

DRESS WAIST HOLDS OWN AGAINST ONE-PIECE GOWN IN FEMININE FANCY

Daintiness and Artistic Designing of Fancy Waist Showings Bring Them Into Their Own Speedily—Some New Collarettes Pictured and Described.

NOTWITHSTANDING the steady popularity of the one-piece gown, both for street and evening wear, the separate dress waist still valiantly holds its own, and increasing importance, as the season advances, is seen in the displays of the local shops. No one-piece suit, even though it be dressy and elaborate to an extreme, can quite take the place of the fancy bodice or waist, for general utility and for wear with the two-piece tailored suit the dainty bodice of embroidered linen, silk or lace is well-nigh indispensable.

Just now, after the rush of the shopper for the earlier showings, the fancy waists are coming into their own, and from the daintiness and artistic designing of the new displays, as well as from the interest of the average shopper, it is plain that feminine allegiance to the time-honored separate waist, which can so quickly transform the appearance and give that fresh, dainty effect to the mere tailor-made suit, so convenient for unexpected theater or informal dinner parties, has not failed.

The collarette, too, with its dainty ruchings, lace frills and touches of colored velvet ribbon, is coming to the fore in the new displays and attracting the interest of the shoppers. Many an acceptable holiday box, wherein the dress waist and pretty collarettes figure, is being planned just now.

Collarettes and Fancy Waists.

From the bewildering stock of one of the big department stores, a few of the new things in collarettes and fancy waists have been sketched and are herewith reproduced. The central figure, No. 5, shows an extremely effective little bodice of cross-barred lace in a heavy cream shade, over cream taffeta, with edgings of leaf embroidery in which touches of Dresden tints show prettily. The buttons down the front are lace-covered, and the short sleeves (they are becoming optional again, praise be!) are finished with bands of embroidered lace in which the leaves and Dresden tints appear. The leaf embroidery is again tucked at the neck, as shown in the sketch.

An attractive bodice of gray Henrietta cloth, combined with embroidered bands and a net trim, is shown in No. 2. The whole waist is in a delicate gray tone, save for the embroidered bands, which are of the blended Persian colors. The ruching about the neck and the flounce at the opening down the left side are of a soft, silken fabric not unlike the chiffon velvings, and are in the same delicate gray tone as the cloth and the net, which last is over taffeta of the same gray tone.

A charming pattern in rose-colored silk, with a glimpse of finely-tucked rose velvet ribbon, is coming to the fore in the new displays and attracting the interest of the shoppers. Many an acceptable holiday box, wherein the dress waist and pretty collarettes figure, is being planned just now.

in sleeves. Another pretty sleeve is that of overlapping plaits shown in No. 3.

Smart Tailored Silk Waist.

One of the smart designs in tailored silk waists is shown in No. 4. This waist is of taffeta in a peculiar smoke-blue tint, and the only attempt at trimming is in the shoulder tucks, which continue across the upper sleeve, and the three slanting tucks on the lower sleeve. A dressy touch is added by the silken tie, hung upon a narrow velvet band in rich, lustrous black.

No. 7 illustrates the tendency towards buttons and straps in the cloth waists. This garment is of a biscuit-colored tulle, and the buttons are of the cloth, but the applied straps are of the cloth, but the buttons are of let and the mock-button-holes running across the bodice are embossed in silk.

Prevailing Neckwear Styles.

No. 1 and No. 2 show two of the prevailing styles in the new neckwear. No. 1 is of black and gold, with net of dainty blue, all three tones contrasting effectively. No. 2 is a dainty little affair of fine net in the cream tone, with a fair of fine net in the cream tone, with a velvet band and bow of pale blue. One of the new collar and cuff sets, of fine linen and lace, is shown in No. 6. So infinite is the variety of the new neckwear that one may choose from hundreds of designs, and the plays are so tempting that it is difficult for the shopper to select only a few from the bewildering array.

MODERN HOSTELRY FOR WOMEN IS FAD THAT AROUSES GOTHAM FAIR AGAIN

Free-Lunch Counter for Indigent Girls to Be Attraction of Hotel Co-operative Service League Plans—Reformer Who Exposes Cruelty of School Fired, Though Every Charge Is Corroborated.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(Special.)—A number of prominent showwomen are interested in the project to build a series of hotels in this city for the exclusive use of women. The work is now beyond the talk stage, and the indications are that the actual building will commence soon after New Year's day, as the plans are prepared and a fair sum of money available.

The scheme is under the direction of the Co-operative Service League, a branch of the women's suffrage movement. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is one of its prominent officers. Mrs. Clarence Mackay, Mrs. A. P. Townsend and Mrs. Ethel Stewart are among the others who are active in it.

