NEWS AND GOSSIP OF PLAYS AND PLAYERS

EDITED BY LEONE CASS BAER.

B LANCHE WALSH, who appeared at the end of the sesson for musical study, under Jean de Reszke. She Test," never studies her roles from manuscript. She speaks the lines into a phonograph, turns the machine loose, listens over and over again, and in this istens over and over again, and in this memorizes her roles. It is said that she never has missed a line during any performance in her career. Miss Walsh is her own stage manager, and directs all her own companies. In private life she is Mrs. William M. Travers. Her husband was seen as Freddle McVean in "The Test."

It took 20 years of stern measures to

The offending piece de resistance seemingly an approach to the early epoch in head adornment (spare the mark!) A waste-paper bas-ket or family size tub is placed on the bare head, and over this is drawn the 18 hairs of the owner and about 12 dollars' worth of a dead Chinaman's, who me women have more than 18 hairs of charity, liam of charity, in the reverse will have in low translated to their skull, some have as relief the comic and transic masks with the words of 20, and I have heard of a case the words "Actors' Fund, New York, any of 20, and I have heard of a case the words "Actors' Fund, New York, 1910." presumably has no other use for it. fastened to their skull, some have as many of 20, and I have heard of a case in point where the woman's hair was all her own, but this was a foolish little woman who raised babtes and knew how to do housework, played the piano her own husband, and hadn't even read "Three Weeks," So you can see how little the really big and momentous question of hair would interest her. To resume our mutton, After the basket or tub is carefully covered and padded so that it matches in not less han eight places, wind several yards f thick massive Dutch braids around the head, just above the ears. Aggrawhole with much-jeweled pins and combs, and place it in front some poor davil who would really like to see the stage. Keep it always in his line of vision. If he cranes his neck, crane yours also. If he suddenly gets desperate and leans forward and requests you to remove your hair, turn on him and give him a good piece of your mind. Tell him he's no gentleman, or he wouldn't interfere with folks that paid good money to see the folks that paid good money to see the

Owing to the severe results of a bad cold, contracted while playing a tour of Texas cities, Mrs. Flike has been com-pelled to cancel her immediate engage-ments and return to New York City, here she will remain a month for med ical treatment. Mrs. Fiske was to appear in Baltimore this week.

The "Yama-Yama Man," which has been hammered on every installment plane in the land and rendered in various ways since its advent in "The Three Twins," owes its origin to a series of accidents. When the musical comedy, "The Three Twins," was rehearsing in Chicago, prior to its opening there, Karl Hoschms, the composer was asked to furnish a "pajama man" song. He handed them one called "The Pajama Man," only to learn that it would not be used in the production, because the next play booked in the Whitney Opera-House had as its main feature a pajama song. The next main feature a pajama song. The next day Gus Sohike, the stage director, hap-pened to pass a toy store and saw in the window a triangular manikin—a deli built in triangular. Realizing that this idea in triangular. Realising that this idea had as yet never been used in stage work, he decided to have a "triangular man" chorus in place of the pajama number. Later as he and Collins Davis, who wrote the lyric, sat together wondering what to call their effusion, Sohike kept repeating "Pajama-yama-yama" in true Napoleon Newlywed manner. All at once he oried, "Did you ever hear of a "Yama Yama" man?" Neither had. So the lyric was written around the title, the music composed for the lyric, Bossie McCoy rehearsed it, and later it sprang into instant popularify. Porflanders remember it best as given by the nimble-toed damsel, Hessie Clifford, at the Bungalow soveral months ago with Victor Morley.

The city dads of Des Moines, Iowa, evidently have their own ideas about the drammer as it should be and in t. One of those large erguifing moral waves such as we eccasionally witness rolled over the City Council of the capital city of the Hawkeye state recently, and after the flood had substited there was discovered amidst the wreckage an ordinance making it a misder canor to present any play in which there takes place the killing of a person or the commission of any crime. When one of the members of the Council was asked if he realized that the passing of this ordinare meant a ban upon Shakespearcan tragedy, he promptly answored that he did, and also added that this was one of his reasons for indoraing it. At first the theatrical managers of Des Moines regarded the measure as a loke, but they seen learned that it has the approval of all the professional moralists of the city, and moreover is "good law" and is being enforced.

