AND SOME FACTS ABOUT the FAMOUS

A BIT OF HISTORY Abner Cutler, founder of The Cutler Desk Co., invented the Roll-Top Desk, in 1872, and ever since then Cutlers have continued making solid-wood desks. One by one, other manufacturers have dropped constructing solid desks, and substituted "veneered," because of the advance in cost of high-grade material, until Cutlers now stand alone. In spite of no competition, Cutler's solid desks are no higher in price than "veneered." Ten years from today, the CUTLER desk you buy now, will be worth more money, because it is SOLID and select material is steadily advancing in price.

The Main Points of Excellence That Distinguish a CUTLER DESK are as Follows:

A construction of solid wood-including dove-tail glue-joints, tenons, distribution of weight, etc., Desk is always in service, and increases in money value.

A harmony of proportion that delights the owner every day of his life.

A drawer-structure based on scientific principles; year in and year out every drawer responds as A locking device that cannot be improved for simplicity and strength.

A big, symmetrical pigeonhole case that is held entirely off the writing bed; every inch of valuable working space is thus made available. A flexible curtain that works with silken smoothness, wears like iron and looks handsome always;

this is equally true of all sizes. A finish composed of the finest material and labor; it is always clear, hard and smooth; it stands perfectly many extremes of temperature.

In brief, Cutler construction and workmanship throughout is the highest expression of common sense and ingenuity.
