

RESTAURANTS YET VIOLATING LAWS

Police Seemingly Make No Effort to Check Prohibited Liquor Sales.

GIRLS ABLE TO GET DRINKS

"What Hot Meal?" Is Question That May Govern Traffic in Cheap Resorts—Proprietors Ignore Officers of the Law.

Proprietors of second-class restaurants and liquor resorts scattered throughout every quarter of the city have apparently cast aside what meager respect they formerly held for the ordinance regulating the sale of liquor to minors and adults and continue unchecked in their brazen violations of the law. It is evident that the listless method of the police in enforcing the ordinance is the cause of the sale of liquor to minors and adults. The sale of liquor is the direct cause of the effrontery on the part of the proprietors.

The occasional arrests by the police of certain proprietors for violation of the liquor traffic have apparently had little effect. Although the police declared war on the lawbreakers at times when the erring proprietors were haled into publicity the proposed crusades never materialized.

Hull's Arrest Is Last.

Since the arrest of L. O. Hull, the proprietor of the notorious "White Front Grill," a South Portland resort several weeks ago, and the subsequent suspension of business there, the police have, for some unknown reason, not seen fit to cause similar molestations.

Trouble in the South and North Ends and in the heart of the city in the downtown district, as well as on the principal thoroughfares of the East Side, the proprietors of cafes, restaurants, grills and beer saloons which cater to those of the feminine sex with a thirst for liquor have been permitted to violate the law without fear of police interference. Not alone have the proprietors of such resorts violated the law governing the sale of liquor to minors, but in innumerable instances the minor law has been utterly disregarded. It is not an uncommon sight to venture into any of these establishments, which are or at least should be, under the surveillance of the police, after dark, and observe young girls sitting at the bar and well under their majority of years (clipping a glass of an intoxicating beverage to her lips).

"Rialto" District Flourishes.

While such scenes are nightly witnessed in every section of the city, yet the greatest patronage from this source is secured by the proprietors of the establishments on the "Rialto," the district in the immediate vicinity of Sixth and Stark streets. In this section there are a dozen liquor-selling places, some of which cater to the "low-down" element and others which gladly extend courtesies to the more elite. Two of the most notorious resorts of this class in the city are located on the so-called "Rialto." These places are the Mecca where habitués of the underworld congregate or virtually reside when not otherwise engaged. Citizens who have of a necessity been compelled to venture along these thoroughfares with those of their kin and men whose places of business are located in proximity to these rendezvous for auto fiends and persons of immoral stations in life, have incessantly complained to the authorities for redress or remedy of the practice.

Nothing has been done by the police to rectify the situation.

In the places of the less reputable class in the downtown district the laws restricting the sale of liquors are openly "sold." This may be assigned, particularly to the fact that seldom, if ever, a police officer in his line of duty enters the places "to see how things are going." It is in these establishments that the much-abused "joker" in the "liquor with meal ordinance" is utterly ignored and all that is required to purchase a drink is the price.

Grant Interprets Law.

The liquor ordinance was recently diagnosed by City Attorney Grant for the express benefit of Chief of Police Cox at a recent meeting of the license committee. According to the interpretation of the ordinance by the attorney, liquor can be served to purchasers only with a "hot meal."

Since the scores of restaurant owners have besigned the police executive to such interrogations asking what are the ingredients of a "hot meal," Chief Cox has been confronted with a perplexing enigma. Pending his arrival at a possible solution several of the proprietors, upon the pretext of conforming with the ordinance have added "hot dog" or wicker-worst sandwiches to the bill of fare for the purpose of being served with drinks to bridge the ordinance.

GOD IS LOVE; LOVE IS GOD

Modern View of the Impersonal Ruler of the Universe.

PORTLAND, Sept. 2.—(To the Editor.)—And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, "Behold the shelter of love is over men, and love will dwell with them and be their God. And love shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things have passed away."

