Will Last a Lifetime

We confidently claim that the Peninsular Genuine Hammered Planished Steel Range represents the very highest type of range construction, and we challenge anyone to produce their superior in convenience, ease of operation, economy of fuel, in long life and durability.

Specially constructed machinery cut, punch and form the plates, so that they fit with exact precision. There is no unequal expansion or strain so common to other ranges. Peninsulars, therefore, are the tightest, strongest and best steel ranges made. All we ask is to have you examine the workmanship of Peninsulars as compared with others, and you will be convinced that what we say is absolutely true.

Genuine hammered planished steel used in the construction of our ranges is so expensive that other manufacturers have declined its use and are substituting a material of a cheaper grade and calling it planished steel. Our steel requires no blacking. It is very smooth and uniformly colored, simply wiping with a cloth serves to keep it clean. Another point to be remembered is that there is no coating to burn off or peel and become unsightly, as the finish is part of the steel plate itself.

Double walls of steel, lined with pure asbestos, form outer walls of body. The asbestos being fireproof and a non-conductor, retains the heat, adds greatly to the life of the range, increases the radiation at cooking surface, saves fuel and makes range a quick baker.

All seams on Peninsular steel range bodies are riveted every two inches on back of range, as well as front, with steple-headed rivets, set squarely to outside of body; can never pull through.

Covers and centers are strongly braced and ribbed, to prevent warping or cracking. These parts are extra heavy and carefully fitted with just sufficient allowance for expansion and contraction.

Peninsular oven bottoms are made of 10-gauge cold-rolled steel, riveted to body every two inches by a heavy steel flange and bolted through the center by two heavy steel bolts. Absolutely guaranteed never to warp or buckle. This heavy plate stiffens the body and gives the range strength.
