Hundred Machines Expected to Leave for Seattle Fair on August 15.

MOUNT HOOD RUN TODAY

Fifty Members of Club Will Speed Over Ideal Roads to Welch's Camp, Leaving Portland at 7:30 o'clock.

Plans for the run of the Portland Automobile Club to Seattle for participation in the activities of the A.-T.-P. Fair on Tuesday, August 17, are nearing completion.

Since the designation of the requested date by the exhibition management last week, advice has been received from the Seattle Automobile Club to the effect that the rubber-tired caravan from Portland will be welcomed upon its arrival in the exhibition city.

With the selection of the confetti car, which will precede the caravan in its start from Kelso on Sunday morning, August 15, all the minor details of the run have been completed.

Through Secretary Lipman, the local club is urging all the members to sign pledges for their participation in the run not later than August 15. This is being done to ascertain the extent of hotel, garage and other accommodations which will be required during the stay of three days in Seattle.

Maybe that bunch of Colts did not play some baseball yesterday. Chief Finnance pitched 22 innings without allowing a run.

After losing the first two games the Colts won four straight, and are due to play Vancouver at Seattle this afternoon.

Funny how Vernon loses so consistently to Los Angeles. Perhaps Danny Long might explain some things when he comes here next week—that is if he comes.

It is especially notable that the Vernon club had to disperse of its best pitcher just before meeting Los Angeles. Of course this can be explained readily.

Buddy Ryan was again the pinch-hitting kid, for Buddy's two-sacker scored Portland's first run. Later in the game Buddy was called out on a foul one and popped out another time.

Next week San Francisco comes to Portland for the purpose of taking four out of the six games, Danny Long says they will and he ought to know, being the boss of the umpires.

The southpaw, Jensen and Selver, had a pitchers' battle at Spokane yesterday, the former winning because his teammates registered one run, the only score of the game, in the ninth.

Julian Street, the writer, in his "Modern Mercures," a story of racing drivers, tells the typical incident of George Robertson, the writer of the "Van Hook" story, who is now under contract with the Harry S. Houpt Company to drive Houpt and Higginbotham cars.

"I'm sorry," said George Robertson, who looks as though nothing could move him, is nevertheless a very high-strung driver. In a race I have seen him acting like a raving maniac. He has been known to strike the men in the supply pits when they did not show speed enough to suit him.

E. E. Cohen, manager of the Maxwell Agency, has just returned from a trip to the Maxwell factories. He found the automobile business in the East in a flourishing condition. He has been assured of any consequences are enlarging their factories for an increased output for 1910.

By no means the least interesting of the Canadians will be the delegation from the Vancouver Boat Club of British Columbia, whose successes in the recent Northwestern regatta at Seattle resulted in the entry at Detroit. The Winnipeg Boat Club, whose oarsmen have globe-trotted quite extensively, will be well and largely represented. Against the oarsmen of the Upper Mississippi at St. Paul they made practically a clean sweep of the senior events. Six years ago on Lake Quinsigamond, in Worcester, Mass., the Winnipeg four convinced some of the effete Easterners that they knew a whole lot about rowing. A Winnipeg crew has also rowed at Han-

Eastern Canada is as well represented as Western Canada. From the St. Mary's A. A. of Halifax will go John O'Neill, winner of the association singles last year at Springfield, Mass., and in line for the championship title this time. O'Neill is being coached by that sterling ex-amateur, Frank B. L. Greer, National amateur champion for several years, who won back the title at Springfield last August, immediately afterward retiring from the amateur ranks. O'Neill was one of those whom Greer defeated that day.

A Canadian newcomer is the Lachine Boat Club of Montreal, over which Charles Stephenson, assistant crew coach at Harvard, in charge, assisted by Roger Cutler, who stroked the Harvard varsity in its winning race against Yale at New London this year. The Lachine oarsmen are pretty sure to be seen from before the medals are awarded.

At least four Toronto rowing organizations will be well represented. The two cities are virtually opposite each other, and thus the Toronto men have a chance to be victorious. Ottawa and Quebec oarsmen are also expected.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has ruled that the railroads may give the free use of a car for the transportation of shells to oarsmen who travel together on the same train in parties of 10 or more. This is a big lift in expense and means many more entries.