There are two ways of thinking of God. One, the Roman idea, which is all through the Old Testament, and still pervades the church of the present day. This is the thought of a ruler, a God of strength and power, who shall judge men—shall sit on the clouds of heaven and render to every man according to his work. Something spectacular still clings to this aspect of God, and Christ in teaching his doctrine to his disciples and followers found that among the most difficult things to eliminate from their minds concerning himself. In vain he said, "The kingdom of heaven is within you," or "like a grain of mustard seed," very small at first, or like the leaven hid in the meal until the whole is leavened, they still persisted in thinking of God as a ruler, a God of strength and power, who shall judge men—shall sit on the clouds of heaven and render to every man according to his work. This same doctrine was and is still taught by the theologians of both ancient and modern times. The preachers thundered of sin and of judgment, to come and filled men's minds with fear, while they left out God's love, which does not, like fear, make cravens of men, but which, instead, arms them with almost supernatural strength to combat evil. God was something still outside the world, looking upon and governing it indeed, but as a judge, a critic, not as a Father. This view is called the eminence of God, or God held up.

There is another view of God. It came from the Greeks, and though their gods were many the idea may be applied to one. This is of the eminence or nearness of God; God in everything—the trees, the flowers, the winds; all nature is permeated by him in him they live and move and have their being.

As the flowers spring upward towards the sun and his light and warmth cause them to put forth, to bud and bloom, so all his creation reaches up to his love and care. Love then is the power, rather than power, the mighty unseen force of love. Let us do away with God as a judge sitting in the clouds, let us think of him rather as a Father, a life-giver. The world is weary of the Roman idea of force, of blood, of war and cruelty, and turns its longing eyes toward love, and in the inspired vision of St. John we see the time when love or God, for "God is love," shall settle all disputes and wrongs, when there shall be no more curses, when war shall cease, when peace shall dawn, and then indeed shall heaven come down to men.

FUNERAL MEN ADJOURN

R. L. Holman, Oregon City, Elected to Head State Association.

With the election of officers yesterday afternoon the annual convention of the Oregon State Funeral Directors' Association adjourned to meet in Salem, Or. The officers elected for the ensuing year were: R. L. Holman, Oregon City, president; A. L. Finley, of Portland, was re-elected secretary; and Walter Holman, of Portland, was elected treasurer.

Professor Horace Moll, the Chicago embalming expert, delivered another interesting address before the convention. A large number of delegates was in attendance yesterday in the convention hall at the Portland Commercial Club.

PORTLAND COUPLE CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

MR. AND MRS. J. A. JONES.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones, both 70 years old, celebrated their golden wedding Thursday night at their home, 797 East Thirty-second street. There was a happy gathering of children and grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones were married on September 1, 1860, in Webster County, Missouri. Both were born in Tennessee. In company with the father and several step-brothers of Mr. Jones they came across the plains from Arkansas in a Prairie schooner, hauled by a yoke of oxen. They left for the West on September 19, 1871. The Jones family came alone as far west as Laramie, Wyo., where they joined another wagon train.

They arrived at Weiser, Idaho, the following Spring. After staying in the neighborhood of Weiser and Boise City for a time the family came to Oregon and located at La Grande. There Mr. Jones, who is a carpenter, helped build most of the early buildings. Seven years later they returned to Idaho. The family moved to Portland in 1895.

Mr. Jones was a member of the First Arkansas Cavalry for three years of the Civil War. His regiment was detailed to following guerrillas in Missouri and Arkansas. His father and five brothers were members of the Forty-ninth Missouri Infantry. It was in one of the combats with the Southern soldiers that one of his brothers was killed.

Mr. Jones is still actively at work at his trade, despite his age. He works in Summers finishing the interiors of houses. He has finished two already this summer and expects to complete another this fall. Mrs. Jones is still active and helps in her own household.

At the golden wedding dinner on Thursday night 30 guests were present. The table was prettily decorated with gold and white ribbons intermingled with china, silver and delftware. During the dinner a phonograph played "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet" and other old-time songs.

The old couple were treated to a basket surprise party on Thursday afternoon by members of the Church of Christ, of which they are members.

There are six children living. Four have died. In the family of 10 were five sons and five daughters. The living children are: Mrs. C. M. LeValley, 423 East Thirty-ninth street, Portland; Mrs. H. D. Hagerman, 809 East Thirtieth street, Portland; Mrs. J. R. Terwilliger, 757 East Thirty-second street, Portland; J. H. Jones, Seattle; W. S. Jones, Seattle; and A. G. Jones, Acquia, Idaho. The grandchildren are: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Latham, St. Johns, Or.; Mrs. Mary Evelyn Jones, John William Jones, Alice Bernice Jones, of Seattle; Elizabeth Frances LeValley, Ellen Mildred LeValley, Portland; Hugh Abner Jones, Seattle; John Dayton Hagerman and Arthur Kenneth Hagerman, Portland. Other relatives living are Mrs. M. E. Prescotte, Laura, Edmunds, Ethel Edmunds and Melvin Byles, of Portland, and Mrs. A. M. Post, of Eastern Washington.

