

IT'S SIMPLE TO BE DRESSY, GENTLE MAIDEN, WHEN TAKING A SAUNTER TO THE BEACH

In the Present Heated Season, When the People Flee the Cities, Mildly Often Burdens Herself With What She Never Needs—Hence These Timely Hints From One Who Knows.

rest rooms, etc. There are all kinds of special privileges for the wearers of the blue association badge—free excursions, hand concerts and exhibitions. Today a number of receptions, both public and private, gave an opportunity for the pleasures of sociability, and the wealth, by the feminine delegates at least, of the pretty and becoming gowns that gave a "society butterfly" appearance to even the most serious of "school business." Friends and acquaintances from institutions of learning in every state in the Union exchanged greetings and frivolous conversation over punch glasses and lemon cream plates. College friendships were renewed, and pleasant new acquaintances formed, and views exchanged that had nothing to do with university education. Among those who sent greetings to Portland friends were Miss Sabin, now of Milwaukee Downer College, Wisconsin, and Professor Clyde A. Dunaway, now president of the University of Montana.

Thing Barber Couldn't Stand

And That Was the Reason He Marked Inquisitive Customer.

New York Sun.
The boss called the barber at the second chair aside and asked him why he had marked the customer who had a few minutes previously left the shop.
"You are the oldest man in the shop and you ought to set a better example to these new fellows," the boss continued. "How did you ever come to do what you did, anyway?"

Then the little man at chair 2 stood up and replied:
"Well, everybody has an idea that they can tell a barber a whole lot and then get him started talking, and then they go away and abuse us because we acted as if we thought this was a gabfest."

"That customer came in here as you saw and crawled down into my chair. While I was tucking the towel around his neck he asked me how I liked the weather. I turned around just then and pretended not to hear him. The weather doesn't bother me."

"Then I began to lather him and as I was rubbing it in he asked me how was business. I wondered if he was a student of his, but I just said 'Fine,' and kept on rubbing."

"Then as I was soaping him for real business, you understand, he asked me how was my razor, and before I could say anything he went on to say that he didn't want to be backed, as he was going to a party and wanted to be recognized."

"Well, I thought that was getting pretty close to the limit, but I acted as if I hadn't heard what he said. I was doing my best to give him a clean shave, when he said that he thought it would not be a bad idea for me to stop the razor on a joint of stovepipe or the sole of my boot, so as to give it an edge."

"I never had anybody say a thing like that to me ever since. I was an expert at that time. What would you have done under such an insult?"

"That was an insult," replied the boss; "still you must remember that we have to put up with all sorts. I would have considered the source."

"Well, I didn't say anything even then. I kept right on until I got through, and he had as good a shave as he ever had in his life."

"You had done nothing to him up to that time," asked the boss.
"Not a thing," answered chair 2. "Just as I was about to hand him the bay rum tonic, which outlined the tailored seams of the princess skirt to the short bodice were of the goods, finely stitched, and the bodice itself was of the same material, which outlined the bodice with an embroidered French knot around the line of the yoke and at the edges of the short sleeves, which were formed of over-lapping two-inch plaits. The trim was of fine lace with gold jewelry, exquisitely dainty and pretty."

And as to the Headgear.
From her well-stocked hatbox the clever and experienced packer chose a dainty bit of millinery in black and white, of wide brim, but of such type that the headgear was not too heavy for getting it into the traveling case could not injure it. About the fragile flower stems tissue paper was quickly wrapped, three pairs of gloves were deftly folded into the crown, with a dozen fresh handkerchiefs and a violet sachet bag, and the hat was laid in, crown downward, in the center of the two crowns. A kimono and night robe were laid in on the top and the lid snapped shut with everything inside necessary for the fresh, dainty and charming appearance of the owner every day for a whole week at beach or mountain resort.

Only Two Elaborate Frocks.
Only two of the more elaborate costume frocks were put into the case, but each of these was of suitable fashion and color for wear either at dinner, dancing, solace, garden party, or afternoon affair of any sort. These two frocks are sketched in No. 6 and No. 7. Of soft clinging broadcloth in a peculiar, deepened hue of rich blue was the princess apron frock shown in No. 6, with yoke border and sleeve edgings, of satin in a still deeper and darker shade. The bodice was also in evidence edging the polonaise effect of the princess apron, which was of the overskirt design. A gimp and long clinging sleeves of fine cream toned chiffon, with tiny tucks completed this pretty and dainty costume.

