A. B. Steinbach & Co. Advance Display of New Fall Suits and Overcoats

the new Fall suits are exceptionally fine. You'll find some very catchy new ideas in models and a very rich display of new weaves and patterns.

Some especially good things in Fall overcoats to show you.

Our Mr. A. B. Steinbach left Portland for the New York market early in April, to buy and supervise the make of our Fall suits and overcoats. By so doing he was able to purchase all our Fall lines prior to the rise of the tariff, thereby enabling us to sell our goods at the regular prices; there will be no advance on any of our Fall goods

The Diamond Question

What Kind of a Diamond to Buy and Where to Buy It? We have answered this question a thousand times and every one of our diamond customers seem so well pleased that they send their friends to us. THAT IS WHY we are doing such a large diamond business.

YOU RUN NO CHANCES in buying diamonds of us. We are in business as usual. OUR SUCCESS surely ought to demonstrate that we understand our business, and our methods certainly have met with the approval of the public. Others have found this out, why not you?

Our Solitaire Diamond Rings ranging in prices from $25 to $100 have been big sellers. We engage only expert diamond setters. All work done by us. Our Diamond Mountings are all 14 and 18 karat handmade and we have an extra large selection to choose from.

Have you seen our $10 Diamond Ring for misses? Regular price $15. About 25 left, so hurry. Let us show you our new style of mountings, the kind that make your diamonds look larger.

Consular Work Taught University of Oregon Will Fit Young Men for Service.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Or., Aug. 14.—(Special)—One of the courses of study that is receiving special emphasis at the University of Oregon during the coming year will be that given in preparation for the consular service.

The demand for young men for this branch of Government employment has increased greatly during the past few years, and many Oregon boys are making that important necessary for passing the required examinations.

The young man who is looking forward to the consular service as a career no longer finds it possible to seek out members of Congress and ask them to forward him, with recommendations, to the Department of State at Washington. Instead he must be preparing himself for the examination, which is the initial test of his fitness.

All of the subjects necessary for the examination have been given for some time at the University of Oregon, but they have not heretofore been grouped with reference to the consular service. The subjects required in the course include modern languages, higher mathematics, chemistry, Latin, anthropology, sociology, political science and economics, constitutional law, general history and English composition. The general direction of the course will be under the charge of the department of economics.