Naturally the Mount City Rowing Club's delegation will be the largest from St. Louis, but five other clubs from there will enter. St. Paul and New Orleans are also being counted on to increase the entries substantially.

MAC'S men dropped yesterday's game because they did not play baseball. Now they must win today in order to take the series.

After Jesse Garrett mounted the hill-top there was nothing doing for the Oaklanders. Jesse fanned Carroll, Duffy Lewis and Hogan successively in the ninth.

Frank M. Ish, uncle of J. Cal Ewing, who has the reputation of being one of the shrewdest business men of San Francisco, is also planning to visit Portland. However, Ish is not a stranger to this city, and his coming will be appreciated.

Danny Long, one day recently, waxed boastful and delivered a peroration to the mouthpiece of the San Francisco magnates in which he calmly announced that San Francisco would take four out of the six games to be played in Portland. Of course, Danny knows, and it may be that he is coming to Portland for the purpose of adding his august presence towards intimidating the more or less easily intimidated umpires.

Still, it is not always good policy to boast, even if one happens to be secretary of the league and boss of the umpires, for the Portland team right now is in better condition to give the Seals battle than at any other time this season.

For this reason the fans believe that even though Long is present, the home team will show the Seals the route in at least the majority of the games. Manager McCredie is confident that he will capture at least four of the games and there is not a single player among the members of that fast-going bunch but who believes just as does the manager.

Team Now at Best. The team is hustling every minute and working better together than at any time since the season opened.

San Francisco gets more than an even break in the last visit of that club to Portland this season, for the schedule includes no more trips North for the lads from the Golden Gate.

It will also be the third appearance of that team on the Vaughn-street lot, and all hands hope that the series will be chalked down on Portland's side of the score sheet. If McCredie does not beat San Francisco on the Portland lot, he stands but a small chance in the Seals' backyard.

The prospects of a grueling series and some fast and snappy baseball will bring out record crowds during the week, for everyone wants to see the two teams fighting for the pennant. The San Francisco Club has so far managed to escape the loss of a series since the opening week at Sacramento. On its last appearance in Portland, McCredie's lads secured an even break by winning three of the six games played.

Portland should have had a flock of runs in the first inning, but when Ryan was caught on the failed squeeze play, Christian settled down.

Harry Irwin, formerly a well-known newspaper man, for some time a member of the staff of the Kansas City Star, appears in "La Petete Revue." He is the basso whose voice attracted such wide attention during the engagement.

BEAVERS TO MEET SEALS THIS WEEK

Portland Players Will Put Up Battle of Season to Set Back Leaders.

DANNY LONG TO BE HERE

Secretary of Circuit and San Francisco Manager Finally Finds Time to Attend Series in This City.

BY W. J. PERRAIN. Commencing next Tuesday afternoon the Portland fans will be furnished with a treat in baseball, for the hardest series of the season will be inaugurated between the Portland and San Francisco clubs.

During the past month the Portland team has been climbing the ladder steadily, and when McCredie's boys face the Seals, who are leading the league, the crucial test of the mid-season strength of both teams will result.

Now that he is coming, it is likely to come, the Portland fans should prepare themselves to know how the most humble manner. Just think of it, Danny, the brains and backbone of the league, is finally coming to Portland. Why, the McCredies will show the height of disrespect if they don't meet him at the depot with corps of retainers and a brass band.

But, seriously, the visit of Long may open his eyes more than even the nice custom to take home each time the Seals played here. Anyhow, the visit of Long cannot hurt any more than the same courtesy on the part of any other mogul from the continuous baseball belt.

Ish Will Also Come. Frank M. Ish, uncle of J. Cal Ewing, who has the reputation of being one of the shrewdest business men of San Francisco, is also planning to visit Portland. However, Ish is not a stranger to this city, and his coming will be appreciated.

GOSSIP AND CHAT OF PLAYS AND PLAYERS

EDITED BY ARTHUR A. GREENE.

LOCALLY we are in the midst of the Summer theatrical fete. It can hardly be called the end of the season, for here the season is from everlasting unto everlasting.

