Important That You See the Interesting Exhibit of the "Sealy" Mattresses

Commencing Tomorrow—Ending Wednesday

One-third of our life is spent in bed, and it is during this period that our storage cells are recharged to drive the human machine. Why then, should not the mattress, most essential to rest, be given first consideration? There is no article of so much use and so little understood as the mattress. To a great majority of people a mattress is just a mattress—good or bad, according to the price paid, and regardless of the materials used.

"Sealy" Mattresses demand consideration. They have never been extensively advertised and yet many thousands of them have been sold.

Merit alone has made the enormous sale possible. The non-tufted mattress was invented by Daniel Haynes, a Texan, long associated with the cotton ginning industry. He made many experiments and finally succeeded in producing a resilient but that would stay together without tufts or binding, also a round-cornered tick with no raised seams for lodgment of dust or germs. He began the manufacture of the mattress in the little town of Sealy, Texas, twenty-seven years ago. The popularity and demand continued until today it is sold regularly by over 800 dealers in the United States, and in many foreign countries.

Tomorrow we commence a special exhibit of the "Sealy." Its object will be to show how the "Sealy" Mattress is made, what enters into its making—add also how other mattresses are made and their materials.

Whether you contemplate buying a mattress or not, we know you will be interested in the "Sealy." Exhibit will be on first floor.