No. 7 was of some smart novelty cloth in a dainty rose color, and among its effective features were the large buttons, exactly matching the color of the frock, and of some substance similar to the so-called "pearl" buttons, which outlined the bodice and the princess skirt to the short bodice were of the goods, finely stitched, and the bodice itself was of the same material, which outlined the bodice with an embroidered French knot around the line of the yoke and at the edges of the short sleeves, which were formed of over-lapping two-inch plaits. The trim was of fine lace with gold jewelry, exquisitely dainty and pretty."

And as to the Headgear.
From her well-stocked hatbox the clever and experienced packer chose a dainty bit of millinery in black and white, of wide brim, but of such type that the headgear was not too heavy for getting it into the traveling case could not injure it. About the fragile flower stems tissue paper was quickly wrapped, three pairs of gloves were deftly folded into the crown, with a dozen fresh handkerchiefs and a violet sachet bag, and the hat was laid in, crown downward, in the center of the two crowns. A kimono and night robe were laid in on the top and the lid snapped shut with everything inside necessary for the fresh, dainty and charming appearance of the owner every day for a whole week at beach or mountain resort.

Only Two Elaborate Frocks.
Only two of the more elaborate costume frocks were put into the case, but each of these was of suitable fashion and color for wear either at dinner, dancing, solace, garden party, or afternoon affair of any sort. These two frocks are sketched in No. 6 and No. 7. Of soft clinging broadcloth in a peculiar, deepened hue of rich blue was the princess apron frock shown in No. 6, with yoke border and sleeve edgings, of satin in a still deeper and darker shade. The bodice was also in evidence edging the polonaise effect of the princess apron, which was of the overskirt design. A gimp and long clinging sleeves of fine cream toned chiffon, with tiny tucks completed this pretty and dainty costume.

No. 7 was of some smart novelty cloth in a dainty rose color, and among its effective features were the large buttons, exactly matching the color of the frock, and of some substance similar to the so-called "pearl" buttons, which outlined the bodice and the princess skirt to the short bodice were of the goods, finely stitched, and the bodice itself was of the same material, which outlined the bodice with an embroidered French knot around the line of the yoke and at the edges of the short sleeves, which were formed of over-lapping two-inch plaits. The trim was of fine lace with gold jewelry, exquisitely dainty and pretty."

And as to the Headgear.
From her well-stocked hatbox the clever and experienced packer chose a dainty bit of millinery in black and white, of wide brim, but of such type that the headgear was not too heavy for getting it into the traveling case could not injure it. About the fragile flower stems tissue paper was quickly wrapped, three pairs of gloves were deftly folded into the crown, with a dozen fresh handkerchiefs and a violet sachet bag, and the hat was laid in, crown downward, in the center of the two crowns. A kimono and night robe were laid in on the top and the lid snapped shut with everything inside necessary for the fresh, dainty and charming appearance of the owner every day for a whole week at beach or mountain resort.

Only Two Elaborate Frocks.
Only two of the more elaborate costume frocks were put into the case, but each of these was of suitable fashion and color for wear either at dinner, dancing, solace, garden party, or afternoon affair of any sort. These two frocks are sketched in No. 6 and No. 7. Of soft clinging broadcloth in a peculiar, deepened hue of rich blue was the princess apron frock shown in No. 6, with yoke border and sleeve edgings, of satin in a still deeper and darker shade. The bodice was also in evidence edging the polonaise effect of the princess apron, which was of the overskirt design. A gimp and long clinging sleeves of fine cream toned chiffon, with tiny tucks completed this pretty and dainty costume.

No. 7 was of some smart novelty cloth in a dainty rose color, and among its effective features were the large buttons, exactly matching the color of the frock, and of some substance similar to the so-called "pearl" buttons, which outlined the bodice and the princess skirt to the short bodice were of the goods, finely stitched, and the bodice itself was of the same material, which outlined the bodice with an embroidered French knot around the line of the yoke and at the edges of the short sleeves, which were formed of over-lapping two-inch plaits. The trim was of fine lace with gold jewelry, exquisitely dainty and pretty."