The couple received many gold coins as presents. Mrs. A. M. Post, a niece, gave them an old gold coin with a history attached. Mrs. J. B. Terwilliger, a daughter, lives with them.

LABOR TO BE FREE TO ENJOY HOLIDAY

Monster Parade and Dance to Be Only Set Features of Observance.

NOVEL FLOATS PROMISED

Rivalry Between Unions for Best Showing in Parade Will Be Keen. Public Offices Will Be Closed All Day.

Labor day will be observed in Portland tomorrow in a way that will give all of the 12,000 members of local trades unions an opportunity to spend the holiday with freedom and relaxation. Exercises usually conducted on this day will be dispensed with altogether, and the programme will consist only of a monster parade in the afternoon and a dance at night. All public offices will remain closed and it is expected that nearly all employers will give their workmen the full day off.

For the parade extensive preparations have been made and it is the opinion of the committee in charge that it will have many features never before seen in Portland. The most prominent unions will have floats or features distinctive of their particular crafts and much rivalry will be shown.

D. W. Robinson, secretary of the Central Labor Council announced yesterday that fully 300 workmen would be in line and he believes the turnout would be the largest ever made by union labor in Portland.

Will Daly, president of the Central Labor Council, will be grand marshal of the parade and will be assisted by D. W. Robinson, of the building trades; Y. E. Bell, of the metal trades; Joseph Foley, of the waterfront; W. A. Marshall, of the printing trades; O. D. Fortes, of the brewery trades, and E. G. Barger, of the miscellaneous trades.

The parade will head at Park and Burnside streets and will cover the principal business streets of the city. Grand Marshal Daly announces that it will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock and urges all of the unions to have their men on the ground, ready to start at that time.

The festivities of tomorrow will conclude with a grand ball to be given in

MISSION WORK PLANNED

RALLY MEETINGS WILL BE HELD HERE NEXT MONTH.

Occasion Will Mark 50th Anniversary of American Women's Activity in Foreign Lands.

A series of missionary rallies, marking the 50th anniversary of the beginning of woman's organized work in America for foreign missions, is planned for the principal cities in the West in October, of which Portland is one.

The general character of the meetings here will be similar to that of the laymen's missionary meetings last Spring but are designed particularly to enlist the attention and interest of women who cannot be reached through the ordinary means.

The dates fixed for the Portland rallies are October 13 and 14, and yesterday at a meeting of the Interdenominational City Union at the Y. W. C. A. a committee of three was appointed from each denomination to meet at the Y. W. C. A. next Saturday, determine upon a place for holding the rallies, appoint sub-committees and do such other work as may be deemed necessary to promote the success of the movement.

These meetings are to be held in 30 of the largest cities, East and West, and will culminate in a great gathering in New York in the Spring of 1911. The series will be known as "The Woman's National Foreign Missionary Jubilee," and has been planned by the Central Committee on Mission Boards. The committee has secured the services of Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, one of the country's noted speakers on foreign mission work, who will be heard here with other representative women.

The general plan that will probably be adopted will include an afternoon conference with workers, the evening to be given to a lecture on women's work, illustrated by moving pictures and colored slides. On the following morning a drawing-room meeting for specially invited guests will be held for the benefit of women of means not deeply interested in foreign missions; at noon a luncheon, limited to 1000 tickets, will probably be served, and addresses will follow. For the second afternoon denominational rallies are planned, each under the auspices of its board secretary who will present discussions, illustrated by charts and figures, on present conditions, needs, possibilities and urgent demands. The second evening is to be devoted to a grand rally where reports from the afternoon meetings will be read and short addresses delivered by missionaries and others.

Many Oyster Beds Condemned.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3.—Ninety-two oyster beds in this state have been condemned by the State Board of Shell Fish Commissioners, because of the pollution of the water. The Government's standard for the purity of the oysters was adopted by the commissioners to govern the bivalves taken from Rhode Island waters for public consumption.

Rose City Station to Open.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 2.—The Postoffice Department today ordered the establishment of Rose City station of the Portland postoffice at the intersection of Cully avenue and Sands road to open October 1.
