BODY SHALL REST NEAR LOVED ONES

Simple Funeral Rites Are Said for Mark Twain in New York Church.

DR. H. A. VANDYKE SPEAKS

Passage of Hearse Through Green Lanes From Stormfield Recalls Recent Service for Daughter. Body Goes to Elmira Today.

NEW YORK. April 23.—The body of Mark Twain began today its last jourliney from the sunny chamber where it had laid in Stormfield to the spot in God's Acre where it shall rest at last besides those whom he "loved long since and lost awhile."

Funeral services were said in the old brick Presbyterian Church at Fifth avenue and Thirty-seventh street, this witty, by Dr. Henry A. Vandyke, professor of English literature at Princeton University, this afternoon. The prayer was pronounced by Dr. Joseph H. Twitchell, of Hartford, Conn. Mark Twain's old friend and pastor.

Early tomorrow morning the body will leave for Elmira over the Lackawanna Rallroad.

Organ Prelude Is Only Music.

Organ Prelude Is Only Music.

In accordance with the wishes of the family, the services today were brief and simple. The only music was an organ prelude, the 'Death of Asa,' by Craig, There was a modest display of white lilies, lilies of the valley, white and red roaes, orchids and sweet peasabout the coffin. Those who wished were permitted to view the features, invitation was by card, but after the friends of the family had been seated, the church was well filled by the general public. In all, the services took but half an hour. but half an hour.

In his address, Dr. Vandyke said in part:

"This is not the place nor the time for an eulogy of the famous writer, the honored and representative Amer-ican. Here we are all of us simply human. The touch of grief is upon us. We think of Mark Twain, not as the celebrity, but the man whom we knew and loved.

Twaln Prodded Only the False.

Twain Prodded Only the False.

Those who know, his work as a whole know that under the lambent and irrepressible humor which was his gift there was a foundation of serious thought and noble affections and desires. The mark of his higher humor is that it does not lough at the weak, the helpless the true, the innocent—only at the false, the pretentious, the vain, the hypecritical.

"Mark Twain laughed many of the world's false cialmants out of court and entangled many of the world's false witnesses in the net of ridicule. He touched the absurdities of life with not unkindly mockey and made us feel somehow the infinite pathos of life's reality. No one can say that he ever failed to reverence the purity, the frank, joyful, genuine nature of little children, of whom Christ has said. Of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

Daughter's Funeral Recalled.

A hearse among the green lanes of Spring is a sad thing to see, and as those waiting at Redding station to-day saw the white horses and the black pencilled tracery of the willows, there rose the memory of how the same hearse had lest wended the same winding road from the same house one Christmas night. Jean Ciemens had died on Christmas eve, while her Christ-mas tree stood in the living-room at Stormfield fully garnished and un-touched. Her body was sent to El-

Stanford Student Mob Throws Se quoia Editor in Lake.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., April 23.—As a sequel to the suspension of D. P. Crawford and Harry Horton yesterday by the student affairs' committee, E. M. Leaf, editor of the sequoia, the college magazine which published the charges which led to the dismissal of the two athletes, was seized by a crowd of students at an early hour today and thrown into Lake Laguintas Leaf was returning to his rooms, after escorting a girl student home from a dance, when he was met by a crowd of about 250 students. He was accompanied by J. C. Shelton, who, according to the story told by bystanders, drew a revolver and threatened to shoot any one touching the editor. Shelton was persuaded to give up the revolver, which he passed to his brother, J. E. Shelton. elton is alleged then to have said that he would fight any member of the crowd and he was thereupon struck and knocked down, and Leaf was car-ried a quarter of a mile to the lake and thrown into the water just as a photographer took a flashlight of the He was rescued by R. Garnet, a fellow student.

The crowd then returned to Engina Hall, where it planned to seize R. J. Miller, who wrote the offending article, but through the efforts of the Encina house committee the crowd was induced to disperse.

Crawford and Horton were two of the best athletes in the college. The university paper's exposure concerned their having liquor in their rooms.

Hen Has Human Features.

CHICAGO, April 23 .- Guests and em ployes of a downtown hotel last night were interested in a white hen that has the features of a human being—a clearly defined nose and lips in place of the beak and mouth of a chicken, and feet like knobs instead of claws. "The chicken is 2 months old," said Mike Singer, one of the hotel porters, who owns the fowl, "and is compelled to eat from the hand of a person, being unable to pick up food like the other chickens. It cannot scratch and does not cackle nor make other noises like a chicken. It has laid two eggs, both of which were flat on one side and of extraordinary size."

BY GEORGE GRANTHAM BAIN ROME, April 5,-(Special correspondence.)-Ex-President Roosevelt has had ence.)—Ex-President Roosevelt has made a characteristically energetic time at Rome. Surrounded by Secret Service men in plain clothes—unmistakably identhied, however, by their blue cloth caps—he has rushed from palace to embassy, from the colossal monument being erected in memory of Victor Emanuel to the Pantheon, where that King is buried. He has dined with the King and motored with the King and had a thoroughly strengous time. Incidentally he has repeated the experience of exhe has repeated the experience of ex-Vice-President Fairbanks with the Pope, and he returns to America without seeing the holy father.

The visit to Naples was an excursion.

There was little formality about it. Mr.