And as to the Headgear.
From her well-stocked hatbox the clever and experienced packer chose a dainty bit of millinery in black and white, of wide brim, but of such type that the headgear was not too heavy for getting it into the traveling case could not injure it. About the fragile flower stems tissue paper was quickly wrapped, three pairs of gloves were deftly folded into the crown, with a dozen fresh handkerchiefs and a violet sachet bag, and the hat was laid in, crown downward, in the center of the two crowns. A kimono and night robe were laid in on the top and the lid snapped shut with everything inside necessary for the fresh, dainty and charming appearance of the owner every day for a whole week at beach or mountain resort.

Only Two Elaborate Frocks.
Only two of the more elaborate costume frocks were put into the case, but each of these was of suitable fashion and color for wear either at dinner, dancing, solace, garden party, or afternoon affair of any sort. These two frocks are sketched in No. 6 and No. 7. Of soft clinging broadcloth in a peculiar, deepened hue of rich blue was the princess apron frock shown in No. 6, with yoke border and sleeve edgings, of satin in a still deeper and darker shade. The bodice was also in evidence edging the polonaise effect of the princess apron, which was of the overskirt design. A gimp and long clinging sleeves of fine cream toned chiffon, with tiny tucks completed this pretty and dainty costume.

No. 7 was of some smart novelty cloth in a dainty rose color, and among its effective features were the large buttons, exactly matching the color of the frock, and of some substance similar to the so-called "pearl" buttons, which outlined the bodice and the princess skirt to the short bodice were of the goods, finely stitched, and the bodice itself was of the same material, which outlined the bodice with an embroidered French knot around the line of the yoke and at the edges of the short sleeves, which were formed of over-lapping two-inch plaits. The trim was of fine lace with gold jewelry, exquisitely dainty and pretty."

And as to the Headgear.
From her well-stocked hatbox the clever and experienced packer chose a dainty bit of millinery in black and white, of wide brim, but of such type that the headgear was not too heavy for getting it into the traveling case could not injure it. About the fragile flower stems tissue paper was quickly wrapped, three pairs of gloves were deftly folded into the crown, with a dozen fresh handkerchiefs and a violet sachet bag, and the hat was laid in, crown downward, in the center of the two crowns. A kimono and night robe were laid in on the top and the lid snapped shut with everything inside necessary for the fresh, dainty and charming appearance of the owner every day for a whole week at beach or mountain resort.

Only Two Elaborate Frocks.
Only two of the more elaborate costume frocks were put into the case, but each of these was of suitable fashion and color for wear either at dinner, dancing, solace, garden party, or afternoon affair of any sort. These two frocks are sketched in No. 6 and No. 7. Of soft clinging broadcloth in a peculiar, deepened hue of rich blue was the princess apron frock shown in No. 6, with yoke border and sleeve edgings, of satin in a still deeper and darker shade. The bodice was also in evidence edging the polonaise effect of the princess apron, which was of the overskirt design. A gimp and long clinging sleeves of fine cream toned chiffon, with tiny tucks completed this pretty and dainty costume.

No. 7 was of some smart novelty cloth in a dainty rose color, and among its effective features were the large buttons, exactly matching the color of the frock, and of some substance similar to the so-called "pearl" buttons, which outlined the bodice and the princess skirt to the short bodice were of the goods, finely stitched, and the bodice itself was of the same material, which outlined the bodice with an embroidered French knot around the line of the yoke and at the edges of the short sleeves, which were formed of over-lapping two-inch plaits. The trim was of fine lace with gold jewelry, exquisitely dainty and pretty."

And as to the Headgear.
From her well-stocked hatbox the clever and experienced packer chose a dainty bit of millinery in black and white, of wide brim, but of such type that the headgear was not too heavy for getting it into the traveling case could not injure it. About the fragile flower stems tissue paper was quickly wrapped, three pairs of gloves were deftly folded into the crown, with a dozen fresh handkerchiefs and a violet sachet bag, and the hat was laid in, crown downward, in the center of the two crowns. A kimono and night robe were laid in on the top and the lid snapped shut with everything inside necessary for the fresh, dainty and charming appearance of the owner every day for a whole week at beach or mountain resort.

