THEATER SITE IS LEASED BY LYRIC

$100,000 Structure Will Replace Old Arlington Club's House.

MAY 1 IS FINISHING DATE

Keating-Flood Company, in Which Tommy Burns Is Interested, Closes Deal and Building Plans Are Already Under Way.

The Keating-Flood Company, lessees of the Lyric Theater at Seventh and Alder streets, yesterday signed a lease on the old Arlington Club property at the northwest corner of West Park and Alder streets, and will proceed at once with the erection of a steel and pressed brick theater to cost $100,000, and to be known as the Lyric. Demolition of the old club building will be started as soon as the plans can be prepared and contracts let. It is expected that the city building permit will be issued before the end of the year, and that the theater will be completed by May 1, when the lease on the present Lyric expires. The building will cover the full quarter block, 100x100 feet.

The lease is for a term of ten years with rental at a rate of $750 a month, and the lessees have the option of renewal for five years at the same rate. The property is owned by the D. P. Thompson Estate Company, which formerly owned 90 per cent of the Arlington Club Association stock and bought in the remainder on the basis of $190,000 valuation on the quarter block and building. The Thompson estate was immediately afterward offered $250,000 for the property. The lease to the Keating-Flood Company was negotiated by Charles E. McDonnell.

Plans Being Drawn.

Plans for the new theater are already being prepared by Architects Bennes & Hendricks. The construction will be modern in all respects and the building will be strictly fireproof. The drastic provisions of the new building ordinance respecting theaters will be strictly complied with and numerous exits and wide aisles will be provided.

The theater will be 70 feet wide and 200 feet deep. The remaining 30 feet of the building will be given up to five stores fronting on Alder street, with two stories of offices above. The theater will have a seating capacity for between 1200 and 1300, whereas the present Lyric holds only 850. It will be built with parquet and balcony, and proscenium boxes and loges will be provided. The stage will have a depth of 30 feet and will be 70 feet wide. Up-to-date mechanical equipment will be a feature.

Easy Exit Provided.

The theater will front on West Park street and the entrance will be at the corner. There will be a large lobby running almost the full width of the house. An exit will be provided into Alder street, and if it is required an arrangement can be made by the owners of the Selling-Hirsch building for an additional entrance from Washington street. There is a wide alley at the rear of the Selling-Hirsch building which can be utilized. This will not be counted on, however, and the theater will be built with an aisle running the full length of the house on the north side. This is to provide prompt and easy exit.

"It is our plan to produce vaudeville or light musical shows, as that seems to be the kind of amusement the people want," said L. C. Keating last night. "We are building a theater in Vancouver, B. C., and are negotiating for a site in Seattle. We have no other theaters in immediate prospect, but it will be our policy to expand.

"In my opinion we have been very fortunate to secure such a favorable site in Portland. Alder street is forging ahead, and in a very few years will become the principal retail street in the city.

Tommy Burns Interested.

Mr. Keating and his partner, Dan Flood, entered the amusement business in Portland seven years ago, when they made a theater of the building at the southwest corner of Fourth and Stark streets and called it the Orpheum. It has since been remodeled and is now the home of the Alexander Pantages vaudeville circuit in Portland. Keating & Flood had the Baker Theater for one year, and leased their present theater at Seventh and Alder five years ago. Tommy Burns, ex-heavyweight champion, who made a fortune in Australia, is the "company" part of the firm name, and is the representative of the company in the North.

The Arlington Club building is a three-story brick building and cost $50,000 when it was built about 15 years ago. It is in a perfect state of preservation, and was occupied by the club until the new home of the club was completed last Spring. The building was leased by W. H. O'Neill, who operated a grill for a short time, until the building was gutted by fire about two months ago. Complete repairs were made, but no tenant has been found since then.

Acquiring Property Benefits.

The passing of the old club will not be without some sentimental interest, but property-owners and business men of the neighborhood will hail the change with delight. Presence of the club building has long held back business development of adjoining property, but improvement is now expected to forge rapidly ahead. The H. W. Corbett estate has leased the adjoining quarter block on Tenth and Alder streets for 50 years, and will erect a three-story building at once.

When the Keating-Flood Company vacates the old Lyric Theater it will be razed to make place for a new theater to be built by Alexander Pantages, who has leased the site for 10 years.

KARL HAGENBECK IS DEAD

"Moltke of Menagerie Owners" Hero of Many Battles.

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—Karl Hagenbeck, the noted collector and trainer of wild animals, died yesterday at his home near Hamburg. He bore many scars received in conflicts with wild animals.

Hagenbeck was born in Hamburg, where his father was engaged in a considerable trade in animals. The son finally assumed control of the business. In order to enlarge the enterprise he sent annually transports out from Hamburg. Later he traveled through Europe, giving ethnological exhibitions representing the various races of Africa, Oceanica and the Far North. In 1886 he visited the United States where he conceived the idea of forming a circus. During the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893 he revisited the United States, bringing with him 1000 animals including lions, tigers, leopards, bears and wild boars. Hagenbeck has been styled "the Moltke of menagerie owners."

