

PRIZES OFFERED FOR BEST APPLES

Premium List of Big Show to Be Held Here in Fall is Long One.

MUCH INTEREST IS TAKEN

Oregon Horticultural Society Desires to Secure Exhibits From Every Fruitgrowing County Throughout the Whole State.

Oregon's apple show, to be held in Portland November 30 to December 2, inclusive, is going to be the largest and best ever conducted under the auspices of the Oregon Horticultural Society, according to Secretary Frank W. Power. The premium list will contain many attractive prizes. This list will be completed within a few days, and will be distributed throughout the State.

"There is every indication that the coming show will be a 'bummer,'" said Mr. Power yesterday. "We are receiving inquiries from many of the prominent fruitgrowers in the state and much interest is being shown in the enterprise. I am particularly anxious that the growers begin to make preparations now for their exhibits, especially in the way of spraying and caring for the fruits they wish to display."

"Every fruitgrower will be sent a copy of the premium list if possible. All not now on our mailing list can get a copy from me at Room 2 in the Lumbermen's Building. I have requested every fruitgrower's association in the state to forward a list of the names of growers in their respective districts. Any commercial organization not already represented on my list is asked to offer a premium for fruit grown in the county where the organization is located. We would like to have a premium offered in every fruit-growing county in the state and also hope to have an exhibit at the apple show from all the fruit-producing counties. The only way to make the show a big success is for every grower and county organization to help us.

"This year we are going to give special prizes for the best exhibits made by growers living East of the Deschutes River. We hope to have spirited rivalry between the growers in the Eastern part of the state and expect many exhibits from that district. "This show is only a forerunner for the one next year, when we will be able to have exhibits in each and every county in the state. We expect to make the Oregon apple show ultimately as large and important as any exhibition of the kind ever held."

Before the premium list is completed it is expected that at least 75 medals will be offered. A diploma will be awarded to each winner of a cash prize. The list of premiums prepared to date is as follows:

FURNITURE INVESTMENT PAYS BIG DIVIDENDS

Thousands of people now living in furnished rooms and furnished apartments are paying from $5 to $15 per month more than the same space would cost them—unfurnished. They pay for the furniture every two years—and still don't own it. Now, if these same people owned the furniture they would be reaping an ANNUAL DIVIDEND OF 50 PER CENT. How many investments have you paying 50 per cent dividends each year? In addition, if you own the furniture, if it is of your own selection, you will draw big dividends of pleasure, comfort and satisfaction. Few Get-Rich-Quick schemes even promise more for your money than a furnished home actually pays you. Can you afford to defer the matter longer? At our No-Rent prices it won't cost you any fortune, and we give reasonable terms.

AS TO A JOINT SENATORSHIP
Mr. Eastham, of Clackamas, Indulges in Hair-splitting.

OREGON CITY, Or., July 25.—(To the Editor.)—Commenting to the writer's prejudice, in the issues of last Saturday and Sunday, on the joint Senatorial situation in the district comprising Multnomah, Clackamas and Columbia Counties, The Oregonian assumes the "regularity" of the Multnomah County candidate. In its argument it takes as a premise the substance of dispute. The Oregonian of Friday morning, July 23, announced that the delegations representing Multnomah, Clackamas and Columbia Counties, these comprising the 14th Senatorial district, in joint caucus endorsed for joint Senator a Multnomah County candidate. While your reporter stated to the writer that he had information from the Multnomah delegation that such a caucus was held and such action taken, I can say positively that there was not a member of the Clackamas or Columbia County delegation in the caucus.

After this announcement was made and the news item confirmed by your reporter, the Clackamas and Columbia County delegations, meeting jointly, by resolution now on file with the secretary of the state assembly, selected the writer as the assembly candidate for joint Senator. After this action was taken, and just at the close of the state assembly, the Multnomah County delegation drew eight or nine Clackamas and Columbia County delegates into a pretended joint caucus and attempted to gain the form of "regularity" by again endorsing their candidate. I declined to allow my name to be considered and stated plainly and emphatically that I would not be bound by such proceedings. Unless the Multnomah County candidate bases his claim to "regularity" on the Friday afternoon "fiasco," his sole claim to being the assembly candidate rests on his indorsement by the Multnomah delegation following the instruction of the Multnomah County assembly.

While the Multnomah County assembly named a delegation 214 strong, the delegation was not left free to counsel and advise with the Clackamas and Columbia County delegations, but was bound hard and fast, with positive instruction to cast its overpowering vote for the Multnomah County candidate.

Vegetable—Portland Seed Company, $25 merchandise for vegetables, potatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, onions.

in question, according to the best information I have at hand, Multnomah County, after receiving her apportionment of six Senators, had a remaining fractional population of about 6000 to apply toward a joint Senatorial district, and to complete it Clackamas and Columbia Counties had about 1000. A similar condition prevailed when Multnomah and Clackamas Counties made up the joint Senatorial district in 1899. So Multnomah County, contributing less than half the population that goes to make up the joint district, claims now, for the third consecutive time, the privilege of naming the candidate.

When the district was created in 1899 the Clackamas County delegation in the Legislature yielded to the persuasion of the Multnomah County delegation to make the joint Senatorial district Multnomah and Clackamas Counties, instead of Marion and Clackamas. Clackamas County's consent to this arrangement was obtained, however, under the positive assurance that she should continue to name the joint Senator at alternate terms. The Republican party of Multnomah County now seeks to override its compact and in absolute disregard of justice and good faith attempts to place a candidate in the field and by a trick endeavors to decorate him with the insignia of "party regularity."

I insist that the compact entered into by the Republican party of Multnomah County, through its delegation in the Legislature, is more binding on the party than the action of the Statement No. 12 delegation in the state assembly, and therefore, since this compact relinquishes Multnomah's claim, the privilege of naming the candidate devolves upon the Clackamas and Columbia County delegations. And furthermore, if Multnomah County was entitled to a voice in naming the candidate, her delegation in the state assembly, not being free to deliberate on this matter, or consult or advise with the remaining delegations, but I submit to you, nevertheless, that it would have been effective, for few of the delegates, if any, would have had the hardihood to ignore it. It was likewise effective in the matter of the joint Senatorship. The Statement No. 1 to which the members of the Multnomah delegation subscribed, by implication, was that, if named on the delegation, they would support the candidate for joint Senator already having received the vote of the county assembly. Are you going to champion the doctrine of Statement No. 1 on such occasions as result to your satisfaction?

In making up the Senatorial district delegation and the state assembly certainly performed with its best judgment.