Only Two Elaborate Frocks.
Only two of the more elaborate costume frocks were put into the case, but each of these was of suitable fashion and color for wear either at dinner, dancing, solace, garden party, or afternoon affair of any sort. These two frocks are sketched in No. 6 and No. 7. Of soft clinging broadcloth in a peculiar, deepened hue of rich blue was the princess apron frock shown in No. 6, with yoke border and sleeve edgings, of satin in a still deeper and darker shade. The bodice was also in evidence edging the polonaise effect of the princess apron, which was of the overskirt design. A gimp and long clinging sleeves of fine cream toned chiffon, with tiny tucks completed this pretty and dainty costume.

No. 7 was of some smart novelty cloth in a dainty rose color, and among its effective features were the large buttons, exactly matching the color of the frock, and of some substance similar to the so-called "pearl" buttons, which outlined the bodice and the princess skirt to the short bodice were of the goods, finely stitched, and the bodice itself was of the same material, which outlined the bodice with an embroidered French knot around the line of the yoke and at the edges of the short sleeves, which were formed of over-lapping two-inch plaits. The trim was of fine lace with gold jewelry, exquisitely dainty and pretty."

And as to the Headgear.
From her well-stocked hatbox the clever and experienced packer chose a dainty bit of millinery in black and white, of wide brim, but of such type that the headgear was not too heavy for getting it into the traveling case could not injure it. About the fragile flower stems tissue paper was quickly wrapped, three pairs of gloves were deftly folded into the crown, with a dozen fresh handkerchiefs and a violet sachet bag, and the hat was laid in, crown downward, in the center of the two crowns. A kimono and night robe were laid in on the top and the lid snapped shut with everything inside necessary for the fresh, dainty and charming appearance of the owner every day for a whole week at beach or mountain resort.

Only Two Elaborate Frocks.
Only two of the more elaborate costume frocks were put into the case, but each of these was of suitable fashion and color for wear either at dinner, dancing, solace, garden party, or afternoon affair of any sort. These two frocks are sketched in No. 6 and No. 7. Of soft clinging broadcloth in a peculiar, deepened hue of rich blue was the princess apron frock shown in No. 6, with yoke border and sleeve edgings, of satin in a still deeper and darker shade. The bodice was also in evidence edging the polonaise effect of the princess apron, which was of the overskirt design. A gimp and long clinging sleeves of fine cream toned chiffon, with tiny tucks completed this pretty and dainty costume.

No. 7 was of some smart novelty cloth in a dainty rose color, and among its effective features were the large buttons, exactly matching the color of the frock, and of some substance similar to the so-called "pearl" buttons, which outlined the bodice and the princess skirt to the short bodice were of the goods, finely stitched, and the bodice itself was of the same material, which outlined the bodice with an embroidered French knot around the line of the yoke and at the edges of the short sleeves, which were formed of over-lapping two-inch plaits. The trim was of fine lace with gold jewelry, exquisitely dainty and pretty."

"A Safe Place to Trade"—Best Values, Lowest Prices

The wonderful money-saving opportunities we have been offering in furniture and carpets this month have been taken advantage of by thousands. On carpets we can save you big money, as we are closing them out at actual cost. Be sure to see our furniture and our low prices before you buy a single article. The following prices will show you that we mean business:

Try One of Our "Solid Comfort" Silkoline Mattresses, Special $6.50

Soft Cotton Top
Mattress $2.50

Midsummer Furniture Sale
Everything in the store reduced. Come and get our prices. We will convince you that we are the cheapest furniture house in the city.

Carpets and Room Rugs
We have some remnants which we are still making further reductions on.

Axminster Carpets now....$1
Roxbury Tapestry, 10-wire...$1
Good Tapestry Carpet now...75c
All-wool Ingrain Carpet...65c
9x12 Axminster Rug...$18.50
9x11 Tapestry Brussels Rug...$10
9x12 Ingrain all-wool...$8.50
9x9 Ingrain all-wool Rug...$7
9x12 Bokanay Rug...$12.50

Sp'cl
6.75

Couch exactly like out, with hardwood frame; covered with the very best velours, in any color; the springs are highly tempered, and the upholstery is good; the best couch ever offered to the public; this week only.....$6.75

We have a complete line of Stoves and Ranges.

Special attention to Mail Orders.

Mattings from 15c and up. Lace Curtains, complete line.

