FLIRTING IS NOT DIVORCE EXCUSE

Seattle Judge Insists on More Serious Charges Against Wife.

ACTION OFTEN HARMLESS

Jurist Quotes New York Clergyman In Saying Flirting Is Not Harmful-Other Members of Bench Comment.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 10 .- (Special.) - The act of flirting in the abstract, without evidence of consequent damaging complications, is not a suffidamaging complications, is not a sufficient cause for divorce," said Judge Wilson E. Gay, from the bench in the suit of Dr. Leon B. Collier against his wife, Myrtle N. Collier.

"Firting is a very common and often harmless amusement, and we must certainly have semething further in the way of testimony before a decree can be grasted. We must have details and specifications of some overt act that will furnish a cause for divorce under the law. A prominent New York ciergyman has said that there is no harm in man has said that there is no harm in

"But, your Honor, she descried me when I insisted on her going to shurch," urged the plaintiff.
"Very well, give us some testimony on that point," said the court. The father of Dr. Coilier told the court that he saw a brakeman help his daughter-in-law on board a train and that the brakeman's face gave every evidence that he had "discovered a live wire." The father-in-law said Mrs. Coilins was an incorrigible flirt.

Descriion Evidence Stronger.

The doctor told of his efforts to keep his wife at home while they lived at Puyallup, and said that she was almost constantly spending her days in Seattle and Tacoma, and neglected to prepare his means. Often, said the witness, he had remonstrated and sought to pro-he had remonstrated and sought to pro-cure her attendance at church, and fin-illy she tired of him and left him.

The court granted the decree of di-rece on the grounds of desertion.

Flirting Possible in Many Ways.

Judge Boyd Tailman said: "It is a hard question to answer in the ab-stract. There are so many different ways of flirting, and the circumstances are rarely the same in any two in-stances. Of course, it's not confined to the women though perhaps. They stances. Of course, it's not continued to the women, though, perhaps, they are more often guilty of the act than men. One may flirt with the eyes, with the hands, or with the feet—for instance, a woman walking with some man other than her husband or affianced. I really don't care to express an emission."

Judge R. B. Albertson: "There's filtring and then again there's filtring. No. really, I don't care to express my epinion on the subject except from the bench."

Some Flirting Harmless.

Judge John F. Main: "I would be guided entirely by the statute and the evidence given in the special case at hand. Flirting might be sufficient cause and it might not. You never can Rev. F. J. Van Horn, pastor of the

FULTON'S ACT MAY STAND

(Continued From First Page.) els, came across considerable areas of timber land adjoining National forests, but not part of them. In states other than the six in question such forest land, if vacant, has been added to the reserves by proclamation of the President, but nothing could be done in the six atmess, because of the prohibition of Congress.

Nevertheless, the President is anxious that such land shall be added to the reserves, and he believes the most prac-tical way to accomplish this is to repeal the Fulton act. As stated, the total area that would be added probably would not exceed 2,060,000 acres, and already more than that amount of agricultural land has been eliminated from the reserves in the states in question, so that ultimately the aggregate National forest re-serve area will be diminished rather than increased as a result of this season's field work, assuming the President's recenmendation is carried out by Congress.

Fulton Fathered Law.

it will be recalled that when the Fulton act was passed some four years ago Gifford Pinchot was chief of the Forest Service and was recklessly freat-ing National forests all over the West without due regard to public senti-ment or the character of land being re-served. Senator Fulton, of Oregon, objected to having his state plastered with reserves, and proposed an amend-ment to the agricultural bill prohibiting the further creation of reserves in his state except by authority of Con-gress. Immediate y Senators from Washington, s. aho. Montana, Wyoming and Colorado joined hands with Senator Pulton, had his amendment en-larged to include their states as well, and as amended it became a law.

While the Fulton amendment was bending in Congress, Gifford Pinchot undertook to defeat it, but soon saw hat he could not succeed. He imme-tiately prepared rough maps showing all known timber areas in the six states named, took his maps to the White House and induced President Roosevelt to issue proclamations creatbut Senator Heyburn and Senator Boralt, of Idaho, are both of opinion that their state is more than adequately covered with National forests. Senator Jones feels the same way about Washington as does his colleague, Senator Piles; Senator Carter will certainly object to contarging the reserves of Montana, and both Wyoming Senators will object to more reserves in their state. Senator Guergenbeim of Colorado, wants more Guergenbeim of Colorado, wants more Within 50 Miles of Coast—May more reserves in their state. Senator Guggenheim, of Colorado, wants more reserves; his colleague does not. It is Guggenheim, of Colorado, wants more reserves; his colleague does not. It is therefore doubtful if these Senators, who have heretofore been entirely satisfied with the operation of the Fulton act, will readily consent to its repeal. Not that they would fear abuse of the right to create reserves while Mr. Tait is in the Whits House, but that they would hats to return to the old order of things when reserves could be created without restraint by a President who might be a faddist.

It is possible, of course, that Taft persuasion will carry the day; the Northwestern Senators may take the position that inassmuch as most of the known timber land is already reserved, no damage can result from repealing the Fulton act, especially if they have assurance from the President that he will exercise his authority cautionsly. But knowing the temper of some of the Senators named, there is good reason to anticipate a fight when this question comes up. In that event it will be a fight of a few Senators against the Administration unless a successful fillbuster is inaugurated. And Senator Herburn has shown himself to be an A No. 1 fillbusterer.

WASHINGTON SUPREME COURT MAKES RULING.

Law Forbidding Plea of Irresponsibility Declared Unconstitutional at Olympia.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 10 .- (Special.)-The new law barring insanity us a defense to criminal prosecutions was declared unconstitutional, and the hotel inspection law, except the penalty clause was declared constitutional by decisions of the State Supreme Court oday. In the decision on the insanity defense law, three separate reasons were given by the judges in as many opinions why the act is void. The de-cision was in the King County case against Martin Strasburg, charged with assault in the first degree, and at the trial under the laws of 1909, he was denied the right to plead insanity.
