

CASHIER MORRIS HERE TO TESTIFY

Oregon Trust & Savings Bank Official Will Appear Before Grand Jury.

CRIPPLED GIRL A LOSER

Other Last Day Depositors Asked to Testify—Louis J. Wilde May Be Summoned to Tell of Bond Deals—Done This Week.

First of all the officers of the defunct Oregon Trust & Savings Bank to offer to tell of the inside workings of the wrecked institution, W. Cooper Morris, ex-cashier, has come back to Portland from Tacoma and will go before the grand jury.

Yesterday Mr. Morris was in conference with his friends, the friends, it is understood, communicated to Mr. Morris that it might not be a bad idea for him to return, and that he is advising by their advice is evidenced by the fact that he will not talk.

Friends of Louis J. Wilde, who was prominent in certain bond transactions made by the bank, have been in communication with him also, for it is announced he will be in the city the first part of the week. A subpoena has been issued for him by the grand jury.

How Cripple Got Lost Savings.

It was shown yesterday at the investigation of the grand jury that even though they knew they were then involved and on the following morning the doors of the bank would be closed, the officials of the wrecked Oregon Trust & Savings Bank had permitted Miss Mitchell, a poor crippled girl, to deposit her modest savings in their tottering wreck.

Mr. Watts presented himself at the jury room yesterday morning, saying he had a story to tell if the jurymen thought it of any value in their investigation.

Miss Mitchell was a cripple and an invalid and had to be moved about in a chair. Mr. Watts wheeled the young woman up to the bank, where they were admitted and her deposit accepted.

She said she wanted to use $30 of the money, so she was given this sum in cash, a bank check for $200 and a check for her credit of $20. The very next morning payment was suspended.

In perhaps no other one act perpetrated by the wrecked bank, the officials of the past few days of its career did they display such disregard for the losses brought upon their victims as in this. It is believed Mr. Watts' story was admitted by the jury more than any other act or incident bearing upon the knowledge of the bank officials that they were taking money in the bank which they knew would be swallowed in the melioration of the wreck. Miss Mitchell is not now in the city.

Many other depositors who had put money into the bank on the last day were summoned to appear. Abe Henkle, of 72 North Third street, who had put in $200 on this day; from Paulus, a restaurant man, who has lost $100 in the same manner, and Mrs. Marie Deal, of Park street, a victim for $100, all told their stories to the jury. Effort was made to locate a number of depositors who have since changed their addresses but these were not found yesterday. Among this list with the amounts of their last deposits are: Helen Bacheller, $100; Harry Bacheller, 49 Flamingo street, $50; Richard Kneal, $25; Mrs. Dan J. Williamson, St. John, $50; Charles Casteel, 291 Second street, $10; C. W. Griffin, $15; G. A. Youngmeyer, formerly employed by the Homeyman Hardware Company, $10.

Story of Lost Securities.

Henry von Groenewald, superintendent of the Pinkerton detective agency in this city, was also a witness. He was called to tell what he knew about the disappearance of a bundle of bonds belonging to the bank at Drain, Or., which were missing for a time from the bank. Von Groenewald had assisted in locating them. The bonds, it is said, had been misplaced in the bank and were in the safe deposit vaults.

The task of looking into more of the wrongdoings of the bank's officers and directors will be taken up again Monday, when the members of the Clearing House, other depositors will be questioned.

Unless the examination of ex-cashier Morris and Louis J. Wilde is more than it is now expected, the investigation may be ended by the end of this week and the promised indictments issued.

MUSICAL COMEDY, "LO"

John E. Young and Large Company at Bungalow Next Sunday Night.