Dresser Special
This Dresser in a solid wood beautiful golden oak finish. Two top drawers are divided and serpentine size of mirror 18x24. French bevel plate, top of dresser is 26x24. Inlaid price $14. Our sale price $9.50

Mantel Folding Bed, like cut, golden oak finish, good strong 3 and 4-wire woven wire spring. Special price $9.50

Taubenheimer & Schmeer Carpet and Furniture Co. 174 FIRST ST. COR. YAMHILL

ELINOR GLYN DECLARES DIVORCE BOON TO WORLD

Author of "Three Weeks" Says Those Who Condemn Play Do So Without Thought or Justice.

ELINOR GLYN'S dramatization of her own story, "Three Weeks," points out divorce emphatically as a boon to the world, for were such a thing possible in the life of the Lady in "Three Weeks," the play might have a different end. "In this respect," said Mrs. Glyn recently, "it is a powerful rebuke to the narrow-minded bigots who would make men and women bear for life the consequences of mistakes they made in unconscious ignorance. It also contains a mute appeal from woman for love and affection from man—love that lives and manifests itself as much after marriage as before. In this everyday world man takes too much for granted, and many a wife who should be nourished and inspired by affection and love, figuratively starves for want of it."

Elinor Glyn, Author of "Three Weeks."

July 18, as Mrs. Glyn is traveling with the company, coming direct from San Francisco here.

EX-SULTAN IS DEFENDANT

Former Court Jeweler Sue Abdul Hamid for Loss of Trade.

BERLIN, July 17.—(Special.)—An interesting legal action is pending against Abdul Hamid, the ex-Sultan. The plaintiff, a firm of Constantinian jewellers named Constantandara Brothers, they were court jewelers to Abdul Hamid, but the latter's spies having ascertained that the firm had business relations with Rechal Effendi, now the Sultan Mehmed, Abdul Hamid ordered the shop to be closed and expelled the proprietors.

Messrs. Constantandara estimate their loss at $300,000, but owing to the heavy fees payable to the tribunal, are asking $20,000 only now, reserving the right to proceed for the recovery of the balance later.

Upon the application of the petitioners the tribunal yesterday issued a warrant ordering "Abdul Hamid, dethroned Sultan," to appear and offer his defense before the court in Salonika on July 25.

The warrant was handed to a process-server, who went to the Villa Allatini, Abdul Hamid's residence. He was refused admission by the guard, and on demanding to see the officer in charge, was informed that the villa was under military control and that it was impossible to serve a writ except through the medium of the commander of the Third Army Corps, Mahmoud Chekfat Pasha.

The president of the tribunal has accordingly written to the Governor of the vilayet, enclosing the writ and requesting him to make the necessary arrangements.

BRIAND KEPT GIFT WATCH

Clever Scheme Enables Minister to Secure Good Timepiece.

PARIS, July 17.—(Special.)—An amusing little adventure happened the other day to the French Minister of Justice, M. Briand. He paid an official visit to a little town in the southeast of France, which is famous for its clocks and watches. The minister opened the local exhibition, and after the speeches the local Mayor presented him with a magnificent chronometer made in the town.

"If Your Excellency will allow," he said, "we will keep the watch for a few days and regulate it."

M. Briand, though a Socialist, has a sense of humor, comes from the south of France himself, and knows that promises there are not always kept. He knew, too, that a collector had the same watch given to him last year, that it had been kept to be regulated, and that it had not yet reached Paris.

So M. Briand, who is Minister of Justice, shook M. de Maistre warmly by the hand, told him that he was a bit of a clock-maker himself, and would enjoy putting the watch in order, and after only a few minutes he had the watch in his pocket, while he did so of the kindness of the town which had presented it to him. M. Briand has discovered that the watch is an excellent timekeeper.

One-third of all the tonnage under the American flag is employed on the Great Lakes.

Armies of Teachers at Denver

Manual Training, Technical Work, Domestic Science and Beastly Weather the Principal Topics for the National Educational Association.

BY LILIAN TINGLE.

DENVER, Colo., July 7.—The famous Denver climate appears to have some of the characteristics of the small boy—or girl for that matter, who persists in "showing off" and "acting up" when visitors are present. Or it may be that it is the concentration of brain power, due to the presence of over 200 leading educators in this city, which has produced the electrical disturbance of the last few days.