For a week, and for another to come, the Bungalow, happy home of those chummy persons, "K & E," is a cave of gloom, tenanted only by "Fred" and "George," who sit at the wicket to tell comers to stick around until the Autumn, when there will be a good show.

Occasionally "Billy" and "Calvin H." show up to take a look at the advertising curtain, but otherwise all is peace and quiet. It has been a good year theatrically for Portland, despite the shifting of managements, the closing of the Hellins and other tribulations.

Out of a long list of creditable attractions, the discriminating observer would probably select as the very best, "The Honor of the Family," that splendid comedy in which Otis Skinner appeared so brilliantly. Three others run very closely for first honors. These were "Salvation Nell," "The Wolf" and "The Chorus Lady." There were many other fine things given us, but the ones named were the cream.

Next season's bookings look better than any in recent years, and when September comes we may expect something exceptionally good. Harry Irwin, formerly a well-known newspaper man, for some time a member of the staff of the Kansas City Star, appears in "La Petete Revue." He is the basso whose voice attracted such wide attention during the engagement.

A card from Donald Bowles announces that he is very happily located in St. Paul, and is enjoying his work as stage director of the James Nell stock company. Isetta Jewel, her mother, Mrs. Kenny, Miss Hazel Jewel and a party of friends made the run to Mount Hood in their motor car, Sunday.

Miss Elizabeth Goodall has been engaged for the principal woman's role in "Lo," by Harry Askin. Her part will be that of a Spanish noblewoman, the Countess Della Plata, who has an idea that she is a sort of composite Jean d'Arc and Bonchica, with a mission to reclaim Louisiana. Miss Goodall has been acting Georgia Drew's Mendum's old role of Mollie Kelley for Mr. Askin in a road cast of "The Time, the Place and the Girl," but she had a sound training in the legitimate and was for some years a member of the Charles Frohman forces, acting with E. H. Sothern, Virginia Harrod and William Faversham. Frank P. Adams and O. Henry have delivered the complete libretto of "Lo," and the work of engaging the company is going forward.

Mr. Askin has been forehanded enough to obtain a large allotment of "time" in Seattle in the height of the Yukon exposition's season, so that "Lo" will divide with Cohan in "The Yankee Prince," the musical comedy patronage of the Autumn visitors at the fair. The Nell stock company in St. Paul had a fine week with "The Man on the Box," with the following players: James Nell, George Allison, Donald Bowles, Charles Clary, George Bloomquist, Jack Armoury, Fred Wallace, E. M. Leonard, George A. Stevenson, Fred Wallace, Wilbert de Rouge, Edythe Chapman, Ethel von Waldron, Julia Walcott and Ruby Thorpe. "The Warrens of Virginia" will be used all the present week.