The most pretentious and costly musical organization ever sent out from Chicago is "Lo," the production which the Harry Askin Company has been rehearsing for the past two months at the Grand Opera House and which, after its performance at the Bungalow Theater, Twelfth and Morrison streets, for four nights beginning next Sunday, October 31, with a special matinee Wednesday, and a short tour of other cities of the Northwest, returns to the Grand for a long run. There are two acts and three scenes in "Lo," but so many costume trunks, such massive scenery and innumerable "props" are required that Mr. Askin has found that it will require three 60-foot baggage cars to transport it all. There are 25 chorus girls, 15 chorus men, 15 principals, while the carpenters, electricians, wardrobe women and executive staff make the organization number 75 or 76 people.

"Lo" was founded on the story by O. Henry, most celebrated of today's magazine writers, published in Collier's Weekly last Fall under the title of "He Also Serves," and O. Henry himself, in collaboration with Franklin R. Adams, has written the book and lyrics. A. Baldwin Sloan, composer of "The Gingerbread Man," "Jack and the Beanstalk," "The Mocking Bird" and dozens of phenomenally popular songs of the last decade, contributed the 15 musical numbers of the score. There is a snap and a swing, a rhythm and musical tunefulness to his songs which have an inimitable charm, and which enabled Mr. Temple to devise some remarkable dances and stage pictures.

John E. Young, the Johnny Hicks in "The Time, the Place and the Girl" for the past two years, heads the cast and his part is much similar to that of Hicks, giving him not only lines and situations of infinite humor, but also giving him an opportunity to sing four or five songs and dance as only he can, backed up in the majority of instances, by the stunning chorus. Dorothy Brenner, Annette Hall, Elizabeth Goodall, Juliet Lange, Mabelle Morley, David Kirkland, James A. Reynolds, Robert Wilson, George A. Leming, Harry Jones and Guy Primeau are others in the cast. The entire production has been staged by Edward F. Temple, the stage director who organized and produced the spectacles which made the New York Hippodrome in its first two years of existence the most famous playhouse in the world.

MRS. I. N. CARL SUCCUMBS

Wife of Railroad Engineer Dies at Russell-Street Home.

Mrs. Ivy May Carl, wife of G. E. Carl, an engineer in the employ of the O. R. & N. Co., died at her residence at 193 Russell street Friday afternoon. Mrs. Carl was born in Marysville, Kas., and removed to Ilwaco, Wash., with her parents when nine years old. From there

NEGLIGENCE IS CHARGED

S. H. GRUBER CRITICIZES RECEIVER DEVLIN.

Settlement of Nonpreferred Claims Declared to Have Been in Violation of Law.

PORTLAND, Or., Oct. 23.—(To the Editor.)—The article on page 14 of The Oregonian of this date headed "Devlin May Sue Bank Directors" gave me quite a little satisfaction and pleasure. But for the fact of my having started the ball rolling some two months ago in connection with the investigation of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank affairs, and the notoriety given by the daily newspapers, it is quite evident that no such action would have been taken by Mr. Devlin as receiver, as trying to hold the directors and others connected with the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank responsible for their appropriation of the depositors' money—or to put it more truthfully as to at least a portion of same—responsible for embezzlement of its funds, and on the part of others, to put it in the mildest terms, responsible for criminal negligence of their duties.

Mr. Devlin has been in charge of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank as its receiver for more than two years and as such should have known within three months from the time of his appointment of the conditions which have recently been made known through the newspapers in connection with the misappropriation of the funds of the bank. But notwithstanding all that information he has allowed more than two years to pass without attempting to compel the restitution of the funds by those officers who were guilty of the mismanagement and of the others, and more particularly, its president, W. H. Moore, and the cashier, Cooper Morris, who were guilty of what seems to have been pure and simple embezzlement. His failure so to act as such receiver is of as gross criminal negligence in the matter as that of the officers of the bank, for had he at the expiration of the use of three months from the time that he was appointed receiver, taken proceedings to enforce the collection and restitution of the funds embezzled, and had he, instead of there would have been no necessity in the depositors having been deprived of the use of their money for more than two years.