Searching heat and a thunder storm last before dinner have come to be regarded as regular, though unofficial, features of the programme of the National Educational Association now in session in this city. Old residents say that such weather is "most unusual" (What a lot of unusual weather there is in some places), and indeed, has not been known since the meeting of the National Educational Association here five years ago.

Boating is being enjoyed in some of the Denver streets, and every train brings in delayed association visitors or Fourth of July excursionists with exciting tales of floods and washouts, and hungry waits in out-of-the-way stations.

But in spite of all the weather man can do this, the fifth annual convention of the National Educational Association is regarded as one of the most successful and important in its history, both as regards numbers and interest of topics discussed. Technical education, manual training and domestic science are emphatically in the center of the stage, and are being taken up in some aspect in practically all sections. The change in the "center of gravity" of educational topics is most marked. As one Eastern university president remarked to me today—apropos of a masterly address in the general session by James W. Robertson of McDonald College, Quebec province, on "Education for the Improvement of Rural Conditions," "ten years ago some of us hardly regarded an agricultural college man as an educator," and we should have as soon expected a lecture on dressmaking in general session as a discussion of agricultural topics. Now we find such an address most largely attended and eagerly listened to by every earnest educational worker."

An audience of fully 2000 assembled in Denver's huge Auditorium to hear an address on "The need, scope and character of industrial education in the public school system," by the president of the association, Lorenzo D. Harvey, president of Stout Institute, Monmouth, Wis. One of the most interesting section meetings was that of the manual training department in which President W. J. Kerr of the Oregon Agricultural College delivered an address on "The Place of Industries in Education Considered From the Viewpoint of Agricultural Interests." He traced the development of agricultural education in the United States and emphasized the importance of attending this work until all the people engaged in agricultural pursuits shall be given the training required in preparation for their life work. He maintained that to accomplish this, it is necessary that agriculture be provided in all public rural schools, instead of depending upon the establishment of special separate agricultural schools. The latter, he said, must inevitably be isolated and too far removed from the people to accomplish the results desired.

Other speakers discussing the needs of urban communities in the line of technical education were mainly in favor of the establishment of separate trade schools and "continuation" schools somewhat on the German model.

Other Oregonians attending the meetings of this association are Professor Gaskins, of the O. A. C., and Professor Moore, of Salem. The date of the State Teachers' Association makes impossible the attendance of many Oregon educators in Denver. California, on the other hand, sends a large contingent conspicuous with yellow badges and "buttonholes" of California poppy. An effort is being made to secure the meeting of the next N. E. A. convention in San Francisco, and those in favor of this idea are provided with poppy badges by zealous Californians.

We Oregonians pondered on the success that might have attended similar efforts on our part, especially on warm afternoons, if we had been provided with "favors" in the shape of the big juicy red apples—real ones, of our state. But probably no supply could have equalled the demand.

Denver citizens have shown the most lavish hospitality to their guests. It would seem that every possible arrangement had been made for their comfort and convenience in the way of guides,

LOCAL LETTER-CARRIERS TO GIVE MUSICAL COMEDY

Funds to Send Delegates to National Convention Will Be Raised by Production of "The Adorable Fritzie."

M. Marks, Jr., Who Will Play Bins in "The Adorable Fritzie."

Miss Emma A. De Bold, Who Will Play Title Role in "The Adorable Fritzie."

WHEN the curtain of the Baker Theatre rises Thursday night, July 22, the letter-carriers of Portland will make their bow to the public as hosts in their first public theater party. As a medium for their entertainment they have chosen the three-act musical comedy, "The Adorable Fritzie." The story of the play is woven about an opera company that is stranded in Turkey. The Sultan, not deeming their performance worthy of the money he has paid for his tickets, demands return of the money and holds the prima donna, "The Adorable Fritzie," for ransom until the money shall have been repaid.

In order to escape the Sultan, Fritzie disguises as a slave and is sold to Jimmy Bluff, a wealthy American who is leaving the country. The two last acts are set in America and are full of love stories; the adorable one marries the man who got her and the troupe out of their predicament. The cast of characters is as follows: Junius Brutus Bins, M. Marks, Jr.; D. Ed Broke, Robert Taylor; Mustapha Bey, D. H. Quibby; Jimmy Bluff, O. L. Joann; Dicky, Harold T. Minor; The Adorable Fritzie, Miss Emma A. DeBold; Hal-dee, Miss Sherrida Dand; Lena, Miss Mary Cardiff.