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Abnormally high pressure overlies the North Pacific slope, and in the Basin States temperatures are below the normal. High pressure also covers the eastern portion of the country, with accompanying low temperatures over the Middle and North Atlantic States. A storm of moderate intensity is central in South Central Canada, but has caused no precipitation of consequence throughout the region affected. Precipitation has been local, and has been confined principally to the Gulf and Eastern Lakes regions. Generally cloudy weather obtains over the northern half of the country, with unseasonably low temperatures east of the Rocky Mountains.

Conditions are favorable for generally fair weather Sunday throughout this district, with variable northeast to east winds.

FORECASTS.

Portland and vicinity—Fair; northeasterly winds.

Oregon—Fair; northeasterly winds.

Washington—Fair; easterly winds.

Idaho—Fair.

RUSH ABOUT ENDED

Steerage on Southbound Boats No Longer Crowded.

CONDITIONS ARE CHANGED

Bear Carries but 200 Second-Class Passengers, While Upper Decks Are Crowded — Season Is Longer Than Usual.

Low second-class steamer rates to San Francisco and Los Angeles have drawn the last of the rush crowds from the Northwest for the season of 1910, as with the departure of the steamer Bear for those ports today the steerage list will include only about 200 names, while up to the last departure of the steamer Rose City, December 8, the steerage accommodations were sold out. Upper deck rooms will be crowded.

Two conditions confront the passenger department today that have been unknown in the past—the lateness with which the second-class travel has continued and the fact that first-class accommodations are being disposed of and reservations made in advance. It has been the case in the past that the steerage rush began at the termination of the harvest season and lasted for but a few voyages, while the first-class patronage seldom was heavy after the latter part of October.

The operation of the fast steamers Bear and Beaver and the old popularity of the Rose City are reasons given why the season has been of such duration, while as regards second-class travel it is accounted for through the low rates in effect and the unusual exodus to the Northwest, during the Summer season, of laboring classes. With the steam schooners the patronage has been equally as heavy because of the rates, while business had been diverted to them, as berths on the large vessels have been sold often for a day in advance of their sailing.

In the matter of cargo, equally as brisk a movement is recorded, as the Bear will leave with her hold filled and more will remain on Ainsworth dock, which will be loaded on the Rose City, due tomorrow.

GUAGES TO SHOW CLEARANCE

Rivermen Make Suggestion to Eliminate Delays on Bridges.

Inverted river gauges are to be made fast at both ends of the drawspans of the Steel, Burnside and Morrison bridges and to the drawpiers of the Hawthorne Bridge, so that masters of vessels can ascertain when approaching the crossings whether there is sufficient clearance between the driver's surface and the deck of the bridges for their craft to pass beneath, thereby eliminating the necessity of such frequent swinging of the draws.

The County Court has ordered the gauges placed at the solicitation of steamboat owners who expect to frequently pass beneath the Hawthorne Bridge during low-water stages, while some of the stern-wheelers can steam under the Burnside Bridge at certain seasons. The gauges are to be large enough so the marks can be seen at a distance and be easily discernible by night with the aid of a searchlight. Captain A. W. Graham, of the Yellow Stack Line, who recently measured the clearance between the Hawthorne crossing, has caused two white lines to be painted on piling at the company's dock, at the foot of Taylor street, the upper one to bear the name of the steamer Oregona and the lower that of the Pomona. Between the two names will be a space of 11 inches, which is the difference in heights of the stacks of the vessels. On dolphins at the yards of the Portland Shipbuilding Company similar marks will be located, so masters of steamers bound downstream can learn whether it is necessary for them to signal for the draw As each steamer is 48 hours completing the round trip, and longer when they lay over Sundays, there is frequently a material change in the stage of water, and the marks undoubtedly will prove of great assistance.

There are gauges on the bridges to indicate the heights of the river and steamboatmen often avail themselves of the opportunity to telephone the bridge operators for such information, but with the inverted gauges in position they can also learn whether their steamers can clear the decks. Rivermen not imbued with sufficient progressiveness to measure the distance from the stream to the tip of their steamer's stacks will find nothing to help them in the improvements.

LAUNCHMEN GET DUCKING

Boat Incapable of Carrying Humans With Booze Cargo.

Three men in a boat got into all sorts of trouble because of having shipped a cargo of stimulants and then tried to walk the gunwale of a 16-foot launch, but yesterday they recovered their craft at Kellogg's boathouse, after it had been swamped and the occupants given a complete wetting outside to offset the drenching of the inner man with intoxicants.