As it is, as he himself has stated, at least 55 per cent of all the depositors' claims against the said bank have been settled and as such settlement was made with at least a portion of the money after his appointment as receiver, those who were then settled with have had the use of their money, where money was paid, and have had the use of the stock and bonds to the extent that the same was paid over or delivered to them in settlement of their claims. On the other hand, those who were not then settled with, were deprived of the use of their money, and under the order of the court will not get any interest on their money since the date such order was made some two years ago. The owners of about 15 per cent of claims not yet settled, will be compelled to wait until their claims are so settled, if that is ever done, and which will all hope to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

From what many of them have told me, they have chased and chased the receiver in their efforts to get some kind of settlement made, but he has put them off from time to time, with first one excuse and then another. This has continued for more than a year past, to say nothing of having treated them as though they had no rights which he was bound to respect, and this, notwithstanding the fact that he was supposed to represent their interests as well as all others concerned in connection with the affairs of the so-called bank. It is probable that it has been from their belief that he was failing in the performance of his duties as such receiver, by reason of having done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

way, that they so often chased the receiver and were so insistent in their demands for some kind of settlement.

One thing is certain, and that is that the opinion very generally prevails that the receiver neglects to do his full duty and prosecute in the most rigorous manner possible to a final termination, in every consistently possible way, the officers and directors until they have been made to disgorge some of their ill-gotten gains and made to feel that as such officers and directors they were under obligations to act honestly and look after the interests of the depositors of the banking institution which they pretended to represent, and so make such an example of them that other bank officials will not feel quite so much disposed to think that the conducting of a banking institution is but a private graft.

Personally, in behalf of some of my clients, I prepared several pages of a petition to the Court setting forth the reasons why the receiver should be unable to complete all of the claims, and as it appears that the Court will now compel the receiver to prosecute vigorously the directors of the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank for their criminal neglect or worse, there will be no necessity in taking further action in behalf of my clients. And in that event, as they have no other losses, I will gladly waive all other than a merely nominal compensation for my services. This though I, and each of those for whom I have done nothing tending to compel the directors to help make up the losses sustained by their failing to do their duties, and by reason of the reports of grafting by the president and cashier (largely through the action of the cashier), and the reports of their having used the money of the depositors in order to gather their own nests in a financial

New Rugs and Carpets

Our Carpet Section is showing new Wilton Rugs in six grades, and in sizes ranging up to 11.3x15. The patterns include Oriental, French and modern small-figured designs. Many patterns and colorings are exclusive.

BRUSH MATS are a household necessity at the beginning of Winter. Sizes up to 3x6. Prices 75c and up.

Impressive and Clever Bedroom Furniture

Walnut. The designs are chiefly in the new straight line style. Dressers range in price from $20.00 to $37.50; other pieces in proportion.

Fifth and Stark

J. G. Mack & Co.

Fifth and Stark

Without Any Question the Success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters During the Past 56 Years Has Been Due Alone to Its Great Merit

ITS SUCCESS Has Been Well Deserved

Any medicine to succeed must not only be strictly pure but absolutely safe and reliable, and such being the case then

HOSTETTER'S Stomach Bitters is a most successful remedy, for it has been subjected to the most severe tests during the years it has been before the public and has always given complete satisfaction. The thousands of voluntary letters sent us prove this beyond all doubt, and a trial will convince you, too.

Do not continue to suffer from such ailments as Loss of Appetite, Belching, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Colds, Grippe, and Malaria, Fever and Ague, when Hostetter's Bitters will help you so much. Take home a bottle today and make the start on the road to good health. You'll be thankful many times afterward that you heeded this advice. Any Druggist or Dealer will supply you with the genuine, which has our Private Stamp over the neck.