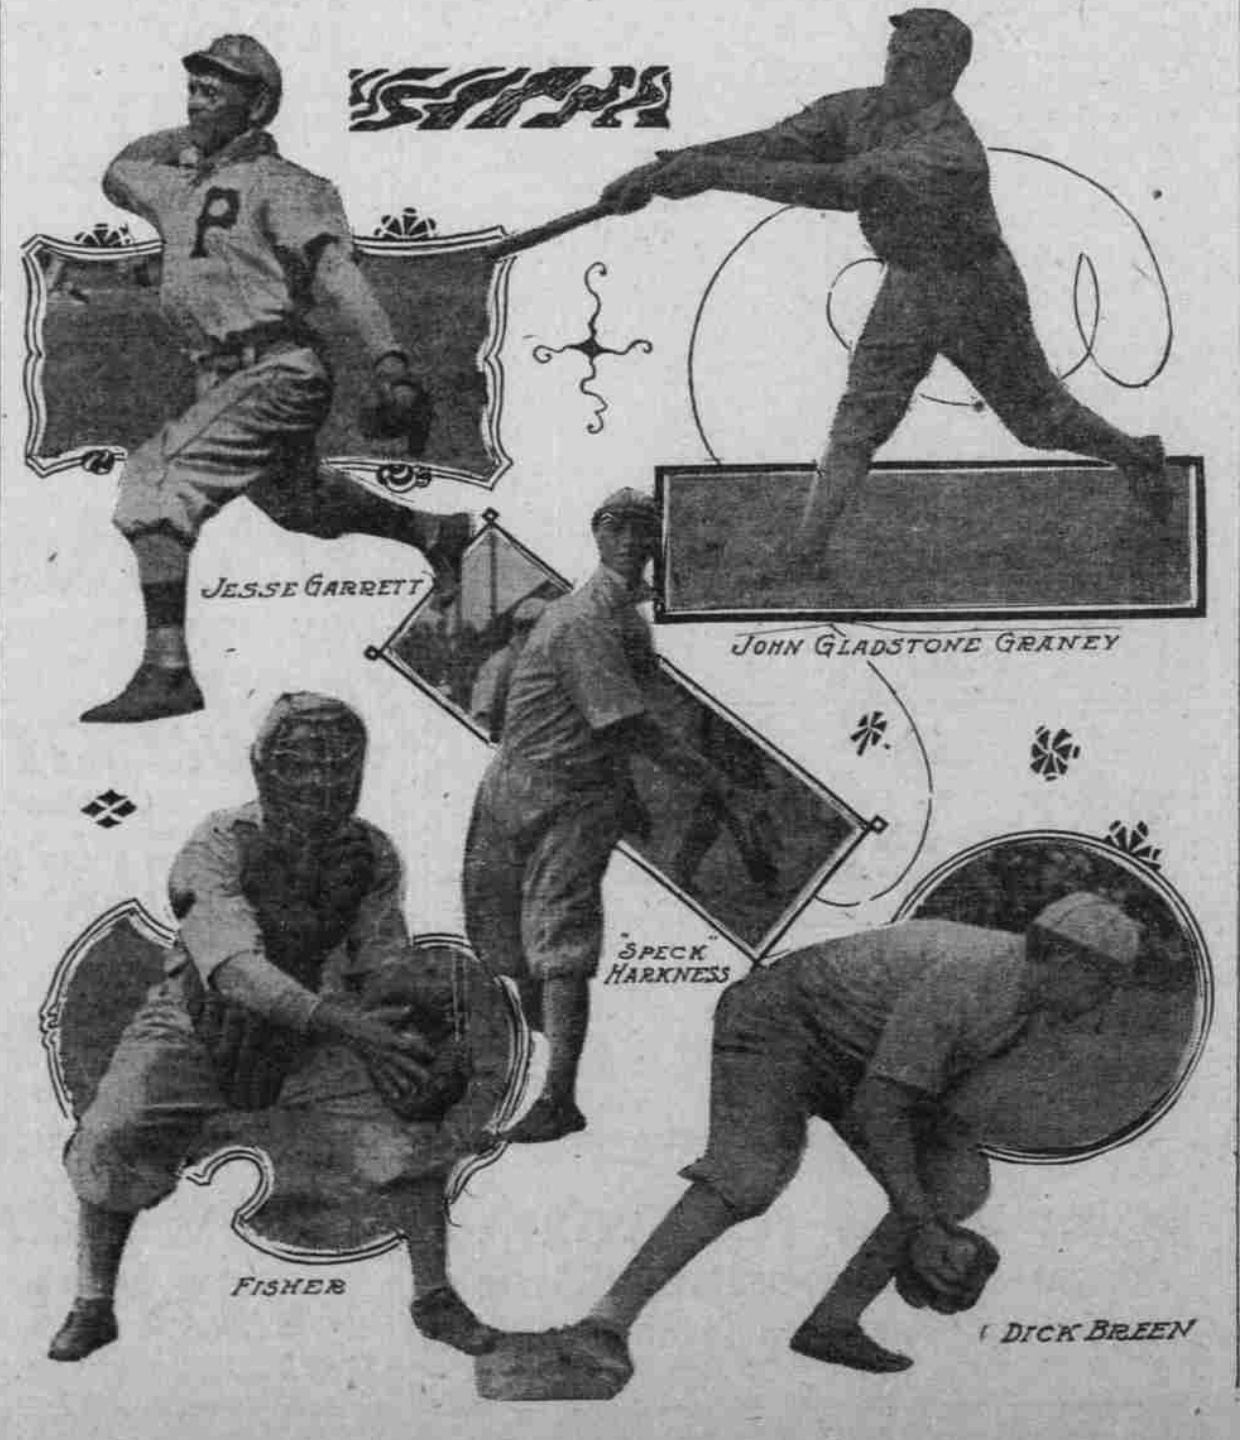

William Faversham has secured the rights for a new play by Charles Frederic Nirdlinger, just completed. Mr. Nirdlinger, who is the author of "The World and His Wife," which Mr. Faversham produced last Winter, is now in England and was lately the guest of Mr. Faversham at his country home at Chiddingfold, Surrey. John Bowers, last season leading man with Donald Robertson, will be Coniah Poynter's principal support this coming season.

