

FIRST WEEK OF SCHOOL HARDEST OF ALL

Pupils and Teachers Are Working Under Strain of Trying to Get Acquainted—After That It Is Easier.

THE opening week of school is an epoch in every boy's and every girl's life. The little tots in the primary room chafe under hitherto unknown restraint. It is all a mystic maze, out of which the most comprehensive thing is a deluge of "don'ts." The teacher is regarded alternately with fear and affection. Then there are a lot more things to think about than learning to read and count.

PRETTY CALIFORNIA TOWN BURNS CARE AT ANNUAL GRAPE FESTIVAL

Escondido Owes Fact That Municipality Is Free From Debt to Grapes, and People Are Grateful—Los Angeles Still Talks of Attempt Made to Wreck $900,000 Hall of Records.

BY R. M. WHITNEY. LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.—(Special.)—Eight tons of grapes was the toothsome gift of Escondido to her friends this week at the unique celebration of the anniversary of her freedom from debt. The little town in the sun-kissed valley back from the sea in San Diego County plans for this anniversary on the day following the celebration one year until the dawn of the next anniversary. It prides itself on the fact that it has all the conveniences of a modern city and owes not a penny in bonds or other civic indebtedness. Grapes cleared the debt and allowed the municipal authorities to hold a grand festival five years ago, when bonds to the amount of half a million dollars were burned. Everybody in the valley was present at the bonfire, and then and there it was decided to make of the event an annual "independence day." So Escondido now holds its annual celebration that means as much to its people as does the Fourth of July to the people of the country. From a purely local celebration, it has become an anniversary that is noted by all the people of Southern California. Invitations are sent broadcast, special trains are arranged for, programmes of sports are prepared, business houses are decorated and the streets draped with banners, bands practice for months for the day, and in which the fuse could have been placed there except by Connors. The prisoner had not been searched carefully when booked the night before, only weapons and money being taken from his pockets. Several other arrests have been made and the police and attorneys are busy working on the case. Earl Rogers, attorney for the iron company furnishing the material for the Hall of Records, says that the case against the strikers is complete, and promises some sensations when the case comes to trial.

"The Woman Scorned" claimed another victim in Los Angeles when Mrs. Krauss shot Franklin H. Griffith after he had refused to marry her. There were a number of unusual features in the shooting and what led up to it. Mrs. Krauss cut a figure about a year ago when she chased Griffith across the country and every time she caught up with him, berated him in hotel lobbies or on the streets. At that time, however, it was not love she was after—it was money she claimed to have invested in mining properties on the advice of Griffith. She said she had lost her money and she wanted her money back. Griffith denies that he asked her to invest and also that the properties are of no value. Mrs. Krauss says that the money change of Griffith finally, when she had to go back to her home in Memphis and defend her interests in a divorce suit, brought her back to Los Angeles, a physician of note and an educator of standing in the South.

Dr. Krauss had no difficulty getting his divorce, it seems that it was soon as Mrs. Krauss had got her financial interests in the doctor's estate satisfactorily arranged, she resumed the more congenial occupation of trailing Griffith. This time, she asserts, that he asked her to marry him and "her heart was swept with a whirlwind of passion." But at that time, she says, her distinguished husband had not secured his divorce, so she was not at liberty to contract a new marriage. Griffith admits that he was engaged to Mrs. Krauss at one time, but that she had told him she was single. When he learned that she was the wife of another man, he "broke the engagement in a gentlemanly manner."

Some years ago, Mrs. Krauss was well known in every newspaper office of New Orleans, Memphis, and other Southern cities, for she was everlastingly trying to break into print as an authoress. She had many sketches of her life with high lights and deep shadows, telling in detail how she came to write certain stories and what she unfortunately had never printed.

"Jane Doe," a woman who was a mystery to Matron Sheel and the woman prisoners during a recent four days' stay at the County Jail, returned to the bastille this week to thank the matron and one of the prisoners for what she said was the only kindness that had been shown her since her husband died 10 years ago. This criticism of modern society was delivered without the slightest trace of bitterness, but it stirred many a heart by its bitter meaning. "Jane Doe" was arrested one Saturday night in Pasadena for begging food. She was hungry and without money and the only way she could secure either was by begging.

Four days elapsed before she could be brought to trial, and in the meantime the other woman prisoners and the matron tried to learn her identity. To all she replied that she was "Jane Doe" and desired no other name. Only so Gertrude Briggs, an aged woman convicted of forgery, did "Jane Doe" give any confidence. To Mrs. Briggs she confided that she was 67 years old and that when her husband died he left her $3000. Alleged friends caused her to lose her money by advising unwise investments. A few days later her husband was shot and she was left penniless. For five days she went without food; then she went to the street corner and asked passersby for money. When she was taken to justice court for trial, she told Justice McDonald that she would rather die than be imprisoned, and that she would rather be imprisoned than tell her name. She pleaded guilty on her own cause, and so impressed the justice that he released her. After a brief visit to the county jail to thank the matron she disappeared, still keeping her real name and identity secret.

From far-off Norway this week came the news that George G. Mackay, a prominent local business man, had walked off North Cape, Norway, stepping off the northernmost promontory of Norway comes precious near walking into the Arctic Ocean, which was not appeal to most people, even during the hottest part of summer. Mr. Mackay was with a number of tourists, and visited North Cape to see the midnight sun. The point of the cape stands rudely sheer 1000 feet of rock, above the frapped waves of the Arctic Ocean. It is a difficult climb to the top, but with a yellow-taximeter Mr. Mackay succeeded and saw the splendid spectacle he went to witness.

