POINDEXTER TALK NOT CONVINCING

'Reads Well but Does Not Listen Good," Is Comment of Opposing Politician.

'nsurgent Aspirant Ties Himself to Roosevelt and Hopes to Ride Into Office on Popularity of ex-President.

SEATTLE, July 30. - (Special) - In ils speech at the Grand Opera-House Congressman Miles Poindexter fired the Irst big gun of his Senatorial cam-paign. It made a powerful noise, and the echoes are still chasing themselves up and down the state, but whether it ip and down the state, but whether it lid any substantial damage to Poin-lexter's opponents may well be doubted. As was remarked by a Burke pardisan who attended the meeting: "Poin-lexter's speech 'reads' well, but it loesn't listen good.' If the insurgent an cover enough ground in his campaign he will surely kill himself."

This is but another way of saying that while Poindexter's speeches are well edited, his style of delivery is far rom convincing. At this stage of the sampaign he appears to be slightly in the lead, with Wilson and Burke concesting for second place. On that actour there was more than usual interest in the first pubil appearance of the sount there was more than usual interest in the first publi appearance of the insurgent, and the outline of his plan of sattle; and on that account also the frowd laughed good-naturedly when Poindexter, at the beginning of his speech, observed: 'It is somewhat embarrassing for me to appear in this metropolis, in view of the large number of your own citizens who are trying to get the same office.

Poindexter Ties to Roosevelt.

The plan of campaign was clearly indicated. The insurgent intends to tie himself, hard and tight, to Coionel Roosevelt, and through the implied encouragement of Oyster Bay gather the Roosevelt Republicans of the state to Poindexter's support as a "progressive." This is the precise meaning of Poindexter's version of Roosevelt's remark, that "we have had a very pleasant day.

center's version of Roosevelt's remark, that "we have had a very pleasant day, and have found ourselves in harmony on political questions."

There are likely to be troubled waters ahead for the Poindexter bark. His views on conservation may prove embarrassing to him, for Washington has been hurt quite as much as any other Western State by the policies of Pinchot. In his Senttle speech Poindexter said: dexter said:

As the trouble lies there, relief is not in the abolition of the laws of conservation, but in the appointment of a Secretary of the Department of the Interior who will properly administer these laws. He has attacked Taft, while parportain Roosevelt; and it is this weak point in his plan of battle that has been marked by his opponents.

He also tries to belittle any disadvantage he may be put to geographically When Wilson, Burke, Humphries and Ashton argue that the East Side already has a Senator in Wesley L. Jones, Poindexter replies: "I shall have the same interest in that portion have the same interest in that portion of the state which is west of the Cascade Mountains as in the East Side. I shall represent the whole state, with favor to no section."

Humphries Cites History.

Poindexter's hid for Democratic votes at the Republican primaries has called forth a spirited article from Judge John E. Humphries, who recites that 16 years ago the insurgent Conthat 16 years ago the insurgent Congressman was a Cleveland Democrat.
But when he stepped into the Republican party and was elected to Congress he lost sight of the fact that he had been elected by Republican votes,

Poindexter is attacked in similar vein by the other Senatorial candidates. Both Wilson and Burke have been campaigning in the northwestern counties, and both report conditions to be encouraging. Senator S. H. Piles and ex-Governor Henry McBride have both been on the stump for Burke. Piles has cited the warm admiration of President Taft as an arrangement. of President Taft as an argument for Burke's election, and McBride has given the impression that, in his judg-ment, the context is one-sided. To this the Wilson people have replied, showing the former Senator's excellent standthe former Senator's excellent stand-ing, and stating that two years ago McBride was not able to carry Skagit County in his race for Governor. Wilson Leads in East.

Conditions on the East Side have been indicated by Hon. L. O. Melgs. Speaker of the last Legisiature, who owas in Seattle during the week. Melgs is supporting Wilson. He says Wilson is leading, not only in Yakima County, but throughout Central Washington. If have a varied acquaintance throughout that section, says Speaker Melgs, and the sentiment, as I have found it, is Cory strong for Senator Wilson. Substantially the same forecast is made by D. T. Ham, chairman of the Republican County. He says that, although Spokane County. He says that, although Spokane is the home of Poindexter, the Republican woters of that county will be found favoring a West Side candidate. Mr. Ham cays: "Since we are willing to concede to Western Washington the candidate for United States Senator, we feel that this section of the state that this section of the state the should defer to us a bit in the selection of that candidate. This is not a year when Republicans can divide their forces; and it seems to me, therefore, that all real Republicans of King County can well afford, in the present crisis, to join hands with us for Senator Wilson."

The effect of Poindexter's Seattle speech has been decidedly to enliven the campaign. During the week the insurgent has been delivering speeches in King County, notably at Auburn, where he covered substantially the same ground as in the speech at the Grand Opera-House.

CANNERYMEN GIVE MONEY

Private Funds Aid State in Building Central Hatchery.

SALEM, Or., July 30.—(Special.)—R. E. Clanton, Master Fish Warden, has returned from Astoria, Portland and Columbia River points, where he has secured funds from cannery and cold storage men to be applied on the central hatchery at Bonneville. The last Legislature apropriated $12,000 for that purpose, but it has proved that this is not a sufficient amount both to equip and complete the work. In order to get results, the Master Fish Warden states, it is necessary to complete the rearing poinds to feed the fish after being hatched and before they are old enough to shift for themselves.

He has secured nearly the entire sum needed, although there are a few cannerymen whom the Fish Warden is certain will donate toward completing the project whom he has not seen as yet. The people who have already made donations are as follows: F. A. Seufert, Columbia River Packers' Association; S. Schmidt & Co., P. J. McGowan & Sons, Inc., J. Linderberger, Inc., Booth Fisheries Co., Everding & Farrell and the Warren Packing Company.

