SWEET PEAS

gonian, in his enthusiasm during Sweet Pea time last Summer, wrote to us a letter referring to the polite and attentive assistance received in our store from our sweet pea expert. After referring to "superlatives over the extreme beauty of blossoma he promised would develop from six varieties of seed he selected" and the expert's assurance of "large blooms, three or four on a stem, stems twice as long as a full grown lead pencil." Mr. Levinson writes that "at the height of the season the harvest' is "precisely what he said it would be. My Sweet Peas are the admiration and envy of everyone who sees them." Mr. Levinson offers to testify that our new white sweet pea, the "Helen Scott," originated in Portland, is finer than was ever dreamed of by the most noted producers.

Hardy Perennials of Olden Days Are Again Becoming Popular

Improved Strains of Plants Raised by Our Grandmothers Will Convert Any Garden Into Place of Beauty.

BY RALPH R ROUTLEDGE.

HE old-fashioned gardens of our grandmothers contained a wealth of gorgaous bloom them. gorgeous bloom throughout the entire Summer, from early Spring until Autumn. These gardens are again coming into popular favor and since the advent of the new and highly improved strains of perennial plants, such as holly-becks, delphinum, Canterbury bells, etc., it is possible to convert them into ver-itable bowers of beauty. Beginning al-most before the snow is off the ground, early-flowering varieties ones, their blosearly-flowering varieties open their blos-soms as welcome harbingers of Spring. In the Eastern States, no class of plants enjoy greater popularity at the present time than the hardy perennials. In the West they have made rapid strides into public favor the past few years, until now they may be considered to have a prominent and permanent place in our Western graders. Procymbras they have Western gardens. Everywhere they have given the best of satisfaction. According to the modern idea of land-According to the modern idea of land-scape gardening, the ideal garden is not one whose beds are laid out in geometric lines, but rather one where there is a closer resemblance to nature, and this can best be effected by the use of peren-nials and herbaceous plants, which give she greatest range of color and at the same time a continuity of bloom through-out the season. Almost every week, un-til late in the Fall some new variety shursts forth into entrancing loveliness.

bursts forth into entrancing loveliness, blooming so persistently as almost to defy Jack Frost in his efforts to subdue the floral kingdom. A start may be ob tained at so small an expenditure as not to be counted when measured with the satisfaction and pleasure derived from requiring very little care, increasing in size and bloom and growing better from year to year. Perennial plants are those that live year after year, only dying to spear to year. Perennial plants are mose a final plants are mose that live year after year, only dying to the ground in Winter, the roots remaining alive and dormant in the ground; this distinguishes them from annuals which must be raised from seed each season.

Perennials can be raised from seed, but yery few of them bloom the first season, therefore those who wish to get immediate results should get field grown, one-year-old plants. Some of the most popular percentials are, anti-rhituum (snapdragon), aquilegis (columnine), bellis (dalsies), Canterbury bells, hardy chrysanthemum, delphinum (larkspur), dianthus (pinks), digitalis (foxglove), gaillardia, gypsophila (baby-breath), relianthus (sunflower), hollyhocks, myosotis (forgetme-not), phiox, poppies, sweet William, etc. Flowering bulbs and roots such as pacony, Darwin tullps, iris, crocus, snowdrops, anemones, illies, narciesus, dahlias, drops, anemones, Illies, narcissus, dablias, gladioli, etc., are very desirable in per-ennial borders. In connection with the above plants,

In connection with the above plants, roots, etc., the professional gardeners are planting ornamental and flowering shrubs, such as acuba, althea, azalias, berberry, cotoneaster, Daphne, deattia, hydrangea, rhododendrone, roses, virburnum, weikelia, etc. By combining the three classes you can get any color effect wanted and have a continuous display of bloom and bright foliage the year round. Three Things Should Receive Attention of Spring Gardener

Pertilizing, Spraying and Selection of Best Varieties of Fruits, Flowers and Vegetables Will Be Found Most Important.

BY E. J. LADD. ESOLVE to have a better garden R this year—better fruit, better flowers, better vegetables. This does not always mean a larger garden; sometimes it is better to reduce the size of the old garden one-half. A good maxim is, "Plant no more than you can fertilize and thoroughly care for."

Make a careful study of the three important garden requirements-fertilizing, spraying and best variety. Plan your garden and make a diagram on paper, drawn to scale, before placing your spring order. As soon as the soll is in good condition, work in the previously applied fertilizer and cultivate thoroughly. Much harm can be done to garden soil by digging and trying to work it while in a wet and heavy condition. More time is lost than gained iby so doing, often resulting in poor crop, if not complete failure. Soil that readily crumbles and does not stick to took is in sood working condition. In riety that is doing well in your lo-cality. Let those with more room than you have experiment with the new and costly varieties. Plants cost from 2 to 4 cents each. In planting, use a line, and by intensive culture you can plant closer than those who grow in fields. Set plants no deeper than they grew before transplanting. If roots are very long, shorten; plant 15 inches apart in row. If rows are double, alternate plants. If properly set, no check will be observed. Keep clean, runners cut off, and the second year each plant should yield at least one quart of de-licious berries. licious berries.

Raspberries and blackberries can be planted close to a fence. Loganberries and those requiring support must be planted with this object in view.

Equip New Army of Cadets.

LONDON, March 5 .- (Special.) - The Birmingham Small Arms Company has received an order for many thousands of rifles for the Australian government. The rifles are for the cadet forces. The order which will provide employment for the next 12 months, gives the greatest satisfaction to the working people, with whom work has been rather slack of late. The rifles are probably needed to meet the greatly-increased demand owing to the "universal service scheme" coming into operation. Cadet training is now compulsory in Australia. The Australian government is at the present time build-