M. Marks, who is well known in theatrical circles here, will be seen in a style of character entirely new to him, that of Bins, the property man of the defunct opera troupe, and will introduce his latest imitations of Harry Lauder, the famous Scotch comedian. Many novelties in music and stage action are promised, and scenically, electrically and from the standpoint of costume, this performance will rank with the best of its kind.

The play will be presented two nights and the proceeds will go to the fund for sending delegates to the National Convention of Letter-Carriers at St. Paul, Minn.

$1,000.00 REWARD IF SHE FAILS

WRINKLES

FREE BEAUTY COUPON

Good Tomorrow for This World's Most Famous Beauty Specialist

An opportunity is now offered every reader of this paper to consult the world's most famous beauty specialist, Harriet Meta, of Paris, London and Syracuse, absolutely free.

A little over three years ago there was nothing known which, in our judgment, would actually remove wrinkles, but at that time Meta made the important discovery which has since made her famous in two continents. She demonstrated the great power of her new process by taking her own wrinkles out with it in three nights, after a face of wrinkles, under strings, staining spots, etc., had all faded, and today Meta's face is still free from wrinkles, her cheeks are full and plump and her skin and complexion is a delight to behold. In fact, by many she is considered the most beautiful woman in all Paris.

Her remarkable discovery was brought before the judges of the Paris International Exposition and the Rome Exposition Internationale for their investigation, and in both instances they quickly awarded her Gold Medals thereon. The French Government also honored her with a patent on her new process, and patents are now pending before the U. S. Government at Washington.

London Journalists sent their Beauty Editors to investigate her methods, and their high endorsements of her discoveries made her famous almost overnight, so that she was eagerly sought after by French Countesses and English Ladies of high title and rank. The Beauty Editor of the London Outlook wrote, "An interview with Meta, I felt, was a discovery that here at last might be found the secret to restore youth and beauty."

Many of those who have used her process report most astonishing results.

Mrs. Mary J. Davis, of East St. Louis, Ill., says: "My wrinkles were very deep and of long standing, so you can imagine my surprise when, after only two applications, they entirely disappeared. Mrs. L. E. Haskell, of 2563 1/2 St. St. Louis, Mo., writes: 'I was fifty years old. Consequently my wrinkles were of long standing and I had not thought it possible to remove them, but now when I view my changed reflection in the mirror I can scarcely realize the transformation that has wrought.' Mrs. M. C. Edwards, of Raleigh, N. C., says: 'Since using the Treatment I have never again had a wrinkle twenty-five years ago.' Mrs. M. L. Lee, of 844 1/2 St. Richmond, Va., writes: 'I used the treatment one night and it succeeded in entirely removing my wrinkles, leaving my face as soft and free from lines as a child's.'

Since Meta made her remarkable discovery imitators have naturally sprung up all over the country. Some of them have copied Meta's advertisements and literature to such an extent that the public is often at a loss to distinguish the imitation from the real. We are therefore authorized to announce the following remarkable offer, which cannot fail to convince you as to who is the real one.

Meta will forfeit $1,000.00 in Gold if she fails to prove that she holds nine Gold Medals and three Grand Prix on her discovery from International Expositions. She will forfeit $1,000.00 in Gold if any one can prove that she did not take out her own wrinkles with it in three nights exactly as she claims. She will forfeit $1,000.00 in Gold if every testimonial and sworn statement which she publishes is not absolutely genuine.

Arrangements have been made with Meta to furnish free information in regard to her marvelous process for removing wrinkles to all readers. Merely cut out and send her the Coupon below and you will receive free particulars by return mail in a plain sealed envelope. You can use this remarkable process in the privacy of your own home without the knowledge of even your most intimate friends. It often works astonishing wonders in a single treatment over night.

WRINKLES
Cut out this coupon today and mail it to the world-famous beauty specialist, Harriet Meta, Suite 1021 N. Syracuse, N. Y. For free information in regard to her marvelous discovery for removing wrinkles. Good to all.