A misogynist, one woman, one man seywant and one binaman, well mixed and placed on a yacht in mid-ocean with a few trinunings of officers and able sea, men, have been noulded into a farce by Prank Stayton, on English writer. He has called the co-coction "The Interior last called the co-coction" and presenting it rank Stayton, an English writer. He has called the co-coction "The Inferior Sex," and Maxine Elliott is presenting it at Dely's in New York, after a run in the suburbs with 'Deborah of Tods." The subject at any rate is not a new one, since the inferiority of sex has been a mooted question since Eve handed Adam that bit of Hood River fruit. The suffragettes have no hesitancy in placing their bets—and mext of us have a secretly registered opinior as to which is the inferior sex. But "ow that the query has been embalined in a play—and with Miss Elliott as its har 'maiden—interest awakens.

The dramatization of John Fox's novel. "The Trial of the Lonesome Pine" has been completed by Robert M. Baker of Boston, who also dramatized "Beverly," an earlier story. "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" will be produced this Spring by William Norris and A. G. Delamater.

It took 20 years of stern measures to abate the nuisance of big hats indoors. Much ridicule, not a few scathing editorials, jokes and censure from press, pulpit and the masculine public, indused in with much heaviness of heart and anguish of mind, have accomplished an era of hatless feminine heads in theaters, at least. But with the present style of colifure, the old worries have returned a hundred fold. Huge hats were bad enough, in fact their presence in cars and elevators is yet a cause of justifiable profanity, but the prevailing mode of women's hair (or rather lack of hair) arrangement of the prevent of the state of forced to sit behind said hair at the theater. Gladys Myrtie, who adorns the ladies' hosiery department, achieves this fearfully and wonderfully contrived coiffure quite as readily and painlessly as her more lucky sister who rides in her own electric brougham. The offending piece de resistance is recally the desired painless of the state of croaching upon what she considered her territory. Therefore Nethersole has leased another theater in Paris, and it is her avowed intention to fight it out. If it takes all Summer.

President Taft has donated a gold medal to the Actors' Fund Fair. The medal will have on one side a figure of charity, flanked by comedy and tragedy. The reverse will have in low

The first modern theater in Bermuda was opened last week by Ann Workman in a producetion of "Romeo and Juliet."

M. Gosselin-Lenatre, a noted historical writer, of Paris, has advanced the theory that the mysterious "man with the Iron Mask" was Mollere, the dramatist and comedian, whose jawbone is piously preserved at the Comedie Francais. The theory is said to be based upon minute examinations of historical documents in the use of which he has expendional facilithe use of which he has exceptional facilities. The statements of Monsieur Gosselin-Lenatre command the highest respect and the proposed book on the subject is awaited with great interest.

A new musical comedy that is taking New York by atorm is "Old Dutch" in which Lew Fields is starring in the titular role. As a part of his supporting company he has an unusually racka-bone horse, named Lightning Charlle. The animal has been a living skeleton since colthood, while the lavish use of grease paint helps to bring out its rafter-like ribs. During the course of the play Mr. Fields hangs his hat on Lightning Charlle's hipbone and plays a xylophone Charlie's hipbone and plays a xylophone solo on his ribs—the horse's—not Mr. Field's, a piece of comedy that is said to be unusually laughable.

"Plays that foster vice and immorality are gnawing at the very vitals of the state, and those who are called to preside over city, county or state should not give over city, county or state should not give such performances any quarter." writes Archbishop Moeller, of Cincinnati. "I am fully convinced that plays, as well as press and pulpit, can be made means of doing good, of lifting up the people from the lower to a higher level of probity, or instilling on the one hand a love of vir-tue and on the other inspiring a hatred for all that is bad and wicked."

