GRACE LANE AND LEWIS WALLER EW YORK, July 1 .- (Special.)-Count Jacques de Lesseps, who recently won fame by flying in a Bleriot monoplane across the Eng-Dish channel, arrived here recently on the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland. He is to take part in the aviation week at Montreal under the au spices of the Aeronautic Association of Canada. Accompanying the aviator were his brother, Count Bertrand de Lesseps, and his sister, Countess de la Begattlere. The latter has never made a flight with her brother, but said that he had promised she should be the first to accompany him when he ob-tains the two-scated Farman machine which he has ordered. The Count will have two machines to use. One arrived here a few days ago and the

His church, the Auditorium, the largest in the city, is packed morning and night on Sunday, and a recent series on "How to Be Happy Though Married" has proved the most popular series ever delivered in Los Angeles. This was a Sunday night series and hundreds were turned away each Sunday night because there was absolutely no more room in the big auditorium. It isn't often these days that any preachers' sermons are physicians' orders and comforted his last days that any preachers' sermons are talked about half an hour after they are delivered, but Dr. Brougher's have literally been the "talk of the town." They

"He had every American characteristic. He looked American; he thought as an American. He had the true American's faculty of doing intense, accurate, tremendous work in an easy, careless way. He had an American way of being shrewd and keen without being sharp or hard. He had the American's way of treatments before the same transfer of the same transfe But it is hardly fair to speak of Dr.
Brougher and denomination in the same scentence. Dr. Brougher is so much bigger than any denomination, that he made a king or pauper without letting his cigar go out. He was a good loser, but he was also what is much finer and much rarer, a good winner, because a generous, modest one. This picture of a true American type would have been marred if McGarvin had not been a polltician. McGarvin played politics unsel-nishly. With him it was a kind of "aggrandized sport."

Five years ago McGarvin was made chairman of the Republican City Central Committee, a fierce, fighting job. He enjoyed every minute of it. His opponents, whipped or victorious, always said not knowing he was in. She broke the physicians' orders and comforted his last hours. Three days later their little girl, Marjorie. 10 months old, died of menin-gitls. The double bereavement was al-foundries and breweries are still running with full capacity. But two or three incidents have kept the people of Los Angeles aware that a strike is on. The first was Judge Bordwell's stanch support of open-shop prin-ciples in the Superior Court when he granted injunctions against picketing. Every manufacturer whose employes were troubled by the crowds of union pickets about their places appealed for an injunction and got it. The lanan injunction and got it. The lan-guage of the court was so forceful that a large number of the imported union agents left the city for their homes in the North and East. They have already given up what was in-tended to be a National battle for union labor in Los Angèles. Another feature was the discovery of a plan, outside of Los Angeles, but affecting this city as well as Portland and every other city on the Coast It and every other city on the Coast. It was hatched in San Francisco, the only city on the Coast that is controlled absolutely by union labor. Three years ago the San Francisco employers, as a result of one of their struggles against the union labor trust, made an agreement with their workmen by which the hours were to be gradually shortened to eight. The agreement culminated June I, of this year, when the shops in that city started on an eight-hour basis. But the agreement also contained a provision inserted by the employers to the effect that a sim-to lengthen the day on August 1. Business men who discovered the agreement succeeded in getting a similar admission from the San Francisco employers. The publication of the facts as here set forth made the business men of Los Angeles pull up their belts another hole and stick all the tighter for the open-shop principles so dear to the heart of this city's residents.

Physician Alleged Brutal.

Dr. J. L. Martin, of Fresno, whose alleged brutal treatment of his wife following her double attempt at suicide during her illness last month aroused the indignation of the Valley City, has been held for trial on a charge of failing to provide proper medical attendance. There was hardly a dry eye in the packed courtroom during the telling of the story of the death of the doctor's wife. For eight days, said her sister and the nurse, Mrs. Martin had suffered continual tortures, and at the last could hardly breathe, yet her husband insisted that she was getting well. At the last the nurse insisted that she was dying and called Mrs. Martin's sister from the adjoining room.

"Kiss me, Jack," pleaded the dying wife. The physician said nothing.