Mrs. Jane Campbell, vice-president of the league, declares that the hostelry will be modeled along the lines of the Mills hotels "yet will not be exactly like them."

Besides supplying comfortable accommodations to girls who make small salaries, says Miss Campbell, "there will be many educational features introduced, and an effort will be made to develop and instruct the girls so that they will be certain of advancement in the industrial world."

"The league has planned to establish a free lunch counter in the hotel, so that any woman who has no money for a meal can get one. Girls who are out of employment will be given work in the hotel, enough to pay for their board until they can get on their feet again. Up to a certain price, the rates will be based on the incomes of the girls. Cooking, sewing and all the domestic sciences will be taught. There will also be millinery and dressmaking classes and arrangements will be made so that studies of various kinds may be taken up by the girls living in the hotel."

T. Stewart and the Park-Avenue Hotel up to the present hour. Generally the trustees enforce drastic rules as to what time the guests shall go to bed, and when and where they shall see masculine callers. The result is that the young women tire of it speedily, and go some place where they can have more freedom, even if they are compelled to do without certain luxuries.

Whether the suffragettes have wisdom remains to be demonstrated, as their "Rules for Patrons" have not yet been promulgated. But if they try to be too strict they will certainly lose their guests, and once they are gone they will not come back again in a hurry.

Reformer Gets Worst of It.

That it does not pay to be a reformer has been demonstrated by the sad case of Joseph Tlach, Tlach was a teacher in the Brooklyn Disciplinary School, where all sorts of horrors were inflicted on the helpless boy inmates. Tlach complained, and the trustees held by the trustees to mind his own business. Then he asked everything, and sent a statement of conditions to Governor Hughes.

An investigation was held, and the charges were upheld in every particular. Public opinion forced the trustees to remove Superintendent Farrell, and the trustees will themselves be ousted, as soon as certain necessary formalities can be complied with. Perhaps there will be something done by the grand jury, too.

Well, as pessimists will say, it ought to be a lesson to him. And it certainly is an outrage. Perhaps in the course of a year or so, if he does not die in the meantime, Tlach will get his job back again, maybe at a reduced salary.

$75,000,000 in Half Mile.

Within the last ten years there have gone up on the half mile square territory bounded by Broadway, Forty-second street, and Fourth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, new buildings costing in the aggregate $75,000,000. These include hotels, such as the Astor, Knickerbocker, Belmont, Manhattan, St. Regis, Gotham and the uncompleted Ritz-Carlton at an average of from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 apiece, and the Plaza at $5,000,000. Then there are 20 or more playhouses, including the New Theatre and the Hippodrome, totalling up altogether probably $10,000,000 more. Half a dozen palatial clubhouses, the New Sherry's and Delmonico's, the Broadway Tabernacle and the Times flatiron are other prominent down-to-date new landmarks in the district defined.

Football Changes Near.

Now that the football season has ended, one fact stands out with almost terrible prominence. The game as played under the present rules is too rough, too deadly. Twenty-six young men died in the last two months from injuries received in football games. As it should be played, the game is no more dangerous than hockey or baseball. There seems to be a well-understood agreement that before the Spring, many drastic amendments will be made to the rules. The big universities are expected to blaze the way, and the little fellows will promptly follow. Many institutions have already gone on record as forbidding the game, and unless its advocates make concessions to public sentiment, they may find themselves in a position where their favorite sport is outlawed. In fact, there is already a movement here to have the Legislature put its ban on the game, and only drastic amendments to the rules, amendments that will remove danger to the players, can save it. This fact it is known, has had its influence on college officials, who cannot afford to be put in the position of being lawbreakers.

Airship Trust Powerful.

The "one million-dollar airship trust" that is backing the Wright Brothers, has hardly attracted the attention that it deserves. The men associated with the noted aviators are the richest in our extremely wealthy city. The capital they have paid in is a mere bagatelle to them and they are able and said to be willing to contribute ten times that amount if it is necessary.

Wilbur Wright is credited with the statement that the new company will devote most of its attention to the commercial side of the problem, and that he expects in a very short time to see airships as cheap as automobiles. At present the rate for an aeroplane built for two, ranges between $15,000 and $20,000, with very few in the market. After the Wrights get busy at their Dayton, Ohio, plant, it is believed a good, comfortable airship, suitable for long trips, can be sold at a profit for $2500.

So the day is not far distant when our police reporters will have a new and novel class of accidents to report.

Wedding Mixup Amusing.

A new high record of amusement for a bridal couple was reached the other day, when Marie Sudusky became Mrs. Joseph Posovosky. After the ceremony the happy couple, and their friends adjourned to a new by saloon, where they danced, drank and were merry. At midnight some strangers entered and tried to flirt with the bride. Her friends sprang to the rescue and there was the oddest kind of a fight. The next day roll call in the Police Court revealed wedding guests (Poles) one saloon-keeper (German) and six intruders (Irish). The magistrate, who is a Hebrew, fined all hands impartially.