Charles Frohman has obtained a new farce and a new stage director for his star. Hattie Williams, who is now appearing in "Dotective Sparks." Next month she is to begin rehearsals in a straight-a-way farce "The Girl He Could Not Leave Behind Him," adapted from the German by Sydney Rosenfeld. Wilton the German by Sydney Rosenfeld. Wil-liam Collier recently signed a special con-tract with Frohman to pass upon the scene models, rehearse and create new business for the production.

Murray and Mack, who have together weathered the theatrical gales for many seasons, have decided to separate, and their time on the Orpheum circuit has been cancelled. Mr. Murray will here-after appear in a vaudoville act with his

Will R. Walling, who was a member of the Belasco Stock Company four years ago at the old Hellig Theater, is at the Alcazar in San Francisco. This week, in their offering of "The Man of the Hour," Mr. Walling portrays the role of Harrisan, the Councilman.

Nance O'Nell, David Belasco's star in The Lily," is authority for the state-nent that no human being is ever satisned. After having leaped into fame, suc-cess, wealth and exalted position in the heatrical world she is now dreaming of the day when she shall enact Shakespearthe day when she shall enact Shakespear-ean roles in Paris. "Isn't it odd that one can never be satisfied?" Miss O'Neil is quoted as asking in a recent interview. She continued: "When I was a school-girl in San Francisco I dreamed of the day when I could be wealthy and inde-pendent and famous. I went upon the stage and worked very hard and my schoolgirl dreams have come true, but now I feel that I shall never be satisfied until I have acted in the same houses as Mme. Sarah Bernhardt in Paris, enacting Mme. Sarah Bernhardt in Paris, enacting tragic roles from Shakespeare. But I shall cheer up. My old dreams came true, why not my new ones."

Lillian Kemble, a former leading wo-man with the Baker Stock Company, is playing leads with the Harry B. Davis company of Pittaburg. Miss Kemble was a great favorite with Portlanders who re-member her as a striking beauty of ex-ceptional talent as an actress.

May Leslie Stuart, daughter of Leslie Stuart, composer of "Floradora" and "Hayana," has taken to the stage.

The Ben Greet players are successfully reviving 'The Little Town of Bethlehem,' by Katrina Trask. The play deals with the Nativity and presents sevregistered opinior as to which is the inferior sex. But you that the query has been embalined in a play—and with Miss Editott as its har 'malden—interest awakche.

"Going Some." the Paul Armstrong-Rex Beach comedy which the Shuberts produced last Spring, is to be novelized Harper Brothers have undertaken the commission. Two roads companies are now presenting the play.

Charles Klein is writing a social climber play for Blanche Waish and promises to localize Palm Reach on Broadway in the scenes.

Christie McDonald, now appearing in "The Prince of Bohemia," expects to go

Schumann-Heink

> Armory Feb. 23

Ciny & Co.'s. $1.00, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50. Mail Orders Received.

ley as Pompilius, all of whom have been seen with this company of English players on their various wisits to Portland. The skill of Ben Greet in teaching his players is evident always, and one seidom sees such perfectly trained actors.

Mane. Nazimova has a new play "The Passion Flower." a story of New York life, by Brandon Tynan, in which she is appearing this week in Washington, D. C. This new play is said to be of the realistic school that calls for surprises, giving the gifted little Jewess many opportunities for excellent work. The story is that of a social butterfly, who, in her desire to gain social pre-eminence, brings about unconsciously the financial ruin of her husband. The first act sets forth the situation outlined above and the next two acts are devoted to a graphic picture of the results of committing a wrong, exthe results of committing a wrong, except that in this case the play ends happily. The role is said to give Mms. Nazimova the most varied emotional possibilities of any piece in which she has ap-

Nanette Comstock, leading woman with Robert Hilliard in "A Fool There Was," is still seriously ill in Providence, as a result of burns sustained while cleaning her kid gloves in gasoline near a lighted lamp. In this instance the title of Miss Comstock's play is peculiarly apropos.

In the Portland Theaters

Continued From Page Two.

there is a field and future for a club of this kind, and who identify them-selves as patrons of music by their connection with the club.