Without Any Question the Success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters During the Past 56 Years Has Been Due Alone to Its Great Merit

ITS SUCCESS Has Been Well Deserved

Any medicine to succeed must not only be strictly pure but absolutely safe and reliable, and such being the case then

HOSTETTER'S Stomach Bitters is a most successful remedy, for it has been subjected to the most severe tests during the years it has been before the public and has always given complete satisfaction. The thousands of voluntary letters sent us prove this beyond all doubt, and a trial will convince you, too.

Do not continue to suffer from such ailments as Loss of Appetite, Belching, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Colds, Grippe, and Malaria, Fever and Ague, when Hostetter's Bitters will help you so much. Take home a bottle today and make the start on the road to good health. You'll be thankful many times afterward that you heeded this advice. Any Druggist or Dealer will supply you with the genuine, which has our Private Stamp over the neck.

Without Any Question the Success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters During the Past 56 Years Has Been Due Alone to Its Great Merit

ITS SUCCESS Has Been Well Deserved

Any medicine to succeed must not only be strictly pure but absolutely safe and reliable, and such being the case then

HOSTETTER'S Stomach Bitters is a most successful remedy, for it has been subjected to the most severe tests during the years it has been before the public and has always given complete satisfaction. The thousands of voluntary letters sent us prove this beyond all doubt, and a trial will convince you, too.

Do not continue to suffer from such ailments as Loss of Appetite, Belching, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Colds, Grippe, and Malaria, Fever and Ague, when Hostetter's Bitters will help you so much. Take home a bottle today and make the start on the road to good health. You'll be thankful many times afterward that you heeded this advice. Any Druggist or Dealer will supply you with the genuine, which has our Private Stamp over the neck.

Without Any Question the Success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters During the Past 56 Years Has Been Due Alone to Its Great Merit

ITS SUCCESS Has Been Well Deserved

Any medicine to succeed must not only be strictly pure but absolutely safe and reliable, and such being the case then

HOSTETTER'S Stomach Bitters is a most successful remedy, for it has been subjected to the most severe tests during the years it has been before the public and has always given complete satisfaction. The thousands of voluntary letters sent us prove this beyond all doubt, and a trial will convince you, too.

Do not continue to suffer from such ailments as Loss of Appetite, Belching, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Colds, Grippe, and Malaria, Fever and Ague, when Hostetter's Bitters will help you so much. Take home a bottle today and make the start on the road to good health. You'll be thankful many times afterward that you heeded this advice. Any Druggist or Dealer will supply you with the genuine, which has our Private Stamp over the neck.

Without Any Question the Success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters During the Past 56 Years Has Been Due Alone to Its Great Merit

ITS SUCCESS Has Been Well Deserved

Any medicine to succeed must not only be strictly pure but absolutely safe and reliable, and such being the case then

HOSTETTER'S Stomach Bitters is a most successful remedy, for it has been subjected to the most severe tests during the years it has been before the public and has always given complete satisfaction. The thousands of voluntary letters sent us prove this beyond all doubt, and a trial will convince you, too.

Do not continue to suffer from such ailments as Loss of Appetite, Belching, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Colds, Grippe, and Malaria, Fever and Ague, when Hostetter's Bitters will help you so much. Take home a bottle today and make the start on the road to good health. You'll be thankful many times afterward that you heeded this advice. Any Druggist or Dealer will supply you with the genuine, which has our Private Stamp over the neck.

Without Any Question the Success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters During the Past 56 Years Has Been Due Alone to Its Great Merit

ITS SUCCESS Has Been Well Deserved

Any medicine to succeed must not only be strictly pure but absolutely safe and reliable, and such being the case then

HOSTETTER'S Stomach Bitters is a most successful remedy, for it has been subjected to the most severe tests during the years it has been before the public and has always given complete satisfaction. The thousands of voluntary letters sent us prove this beyond all doubt, and a trial will convince you, too.

Do not continue to suffer from such ailments as Loss of Appetite, Belching, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Colds, Grippe, and Malaria, Fever and Ague, when Hostetter's Bitters will help you so much. Take home a bottle