregational Association, of which church he was a member and deacon, and of the G. A. R. and Grange. In politics he was a Republican.

Mrs. Eaton died in 1887. Five of their six children grew to maturity and four survive. They are Mrs. A. J. Thompson, of Oswego; L. D. Eaton, of Umatilla County; and Mrs. H. E. Thomson and D. G. Eaton, of Okanogan Lake, B. C. E.

FOUGHT IN INDIAN WARS

Francis J. D. Wolff Was Oregon Pioneer of 1856.

Francis J. D. Wolff, who died at Colville, Wash., Thursday, June 24, was an Oregon pioneer of 1856 and participated in the Indian wars of 1856-57. He served afterward as scout, under Major General Nelson A. Miles, and lived at Fort Walla Walla and Colville, where he held many offices of trust during the early territorial days.

The Late Francis J. D. Wolff.

The last issue of the Washington Historical Quarterly contains this reference to him in an article by W. P. Winans, headed "Fort Colville, 1859 to 1869":

During the next two months, Colonel George Wright organized a force at Walla Walla to punish the Indians for their attack on Lieutenant Colonel Stephen. About the same time a party of 167 militia, traders and trappers, knowing of the defeat of Stephen by the Spokanes and of Major Haller by the Yakimas, headed by the danger, under the guidance of David McLaughlin, son of Dr. McLaughlin, of the Hudson Bay Company, started from Walla Walla, July 21, 1858, for the newly discovered gold fields of Fraser River, crossed Snake River, journeyed over the plain of Big Bend to the Columbia, opposite the mouth of the Okanogan without very serious trouble, losing but one man who lagged behind. Here the Indians told them they crossed the river they would have to fight.

This did not deter them, for after a talk with Francis DeWolf, agent of the Hudson Bay Company, organized an advance guard under Francis Wolff, and went three days' journey to the Okanogan River, where they found an Indian, and on hearing the McLaughlin Canyon, a narrow pass with almost perpendicular walls, the trail indicated the presence of Indians and the command closed up. The advance guard started into the canyon but soon discovered an ambush and lost three killed and many wounded over the place of guard retreated to the river.

Mr. Wolff is survived by a wife and six children. They are: Kathryn Wolff, of Spokane; Mrs. H. H. Hubbard, of Corning, N. Y.; Frank E. Laurence R. and Percival A. of this city, and Lester R. of Seattle.

PLAYS PIANO UPSIDE DOWN

Writes Peculiar Letter—Reward for Correct Interpretation of It.

Onap, who treated such a furore in London with his marvelous act of playing a high-grade piano suspended in mid-air and turning completely around, who is to appear at the Grand Hotel coming week, writes Ellers Piano House as follows:

"Lufs—see case billit Caym. rofo na ips Rell ana evahn—ACIL"

Five dollars in gold will be paid to the first correct translation brought to our grand piano saleroom after Monday morning at 9 o'clock by any young lady not over 18 years of age who is studying music at some local school or teacher of music. And a second prize of a box party will be given by the management of the Grand to the second correct reply received qualified as above. Replies must be submitted in writing and in case of the neatness of reply, legibility and punctuation will determine the winners. SAYS SYSTEM IS WRONG

R. C. Wright Explains His Stand on Service of Executions.

Referring to the Moore vs. Million case, in which an article appeared about a 25-cent fee for an order, the attorney for the plaintiff, R. C. Wright, desires his version of the facts to be given. Mr. Wright says it concerns the whole system of the service of executions, which he says is wrong. It appears to have been the custom with the Constable, says Mr. Wright, when a corporation makes a certificate that it owes the defendant money, at once to return the execution into court and refuse to collect the money because the corporation demands that an order of court be made requiring it to pay the money into court, as a so-called receipt for it.

The attorney believes he will be backed by the opinion of the bar that this practice is entirely wrong, and it was to effect a change, he says, that he refused to put the defendant to further expense for an order, as the garnishee proposed, and which he contended was unnecessary and not required by law. He maintains the execution should not have been returned by the Constable before collecting the money, but that the company can at once relieve itself of further responsibility by paying over the defendant's money to the Constable and taking his receipt for it across the face of the copy of execution served on the garnishee. At the same time, he says, the company should promptly notify the defendant of such payment, so he can make his claims for exemption, if any.

There is no law, Mr. Wright says, compelling the plaintiff to get an order for payment of money on an execution when admitted to be due the defendant by the garnishee in its certificate. In fact, it is quite the contrary. Section 224 of the code says: "If it appears from the certificate of the garnishee that he is owing a debt to the judgment debtor, which is then due, if such debt is not paid by such garnishee to the Sheriff on demand, he shall levy on the property of the garnishee for the amount thereof, in all respects as if the execution was against the property of the garnishee; but if such debt be not then due, the Sheriff shall sell the same according to the certificate, as if other property." It is therefore plain to be seen, says Mr. Wright, that if the Constable returns the execution merely with the certificate of the garnishee and without collecting the money admitted to be due, the execution has ceased to exist in force, and has failed to accomplish the levy as ordered in it by the court.

Neither should the defendant in fairness be put to further expense for an alias execution to accomplish what should have been done by the original, he contends. Because this has been done daily, he asserts, does not make it law by force of habit or custom. Business men will be met with these difficulties continually unless the erroneous system is changed to comply with the procedure required by the statute, says Mr. Wright. The attorneys who are constantly bringing cases in Justice Court, and attorneys for corporations, he believes, all know the system described is wrong in practice and, he contends, they should get to work to have business done properly in a city of the size of Portland, which makes pretensions to do things right. The Justice Courts here, he says, are no longer of the kind found in the backwoods. An immense amount of business, greater than the general public is aware of, he says, is being daily transacted in the Justice Courts, and he feels it should be done right.

DOCTOR KNEW

Had Tried It Himself.

The doctor who has tried Postum knows that it is an easy, certain, and pleasant way out of the coffee habit and all of the ails following and he prescribes it for his patients as did a physician of Proserptown, N. J.

One of his patients says: "During the summer just past I suffered terribly with a heavy feeling at the pit of my stomach and dizzy feelings in my head and then a blindness would come over my eyes so I would have to sit down. I would get so nervous I could hardly control my feelings."

"Finally I spoke to our family physician about it and he asked if I drank coffee and he told me to stop that I did. He told me to immediately stop drinking coffee and drink Postum in its place as he and his family had used Postum and found it a powerful re-builder and delicious food drink."

"I hesitated for a time, disliking the idea of having to give up my coffee but finally I got a package and found it to be all the doctor said."

"Since drinking Postum in place of coffee my dizziness, blindness and nervousness are all gone, my bowels are regular and I am again well and strong. This is a short statement of what Postum has done for me."