M'INTYRE AND HEATH COMING

Will Appear at Bungalow Early Next Week, "In Hayti."

The annual appearance in Portland of the oldest firm of laugh-makers in the theatrical world is to begin Sunday night, February 13, when Klaw & Ehr-langer's laughing trust, McIntyre and Heath in Hayti, will come to the Bunstreets, for three nights with a mat-ince Tuesday. The former production built around the comic abilities of these two well-remembered comedians have had remarkable praise for their greatness of scenic display and the vivacious remembered comedians have had remarkable praise for their greatness of scento display and the vivacious break-neck pace and tuneful singing of their dainty chorus of girls; but this season Klaw & Ehrlanger are said to have elaborated upon past successes planist, Burns Powell, trombone soloist,

PHONES MAIN 117-A 4224

Four Nights, Beginning Tonight

APHIE JAMES

Tonight and Tuesday Night "Henry VIII"

Monday and Wednesday Nights, Special Price Matinee Wednesday "The Merchant of Venice"

LOUIS JAMES AS CARDINAL WOLSEY AND SHYLOCK. Aphie James as Queen Katherine and Portis.

PRICES—Evening, $1.50 to 50c. Matinee, $1.00 to 25c.

Sents now selling at theater for engagement

SEAT SALE OPENS NEXT FRIDAY

KLAW & ERLANGER'S NEW LAUGHING TRUST FEB. 13-14-15

McIntyre "IN HAYTI"

Matinees, $1.50, $1.00, 75c, 50c

FIRST APPEARANCE IN THIS CITY IN A MODERN PLAY

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

FEB. 18-19

SPECIAL PRICE MATINEE SATURDAY

THE AMERICAN LORD

to give those famous stars the best support they ever had.
"In Hayli" is a musical comedy by John J. McNally, with music and lyries by Jerome and Schwartz, and has fifteen musical numbers, each brimming over with dash and paprika, both book and music being typically modern and of a nature to be quickly repeated and hold their rythmic beat in the memory of the hearer. The story tells of one of the common and short-lived revolutions in Hayli in which two American financiers, a stranded theatrical company and two rollicking "cullud folks" become so mixed up that the affair is taken quite beyond the control of the Haylien populace and turned into a dual love story, in which, however, fun is always the predominating feature.

STUDENTS' SHOW FEBRUARY 12

Oregon Glee and Mandolin Clubs Coming to the Bungalow.

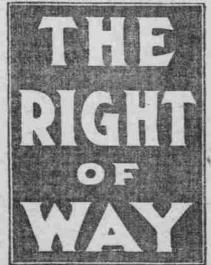

The grand finale of the twelfth annual tour of the University of Oregon Glee and Mandolin Clubs is billed at the Give and Mandolin Clubs is billed at the Bungalow for the evening of Lincoln's birthday, February 12. The clubs have had a very successful season thus far. During Yuletide vacation they made a concert tour of the four principal towns of Southern Oregon—Medford. Ashland, Roseburg and Grant's Pass. The people of the proposed Siskiyou State received the college boys well, every concert being well attended. In fact, if an apportionate number attended in Portland, the lads would be forced to discontinue their studies for a week and give daily matinees to satisfy all.

There are 30 boys on the clubs—16 of

There are 30 boys on the clubs-15 of them, Portland lads. Two former Lin coln High School students, Raphael Geisler and Francis Curtis are on the Falsetto Trio," which gained such a reputation while in Southern Oregon, Francis Curtis with his high alto.

THEATER

ALL WEEK BEGINNING SUNDAY, FEB. 6, '10

The Dramatic Sensation of Last Season

The Play Everyone Is Talking About

With An Excellent Company

A Great Story A Better Play

Evening Prices, 25c, 50c, 75c, $1. Bargain Matinee Wednes-day, 25c, all seats. Sunday and Saturday Matinees, 25c, 50c.

NEXT WEEK-WILDFIRE

OREGON GLEE CLUB

ANNUAL CONCERT

Programme is Combination of Snappy Songs, Comical Skits and Humorous Grand Opera Burlesques. THIRTY JOLLY COLLEGE BOYS, 16 OF THEM PORTLAND LADS

Bungalow, Saturday, Feb. 12

"Wildfire" Coming to the Baker.