In making the descent the accident occurred. The point of the cape was a short cut and took it. It proved to be a nearly a cut-off to eternity. In making a desperate effort to arrive at a safe landing, Mackay's right arm, and his body went bounding 300 feet down the wall of eternally frozen surface. To the onlookers his fate seemed certain. He lay motionless, his head below him but the lead waves from the north and a few jagged rocks. Only a slight projection stayed his fall. Rope and anchor were thrown, and after an arduous effort he was hauled again to the top. His body was cut and bruised its entire length, and his right arm and shoulder blade were broken. Credit surgeon was resorted to, and he is now on his way home to have the broken bones re-broken and properly set.

CLOSES TAP; GETS REWARD

Shy Artist Obliges Actor, Who Allows Picture to Be Painted.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—(Special.)—To M. Paul Mounet, brother of M. Mounet Sully, in his dressing-room at the Comedie Francaise, entered a shy young artist, and reminded him of his promise to sit to him. The actor was not pleased. "Five minutes is absolutely all I have to give you; begin this instant and do what you can," and M. Mounet sat down. The young artist had only just taken out pencil and sketch-book when up came M. Mounet, and roared and roared, which made the Theatre Francaise rock. He was cast for a classical matinee, and his epithets were appropriate. "You are a Hades and a thunder and blazes! I have left my bath tap open, and I shall be called on the stage in five minutes. Boy, here are my keys; run like lightning, take a taxicab, and turn off the tap." The artist flew, and arrived just as the water was pouring over the edge of the bath. He turned on the tap, and M. Paul Mounet took him to his arms. "My gratitude will be lifelong; I will sit for ever," and the young artist is now painting a portrait of M. Paul Mounet, with which he hopes to make a name.

than ever before, according to experts, who can estimate these things. The Rue de Paris is full of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of clothes and jewelry, especially pearls. Everybody seems to possess a 60 or 80-horsepower motor car. At the green tables many players drop or take up $20,000 or $25,000 of losses or winnings a night at baccarat, and as for hotel charges, it is said they are "unimaginable." Two examples given of "quiet dinners" do seem rather strong. At one of the chief restaurants were dining two separate parties. One consisted of a diplomatist and his five guests. The diplomatist's "addition" ran up to $140 for six people, and that of the family party of 10 to $280. Both parties jibbed a little, but paid.

SPECIALISTS FOR MEN ONLY

No "Cheap John" Fees. No "Free Trial" Treatments. No Unreasonable Medicine Charges. And My Office Is Conducted by Registered and Licensed Doctors Only.

FREE MUSEUM $10,000 Exhibit The Largest and Finest on the Coast

I Have the Largest Practice Because I Invariably Fulfill My Promises There's no drawing the line between curable and incurable ailments. Each individual case must be considered. Most doctors claim that among the class ailments peculiar to men one or two are incurable. The idea is wrong. I have demonstrated that it is wrong, for I cure all ailments of men. The truth is that some cases of curable ailments are incurable by some doctors, and some cases of so-called incurable ailments are easily curable by the right methods. I by no means claim the ability to cure any every case that may come to my office, but I claim to cure most of the cases that others cannot cure, and I always refuse treatment where conditions indicate that I will be unable to obtain thorough and lasting results.

The Leading Specialist.

Contracted Ailments

In no other ailment peculiar to men is a prompt and thorough cure so essential. Contracted ailments tend to work backward until the most vital nerve centers become involved in the inflammation. Then follows a chronic stage that stubbornly resists all ordinary treatment. Safety demands that every vestige of infection be eradicated at the earliest possible moment. My treatment is thorough. The remedies employed have a more positive action than has ever before been attained, and so perfect is my method of application that even chronic cases yield completely.

Nerve Weakness

My success in permanently curing that condition commonly known as "weakness" fully demonstrates the absolute correctness of my method of treatment, which is a method employed by myself alone. I do not stimulate the functions to temporary activity by the use of strong internal tonics. This is a course commonly pursued by both general practitioners and specialists, and is a treatment that can not possibly result in a permanent cure. Weakness is merely a symptom of chronic inflammation brought on by improper treatment of some ailment. A complete and radical cure is accomplished promptly and completely without the use of internal remedies. My treatment is a local one entirely. It is original and scientific, and has been proved absolutely effective by thousands of tests. I am convinced that by no other method can full and permanent restoration of strength and vigor be accomplished.

Varicose Veins

Under my treatment the most aggravated cases of varicose veins are cured in a short time. There is no pain and it is seldom necessary that the patient be detained from his occupation. Normal circulation is at once restored throughout all the organs, and their natural processes of waste and repair are again established. If you are afflicted with varicose veins consult me at once. Delay can but bring on aggravated conditions that will impair the vital functions and involve the general health. No other physician employs a like treatment, and so thorough is my work that there need not be the slightest fear of a relapse into old conditions.

No Surgery for Piles

Though I have seldom made mention of this distressing ailment in my announcements, new cases come to me every day for treatment as a result of recommendations from those I have cured. I positively cure all cases of piles by use of soothing and healing remedies. Free of charge and tell you whether I can cure you without your calling in person. My colored chart should be in the possession of every man. It is interesting and instructive as a study, and is helpful in making a home diagnosis. Free upon request. Consultation and advice free at my office or by mail.

MY BEST REFERENCE IS: Not a Dollar Need Be Paid Until Cured

Specific Blood Poison Others dose the system with mineral poisons scarcely less dangerous than the ailment itself. They hope to do by this treatment. It is to keep the ailment from manifesting its presence upon the surface of the body. Under my treatment the entire system is cleansed. The last taint of virus is destroyed. Every symptom vanishes to a p'p'e'r no more. I employ harnesses, use of cleansing remedies. They are remedies heretofore unknown in the treatment of this ailment. They cure by neutralizing and absolutely destroying the poison in the system. Such cures cannot be other than complete and permanent.