Inquiry into the whereabouts of the newly-married pair revealed that while the battle was raging they had fled to the roof to avoid the shower of flying bottles, and that somebody had locked the door, keeping them prisoners there all night. When released, long after daylight, they had nearly frozen to death. The saloon, the way was the worst wrecked thirteenth emporium on the West Side, and that is going some, as any old New Yorker will admit.

Fences Deaden Press Noise.

Guests in the New England apartments, on Central Park South, have been greatly bothered of late by the noise from printing presses in a building next door. The proprietor tried vainly to secure relief by means of court procedure, and at last consulted an architect, hoping that he could suggest something.

The architect, who shall be nameless, was a great help. He proposed to smother the noises by building two masonry fences in front of the printing house windows, extending to the third and fourth floors. The fences, built of a double wall of porous terra cotta blocks, filled with mineral wool and faced with Portland cement, will smother the noise, and sound deadener. These two fences only cost $350 to erect and as the complaints have ceased, and the tenants who were ready to move have reconsidered, the

Star Who Soared With Wright in Airship Likes Thrill of Flight

Elizabeth Drew, Mary in "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," Lays Claim to Being Only Aviator of Fair Sex in United States.

ELIZABETH DREW, the beautiful young woman who is playing the role of Mary, made famous by Fay Templeton, in "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," which comes to the Baker Theatre for one week, beginning Sunday matinee, December 5, enjoys the distinction of being the only female aviator in the country.

To pretty Miss Drew must be given the credit and honor of the only flight ever made on the wily aeroplane by one of her sex.

It all happened one day in the early fall when Wilbur Wright was making test flights in the vicinity of Kitty Hawk, N. C. Miss Drew had signed with Messrs. Cohan and Harris for the Just Plain Mary role, and was enjoying her last day of rest before "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway" started on its annual tour. The crowds thronging Broadway became inquisitive to Miss Drew and her party of five, or six friends, and they decided to try to get a peep at the wonderful Mr. Wright and his equally wonderful aeroplane.

Before long Wright and Miss Drew were almost oblivious to the fact that there were other guests present, so taken with the aviator with describing his aeroplane to the attractive young woman, who could not but command admiration. A loud hurrah went up from the crowd when the rumor spread that the young woman was about to make an experimental ascension with the famous man

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs, we will find that the hair is not nourished, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Danderine's effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever developed, and it is the only one that is natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhibiting and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its greater worth as a hair food and as a hair regenerator—try it and see for yourself.

Health and Beauty Helps BY MRS. MAE MARTIN.

Miss Anxiety: It is a bitter confession for our sex to make, but we have to admit that the girl who takes no care of her complexion and general appearance has the best chance of getting a good husband. You should not be careless about those blackheads and large uneven pores below your eyes. If you wish to get rid of them, rub a little of an ounce of almond oil from your drugstore and dissolve it in a pint of cold water and add 2 teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Stir briskly and let stand. Apply as you would any complexion cream. It will have the effect of making your skin smooth and pliable. This cream contains no oil or anything that will promote the growth of hair on the face, and I recommend it for chapped face and hands, also for removing tan and freckles.

James J.: Eczema, salt rheum, rashes and similar itching skin diseases are terribly annoying. The best remedy I know of is made in this way: Get from your druggist 4 ounces of liquor and mix with 4 tablespoonfuls of alcohol and a half-pint of water. Shake treatment until eruptions disappear and skin is restored to healthy condition. In general, this remedy has proven very effective.

Katie D.: Never scratch the scalp with the finger-nails. To remove the dandruff, stop your scalp from itching by keeping the hair falling out, use a shampoo the hair twice a month with camphor and use a hair tonic made by dissolving one ounce of salicylic acid in alcohol and 1/2 pint cold water. This is a splendid tonic for the hair, and if used regularly will keep your scalp and hair in a healthy condition. I find it makes the hair glossy and the scalp moist. It is the best and most refreshing hair tonic I know.

Harriet W.: If your eyes feel tired and are dull and inflamed, you need an eye tonic. Dissolve an ounce of crystals in a pint of water. One or two drops of this in each eye every day is all that is needed to strengthen your eyes and make them bright and sparkling. This tonic will not smart or burn and is a great remedy for eye troubles. It makes the eyes appear brilliant and full of expression. A friend of mine, who is on the stage, has learned to keep her much-admired eyes beautiful by using this tonic. I find it very strengthening to weak, inflamed, sore and tired eyes and for granulated eyes.

Miss G. F.: Your letter really amused me. You are entirely too fleshy to be charming. It is no wonder your sweet-