One of the greatest characters given

One of the greatest characters given the stage in recent years is that of Bud, the stable boy, as portrayed by Will Archie in the successful racing comedy, "Wildfire," which will appear at the Baker for the entire week, opening next Sunday matinee, February 13. With all the wonderful slang with which George V. Hobart, who collaborated with George Broadhurst in writing the play, has imbued the role, Bud fills a sentimental spot in the story which endears him to the theater-going world. Of course, the principal flgure in the play is that of the stunning widow, Mrs. Barrington, portrayed by the famous American beauty, Pauline Hall, who, like her sister queen of beauty, Lillian Russell, has successfully invaded the field of drama after years of success in opera.

Hanford in "The American Lord." "The American Lord" will be the play offered by Charles B. Hanford as the star, with a brilliant supporting com-pany headed by Miss Marie Drofnah, at the Bungalow Theater, February 18-19.

VALIDEVILLE VAUDEVILLE

WEEK OF FEBRUARY 7

WORLD'S GREATEST ACRO-

Montrose Troupe 7-People-7

Late Feature Ringling Bros.' Circus.

Mathews & Bannon In "The Battle of Too Soon."

Miller & Mack

A Pair of Classy Steppers.

Herbert The Frog Man. A Scenic Spectacular Novelty.

Winnifred Stewart

Jim Rutherford and

The Delightful Baritone Soloist.

Company In "Half Back Hank."

Fred Bauer Illustrated Song.

Grandascope

DAILY MATINEE-15c, 25c, 50c. (HOLIDAY MATINEES NIGHT PRICES)

Phones-Main 6 and A 1020

Week Beginning Monday Matinee, Feb. 7th TWO GREAT FEATURE ACTS Mr. Fred. Lindsay

Walter C. Kelly The Gentleman Adventurer, African Big Game Hunter and Famous Australian Bushman, in Marvelous Whip Manipulations. "The Virginia Judge."

CHAS. W. BOWSER, EDITH HINKLE and their company in "Superstition," a modern playlet, by Oliver White

"Songs of the Day," by JULIA FRARY ate Prima Donna with Frank Daniels Company. J. W. CLARKS

ABEL and IRWIN THE REED BROS.

Simian Comedians—Fun for All of strength, skill and comedy.

Evening Prices-15c, 25c, 50c and 75c DAILY MATINEE-15c, 25c, 50c. (HOLIDAY MATINEES NIGHT PRICES)

Seat Sale Opens Tuesday RECITAL

MYRTLE ELVYN

AMERICA'S EMINENT PIANISTE

Friday Evening, Feb. 11 BUNGALOW

PRICES

. . . $2.00, $1.50, $1.00, 75c

KIMBALL PIANO USED

A modern drama under the Hanford auspices is a distinct novelty. The play is far from bing an untried quantity. Its record of successes entities also affords fine opportunities for Miss Marie Drofnah the role of Mrs. West-brooke being eminently adapted to her gives Mr. Hanford the opportunity he

Week Starting Matinee Today (Perinal of the Popular) Sunday, Feb. 6

Russell & Drew Offer Their

"Portland Theater Stock Company" For a limited season—under the direction of R. E. French—presenting for the first I ime on the Pacific Coast Owen Davis' Big Eastern Success

Deadwood Dick's Last Shot

Strongly marked with an interesting and inspiring Love Story acted by the best Melodramatic Company of Players in the West

REMEMBER THE PRICES

Next Week, Same Company in "Sal the Circus Gal"

SUNDAY AND

Star Theater

Best Original Pictures Always A Biograph Feature

"The Girl From Mellon's"

A Riot of Delightful Comedy

An Instructive Picture

A Late Song, Sung by Mr. Cy Confer

A Great Drama

A Travelogue Rarely Interesting

A Complete Change of Attractions Next Wednesday

10c—ANY SEAT—10c