Roosevelt was the guest of the Prefect of Naples at the opera in the San Carlo Theater, and there he was acclaimed by a large number of American tourists in the audience. But the people of Naples took little interest in his His reception in Rome had been very different. He to veled from Na-ples to Rome in one of the royal saloon carriages attached to the 2 o'clock train. It was a compartment and observation car not unlike our own private cars in arrangement, but somewhat more ornate. The Italian railroad cars are cheese boxes compared with the steel constructions used on American roads. But there are jeweled glass screens in the interior and the cushions of orimson run almost to the top of the car, and a library had been provided for Mr. Roosevelt, the fame of the 100-book library which he carried through the hunting fields of Africa having reached the Italian government.

When the train pulled into the station at Rome the Ambassador was in waiting with Count Tozzoni, the King's master of ceremonies, and other offi-cials, and the Roosevelt family was received formally in the royal waiting-room. Thence they went to the Hotel Beau Site, in automobiles, and then direct to the American Embassy to Aspirate Troubles Italians.

There was quite a crowd at the station—largely Americans—for Rome is crowded with American tourists. They heered the ex-President as he left the station. The American cheer is some-thing unknown to Italy, and the local papers described it as "applause and urrah"—the aspirate sound being prac-tically unknown in the Latin tongues. Frenchmen always say "allo" into the

Ethel Roosevelt evidently comes up to the Italian standard of beauty for she is described by the newspapers of Rome as "a splendid blonde, gracious in person and elegant in attire."

The first day of Mr. Roosevelt's stay in Rome was-Monday. He began his activities promptly at 9:30 by driving in a closed automobile to the Quirinal to call on the King. But on the even-

In a closed automobile to the Quirinal to call on the King. But on the evening before he had supplied a sensation by making public his correspondence with the Vatican, which resulted in the shandonment of his call on the Pope, because the Pope refused to grant him an audience unless he promised not to call on the representatives of any other denomination. Only one of the Rome papers had this story, the others calmily announcing that the ex-President would pay his respects to the Pope on Thosday. Journalism in Italy is rathereasy-going. The one paper which told the story, represented the Pope as much Rain Drives Crowd Away.

The call at the Quirinal lasted from 10 o'clock until nearly 11:30. Meantime a crowd-chiefly Americans—gathered on the aldewalk opposite the entrance and watched for the ex-President to come out. But a smart shower drove them away just before the gates were flung open and the automobile of the ex-President dashed away. At the Pantheon, where he proceeded inimediately, he was met by a muc larger crowd. There was shelter ther and several hundred Americans gathered around the tombs of King Humbert and King Victor Emanuel, which are on opposite sides of the rotunda. On each of these, in turn, Mr. Roosevelt laid a wreath. As he passed from one to another he got a taste of the weather, for the Pantheon is illuminated through a hole in the center of the dome, and through this, the heavy rain passed, flooding the pavement. The conditions for photography were elmost prohibitive. yet Italians with cameras swarmed over the altars to the great annoyance of the sacristan who was kept busy pulling them down. There was a great but fu-tile clicking of shutters.

King Is Gracious.

From the Pantheon Mr. Rooseveit drove to the Embassy for luncheon, and then to his hotel, where he held a re-It is related in the annals of the Dutch Italian Kings are very proud.

They eat spaghetti long and loud.

It was an exceptional honor extended to an American citizen, therefore, when the King, pink of cheek and precise in military attire, called at the Hotel Beau Site on Tuesday morning to take Mr. Roosevelt for a motor ride. The King descended from his car and entered the hotel. Then he came out, escorting Mr. Roosevelt, who took a seat at his right For the ceremonial observances at Rome, Mr. Roosevelt had abandoned his slouch hat and appeared in frock coat and silk hat, well gloved. Remem-bering the incidents of the Philadelphia convention which named Mr. Roosevelt for the Vice-Presidency, I recalled the picture of him riding beside Senator Platt to the convention hall, the old slouch hat on his head. Senator Platt tried to persuade him that the dignity of the Governor of New York required that he should wear a silk hat, but he would have none of it. Theodore Roosevelt has developed several sides of his character since he was Governor of New York.

Contrast Is Marked.

There was a curious contrast between the ex-President and the King as they sat in the royal automobile side by side. The King, pink and precise, with oalm, unwrinkled face, showed no trace of the

Returning to the botel before noon, Mr. Roosevelt turned as he left the mo-tor car and continued, in good English, the conversation he had been having with the King. The King rose to bid him good-by and returned his bow with a military salute. In the afternoon Mr. Roosevelt visited

Those who have become prematurely wrinkled, whether from trouble, worry or ill health, know full well the priceless tressure. they have tost. There is no need, however of anyone injuring their chances of socia or financial success in life by carrying around these marks of time, as they can be casely removed by a simple home treat ment that often produces surprising re suits in a single night.

In the Fall of 1907 I first realized that time, trouble and care had all left their marks on my face, that my skin had become dry and leathery, and that the clear, fresh complexion, the smooth skin and the curves of cheek and chin that go with a well preserved woman were mine no longer Restizing my position keenly and know-ing that the fine, clean, alert, well-caredfor-looking woman has many advantage over her more unfortunate sister. I tried many advertised remedies, hoping that I would find something that would smooth out the lines that time and trouble had brought me and restore the color and bloom

But, after trying beauty doctors, facials massage and almost every other known method, and after experiencing disappointment time and again. I took out my own wrinkles by a simple home treatment of my own discovery, which brought back my beauty and the freshness of youth. Doctors say it is the only treatment in the world that will actually remove wrinkles and make old faces look young and beautiful. Many of my friends look 20 years younger since try-ing my treatment, and the marvellous resuits it has produced in so many cases has prompted me to give it to the public.