"The Beauty Spot" will close its run at the Herald Square Theater on Saturday evening, August 14, and will go on tour. "The Broken Idol" will be the following attraction there, opening on Monday evening, August 15. Marie Dressler's tour will begin in October. A musical comedy has been selected for her. Contracts were signed the other day by Reginald De Koven and Harry B. Smith, with Oscar Hammerstein, for the production of "Tribby" as a grand opera at the Manhattan Opera House and the Philadelphia Opera House. Mr. Smith used the de Maurer book rather than the existing play as a foundation for his libretto in order to permit the introduction of new effects and lyrics advancement, and give Mr. De Koven the opportunity to use his musical gifts in a work of deep impression. Mr. De Koven is now devoting himself exclusively to his compositions for the opera, this being his first effort in the creation of a grand opera. The agreement calls for delivery of the work, during the Fall of 1910. Mr. Hammerstein consenting to a production of magnitude, both in the selection of a cast and ensemble. In all likelihood, Mary Garden will create the role of Tribby. With the production of the Philadelphia Opera House during the coming season, and the De Koven and Smith grand opera, "Tribby," Mr. Hammerstein is giving an impetus to native composers, the effect of which will prove invaluable to the musical education of our country.

A private performance of the "Gay Hussars" was given at the Garden Theatre, New York, last Wednesday. The audience was made up of Henry W. Savage's players. The tour of "Beverly of Graustark" will begin on August 21. Frank Mills has gone to Europe until September. He will be in the cast of "The Earth." "The Golden New Year" is the title of E. E. Kidder's new play for Marguerite Clarke. Margaret Anglin has a fresh vehicle for next season. She will appear in "La Decoy," a play by Victor Berton, which was produced at the Comedie Francaise on June 21. Children under the age of 15 are not permitted to enter New York moving picture houses unless accompanied by an adult. An ordinance imposes a penalty of from $10 to $50 for each violation. Ralph Stuart has given up starring, and next season will be a member of the company presenting Channing Pollock's "Such a Little Queen." Victor Herbert has completed the score of his first grand opera, "Katoma" and Oscar Hammerstein will produce it at his New York Manhattan Opera-House next season. The libretto is by J. B. Redding. Florence Roberts, who was forced to give up her engagement at the San Francisco Alcazar Theater because of illness, has not yet returned to the city, although she had arranged to star under the direction of the Shuberts next season. George M. Cohan, who is beyond all question the most prolific native writer of musical plays, America has yet produced, and internationally famous as the Yankee Doodle comedian, is going to play one-night stands next season. For the first time in his career, Clyde Fitch has written a play in which he resorts to murder. This piece is called "The City," which will be one of the first dramatic productions to be made by the Shuberts this Autumn. Mr. Fitch has requested the Shuberts to keep secret the theme of the story, and, contrary to custom, no advance information concerning the plot of the piece will be given. Orrin Johnson, heretofore identified exclusively either as a star or a leading man in dramatic productions, surprised his friends last week by taking the role of the operative hero in Henry W. Savage's new production of "The Gay Hussars." Two years ago Mr. Johnson was advised by the great baritone Samarcio Nirdlinger, just completed. Mr. Nirdlinger, who is the author of "The World and His Wife," which Mr. Faversham produced last Winter, is now in England and was lately the guest of Mr. Faversham at his country home at Chiddingfold, Surrey. John Bowers, last season leading man with Donald Robertson, will be Coniah Poynter's principal support this coming season. "The Beauty Spot" will close its run at the Herald Square Theater on Saturday evening, August 14, and will go on tour.
