University Head Says Aim of Faculty Is to Have More Collegians Take Part Instead of Keeping Few Experts on Teams.

That the University of Oregon will continue to intercollegiate athletics and that the resolution now pending before the university faculty aims to increase the amount of athletics in the institution instead of doing away with it is declared by President Campbell of the university, who was in Portland yesterday.

Mr. Campbell, referring to a dispatch from Eugene saying a resolution aimed at intercollegiate athletics had been framed, said the resolution does not aim to bar athletics.

A resolution was introduced before the faculty of the University of Oregon about a month ago, in which the idea embodied was an aim at co-operation on the part of the Northwestern colleges in the line of emphasizing "intra" college sports as opposed to the over-emphasis of intercollegiate athletics. This it is intended, should be made only as a general movement throughout the Northwest and not with Oregon acting as an individual college.

Athletic Scope Larger.

"The idea in itself is simple enough. We want to have a great many men who are playing baseball instead of having all the baseball in the college played by one team. We want to have all, or nearly all, the collegians to take part in the sports. Now we have a dozen baseball nines playing representing the various clubs, fraternities and classes. They are working out their own schedules. We also have been holding a number of interclass track meets.

"By having these 'intra' college sports we think we will be able to get along with less intercollegiate sports, but by no means to do away with them. We want for instance, to limit the amount of football to five intercollegiate games in a season. This has proved a reasonable schedule. The real motive of the faculty is to develop a big internal movement toward athletics. We are not going to place the ban on any sports, but aim to have more men in the field and less in the bleachers, so that all may derive the benefits from the exercise and training.

"Our new gymnasium, with its big floor, is helping wonderfully along this line and we are now reconstructing the old gymnasium for the college women. We hope to lay out, on a tract owned by the university, a number of diamonds and tennis courts, working out in furnishing playing room for all the students. This will be done as soon as the board can get it to.

Resolution is Pending.

"Thus far nothing has been done with the resolution. We have been told that it would be presented and was being drafted, but thus far the faculty is not discussing it. It does not, however, aim at the intercollegiate games. We will doubtless place a limit on the number of baseball games allowed, as we do now do upon football, although this year with the exception of 18 games the result appears very satisfactory. Of course we do not wish to place too much emphasis on the intercollegiate idea to the exclusion of the 'intra' college idea. That is the aim of the new resolution.

"The scholarship of the athletes has averaged well with that of the entire university. There is a reason for this. Any man may be barred from any team on complaint of any instructor. It seems a strict rule, but it has worked well. Quite a number have been barred from athletics temporarily, but have been allowed to re-enter the games as soon as their work has been brought up to standard. As a result of this rule the captains, coaches and managers of teams are all interested in seeing that the members of the teams stick to their studies."

FACULTY'S OPINIONS DIFFER

Eight Promised When Anti-Collegiate Resolution is Discussed.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Or., April 9.—(Special.)—With members of the university faculty holding squarely opposite views on the entire intercollegiate developments are promised when the proposal to abolish all intercollegiate sports comes up for faculty action next week.

The proposed elimination of athletics was embodied in a resolution presented at a recent faculty meeting, action of which was deferred.

President P. L. Campbell is now in Portland, but on his return next week, it was said tonight, a special meeting of the faculty would probably be called to settle the matter.

Professor F. G. Young, head of the department of economics and political science, introduced the original resolution.

"The idea of the resolution was simply that we want everybody to take part in athletics and to take exercise in the open air instead of only the few," said Professor Young today, "who have tried intercollegiate athletics for 30 years now, and it does not seem to pan out to that end. It tends too much towards specialization.

"In other words, I believe in putting more emphasis on intra-college in place of intercollegiate sports to get everybody to participate instead of the comparatively few playing, while the many watch the bleachers and look on. The higher institutions today are devoting too much attention to intercollegiate contests. If instead of putting everything into one team, college and class games were encouraged, more school spirit would be developed, with a general increase in healthy exercise.

"However, even if the resolution pass the faculty, it does not mean that intercollegiate athletics would be abolished immediately. The effect might not be felt for some time. The university does not propose to go ahead independently. The support of other colleges, especially in the Northwest, will be asked, and we shall try to limit intercollegiate contests gradually."

Professor I. M. Glen, always a warm friend of intercollegiate athletics, is one of those most strongly opposed to the resolution.

"I feel too strongly about the subject to be able to talk about it," he said tonight. Professor J. D. H. McAllister, who is also understood to be inalterably opposed to the idea of cutting down on athletics.

DEED'S PROVISION UPHELD

Donor Retains Land and After Lodge Ceases to Use It.

SILVERTON, Or., April 9.—(Special.)—Decision in the suit of Mrs. J. M. Brown and other members of the long-since defunct Good Templars lodge against J. A. Webb to get possession of property formerly owned by the lodge and to recover damages in the sum of $500 by reason of Webb having deprived them of the use of the property has been rendered by the Oregon supreme court today. The property was deeded to the lodge many years ago with the understanding that if the order ceased to exist the property would revert to the original donor. Several years after the lodge died out, Mr. Davenport sold the lot and building to his brother, T. W. Davenport, for $200. Later it was sold to Mr. Webb and is considered valuable, being located in the heart of the business portion of the city.