"If you will kiss her, doctor," said the nurse, "it will make her last moments easier." Still he said nothing, and turned away. City, has been held for trial on a charge

"Her eyes were already glazed," said the nurse on the witness stand, "and I thought that she might think that

The telling of this story created an even more angry sentiment in the Mt-tie city, and Dr. Martin's presence-for he was out on ball—was not wanted. He left town as quickly as ossible after the hearing. News of another awful death on the desert in San Bernardino County was re-ceived this week. The victim, was Charles S. Davidson, a prominent electrical engineer, a graduate of Berkeley, and a young man with a host of friends throughout the state. The tragedy occurred in Searles Lake, a large body of mud in the vicinity of Death Valley.

Davidson and a party of friends from Berkeley and San Francisco, young men like himself, were in that section on business, surveying some property. They wanted to get to the other side of the "lake," and Davidson and one other decided to cut straight across. The others went around. The walking was very bad went around. The walking was very bad and the heat was terrific.

After having progressed some distance the two men began to flounder. Every step sent them into the mud to their knees. Davidson was ahead. The struggle was too great and his heart stopped under the strain. He toppled over in the mud. His friend was alarmed and hast-

One of the men was sent to Barstow, the nearest town on the desert, to notify the authorities. The others spent two whole days under the ravaging sun trying to get the body to the shore. At last they succeeded and then word came from Barstow that the Coroner could not hold an inquest. With the return of the messenger the party of young men decided senger the party of young men decided to bury their friend on the desert. It was a mournful party of young men that finally emerged from the desert. They were all of them prostrated for a day in Barstow, and when they left for their respective homes they swore never to venture on the desert again.

Outlaw Gang Broken Up.

With the capture of Gregorio Gusman at Peralta this week, another step was taken in the breaking up of the most daring and most thoroughly organized gang of smugglers of Chinese and opium that ever infested the Pacific Coast. Three months ago the gang conducted a thriving business over the Mexican border in the South and the Canadian border in the South and the Canadian border in the South and the Canadian bor-der in the Northwest. Through the Through the death and capture of a number of suc-cessive leaders Gusman had risen to have charge of the southern branch of

On April 20, Chinese Inspectors Conklin and Chadney waylaid four Chinese and their Mexican guide, Gregorio Espinoza, at El Toro. In the darkness a running battle between Espinoza and Conklin took place, and Espinoza fell mortally wounded. The gang of smugglers had received its first serious blow. Ten days afterward Conklin and Chadney sprang out upon another band, consisting of Jose Garcia and Gregorio Gusman, and a string of contraband Chinese, near San Onofore, a short distance south of the Orange County line. Gusman and Chadney fought a duel with revolvers, at close range, and although Chadney's face was powder burned so close were the two men, Gusman escaped in the darkness. Garcia and the Chinese were caught and Garcia is awaiting trial in jail.

Rosario Sainz, outlawed in Mexico and three times a murderer in California, was the next to be taken. He was captured at Ensenada, in Lower California, and extradited to be tried for murder. This left Gusman in charge of Southern branch of the gang. Learning that he was at Anahelm, Leo Youngworth, United States Marshal for this district, notified Santa Ana, City Marshal Edwards and Special Officer Cervantes, of Anaheim. The three men, with deputies, closed in on Gusman in Santa Ana Canyon and captured him before he could fire a shot. The officers are certain now that within a short time they will have wiped out this gang. So near complete is their work that several of the special is their work that several of the special Federal sleuths have already gone North to join the officials there in wiping out

Vaudeville Venture Fails.

Following this the Baker tackled + yauthe face of the fact that acts were difficult to secure. However, some very excellent performers, some from Chicago, others from San Francisco, were engaged. It was via this house that the big cycling whirl act was first intro-luced to Portlanders, Mr. Baker having secured the attraction from the Orpheum circuit in San Francisco.

The old Baker house was during this time leased to Keating & Flood to be used as a 10-cent vaudeville house. This held forth with popularity during the season of the Lewis and Clark Fair, followed by a season of burlesque road shows, when the Baker folk, in May, 1906, opened for a brief season with Lillian Lawrence and John Sainpolis in leading roles. In July this company closed, opening again in September with the same leads, playing the entire season until June. Of this company mention has already been made of Miss Lawrence, John Sainpolls has since appeared in New York productions and appeared in New York productions and was this past year with Mary Mannering.