The Fish Warden reports that there are between 5000 and 6000 fish between the racks of the Umpqua and that there are a large number of fish between the racks at the McKenzie hatchery above Eugene. The superintendent in charge there will begin taking eggs in the next few days and reports indicate that the outlook this year for salmon eggs to be shipped to the central hatchery is very favorable.

In building operations, sales of realty and bank clearings thus far, 1910 is far ahead of the corresponding months in 1909. More business is being done in Portland each year and the volume of all lines shows a steady and healthy in-

In the bank clearings for the month In the bank clearings for the month just closed more than $13,250,000 is the increase over July of 1999. In the real estate transfers for the same period the increase is more than $500,000, and the number of deals made is a trifle less. This more than anything else is an indication of the greater value of Portland property each year.

Postal receipts for July show a 9.39 per cent increase over those of July, 1909. In money figures this is more than $6000.

In a comprehensive glance the story of the daily finances of the city may be got from the following table of bank clear-ings for the year 1909 and so far of 1910:

months of 1910 over the same period in last year, $4.349,336.

While the total transfers recorded for the month of July numbers 49 less than for July, 1908, the transfers for July, 1910, were for much larger considerations. This fact, among real estate men, is taken to indicate the approximate increase in the value of property, as the deals have been in approximately the same neighborhood. The increase in values of the lesser number of sales amounts to $574,518.

Livestock Trade Active. July is not an active month in the livestock trade, yet business at the Port-land Union Stockyards in the past month was of very satisfactory proportions and the total showed a good increase over the same month last year. At the same time values held up well and were not much below the Winter level, while they were considerably higher than the prices of one year ago.

A total of 400 cars of livestock were inloaded at the North Portland yards in July, the aggregate value of the stock being $700,000. The receipts during the month were: Cattle, 890s; sheep, 14,223; hogs, 8228; horses and mules, 308. As compared with July of last year, these figures show an increase of 416 sheep, 4892 hogs and 55 horses and mules, and a decrease of 836 cattle.

Postal Receipts $70.853.06.

Postal receipts at the Portland post-office were last night estimated by Cashier Hirsch for the month of July, 1910, at $70,858.06. The receipts for the same month in 1909 were $64,765.81. The increase for the month of 1910 is estimated to be $5083.25, or 9.39 per

The Portland postoffice has steadily passed the receipts for similar purposes in various cities of the same class in the United States, and at the end of June was ranked ahead of Providence R. City Pays Out Big Sums.

July made an unusually large drain or July made an unusually large drain on the city's finances, according to City Treasurer Werlein, who yesterday said that over $500,000 had been paid out in the various departments. The largest item was for street improvements, in which over $550,000 was expended. Notwithstanding the large amounts paid out the treasury is in a healthy condition, says Mr. Werlein, and the available funds reach a total of nearly $1,800,000. At the close of business yesterday, the report for the month of July is as follows:

Big Gains Are Shown. Portland bank clearings show a gain of 30 per cent in July over the corresponding month of 1966, or an increase of more than $13,000,000.

In July, 1908, the total clearings for the month were $30,105,112.83, while last month the total ran up to $43,005,020.91.

The week's gain was more than 60 per cent. In the corresponding week of 1909 the Portland banks showed clearings aggregating $5,289,875.41, and in last week $5,416,887.44.

Illinois Central President to Put Blame on Rawn.

CONFESSIONS ARE MADE

Farming Out of Cars Supported by False Statements Elaborately Prepared-Rawn's Influence Was Craftily Extended. "

(Continued From First Page.) the road came up that Mr. Rawn's advice and counsel was not sought, and Harahan, therefore, gradually, relinquished more and more of the details of the Illinois Central management. The Rawn case is said not to be the first case by any means in which a railroad president who was getting ready to lay down the reins and take a long-earned rest as chairman of the board, permitted his logical successo to become the "power behind the throne." Having gained this position in the management of the Illinois Central road, the president's story will show, it is said. Rawn began to work out the details of the alleged con-

Car "Graft" Plot Laid.

When business recession struck the railroads more than 12,000 freight-cars, which had been on foreign roads, were suddenly thrown upon the Illinois Central," the majority of them in bad order. In the meantime, it will be told, I. G. Rawn was getting ready to extend the operations of the car grafters. When the question arose of how to get the bad order cars repaired quickly, business having returned with an unprecedented rush. Mr. Rawn is said to have told the president that the Ostermann Manufacturing Com-pany, the Blue Island Rolling Mills & Car Company, the Memphis Car Company and the other car companies involved, had agreed to do work and were doing it cheaper than the big car companies, such as the Pullman and the American Car & Foundry Company.

In order to make this apparent, according the other than the Marchan and the American Car & Foundry Company.

In order to make this apparent, according to the story Mr. Harahan will tell on the stand, Rawn had false figures prepared showing the cost to the company of cars which had been repaired by the big companies mentioned and those repaired by the little companies mentioned. These figures, it is asserted, were false and were prepared with a view of deceiving the president and getting him to approve of Rawn's acheme to send cars to the commanies that were in the deal to the companies that were in the deal.

Men's Honesty Relied On.

The question of securing the maximum protection for the company arose and was discussed between the president and the vice-president. It was suggested by Mr. Rawn, it is said, that the comby Mr. Rawn, it is said, that the com-pany could protect itself adequately by entering into a contract whereby the car companies could not possibly make more than 15 per cent over the cost of re-pairing. As a further protection, it was suggested that the companies repairing could not charge more for material than the prices stipulated by the purchasing department of the Illinois Central road. It was provided further in the con-