Incidently Captain Hill, of the tug Resolute, is in line for a Carnegie medal in having manned a small boat and rowed to the succor of one member of the party who was rapidly sinking, while his two comrades swam to shore. The party had been sighted, approaching from above the Hawthorne bridge and men at the boathouse commented on the fact the launch looked as if it was overloaded with three occupants. The craft was moored at the Kellogg float and it was the opinion of bystanders that the passengers were thoroughly saturated with liquor, but they wended their way to a Front-street resort and finished loading.

Then they essayed to do stunts in utter disregard of all marine regulations by listing their dinky tub until it capsized. Even the cold bath failed to sober the trio and, after being hauled on the float, they headed for the resort again, while the launch Imperial towed the swamped craft to a mooring.

OMEGA FINISHES HER CARGO

Claverdon Takes Last Stick at Knappton; Herm Is Fixed.

The last stick of a special cargo for shipment to Hamburg on the German ship Omega was stowed aboard yesterday at the mill of the North Pacific Lumber Company, and measured about 1,840,000 feet. It will be cleared tomorrow by the Pacific Export Lumber Company.

The British ship Claverdon, which has been in the river since September 16, took on the last of her lumber yesterday at Knappton and shifted to Astoria, whence she will sail for South Africa early in the week after signing her crew.

An addition was made yesterday to the lumber tonnage, through the charter of the Norwegian steamer Herm to load about 3,000,000 feet of lumber for the West Coast of South America. She sailed from Puget Sound November 27 for Guaymas, and is due for January loading. The lumber fleet in the river working cargo consists of the schooner William Nottingham, which is to clear for Callao; the British ship Poltalloch, for Port Natal, and the Italian ship Speranza, for Delagoa Bay.

EXPORTS HEAVY YESTERDAY

Strathfillan Clears With Flour, Wheat and Lumber for Orient.

Two cargoes, with an aggregate value of $347,216.68, were yesterday cleared at the Custom-House, the British steamer Strathfillan having a load valued at $219,716.68, and the German bark Schurbek with a cargo worth $127,600.

The Strathfillan, which is sailing for one voyage in the fleet of the Portland & Asiatic Steamship Company, as successor to the lost Selja, will depart this afternoon for Hongkong and Kobe, having aboard 47,500 barrels of flour, worth $180,000, and 28,333 bushels of wheat at $25,665, while there is 453,000 feet of lumber valued at $4320.60. She finished taking on her bunker supply yesterday and returned to the dock of the Portland Flouring Mills Company, where she will load the last of her cargo this morning.

The Schurbek cleared for Queenstown or Falmouth for orders with 146,666 bushels of wheat worth $127,000, and she will be towed to Astoria tomorrow, while she is expected to be followed Wednesday by the Ellerbek, which will finish Tuesday, and the same day the Frieda will begin loading. The Norwegian Solveig, completing her lining today, will shift to Balfour, Guthrie & Co.'s section of the North Bank dock and finish at Oceanic dock.

Stevedores Talk of Rates.

Subjects pertaining to the new schedule of rates for discharging vessels here, as issued Friday by the Chamber of Commerce, and which those engaged in handling cargo deem too low, were discussed yesterday by representatives of the firm of Brown & McCabe and the McCabe Company, but no action was taken to increase the tariff for loading vessels, as is expected. It is said that additional information is first desired regarding future rates on liability insurance, but that if the premium is advanced as expected the rates for working cargo will certainly advance, as it is declared the present margin is not productive.

Record Cargo Recalled.

One of the few native-born American engineers on the Coast having papers entitling them to hold positions in the engineerooms of vessels with a British registry, Thomas O. Daly, who has been assigned to the Portland branch of the Monarch Oil Refining Company, was first assistant on the British steamer Algoa in 1906, when she sailed from Portland with the record cargo of flour, which was in excess of 9000 tons. She finished on Puget Sound. When the cargo was going aboard 10 gangs were employed, which is the largest force ever used here.

Marine Notes.

C. B. Welcker, of the Pacific Export Lumber Company, has resumed his duties after an absence of three weeks in the East.

To take on lumber the steamer Yosemite left last night for Nehalem Junction and she will sail for San Francisco Tuesday.

Vessels scheduled to leave port today are the British steamer Strathfillan, for the Far East, the tug Geo. R. Vosburg and barge Nehalem for Tillamook and the steamer Falcon, for San Francisco.

Having got to sea yesterday from Tillamook the steamer Golden Gate is expected to reach port in time to discharge and load to meet her old schedule, which provides for her sailing Tuesday.

To inspect channel work under way on the Upper Columbia, between Celilo and the mouth of the Snake River, Major Jay J. Morrow, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., has departed for that territory on a three days' trip.

There entered yesterday at the Custom-House the Norwegian steamer Solveig, from Nanaimo, and there cleared the Strathfillan, for the Orient, Falcon, for San Francisco and the Schurbek for Queenstown or Falmouth for orders.

Work of discharging the French bark Pierre Antonine will begin tomorrow at the Pacific Coast Company's bunkers, as she yesterday shifted to a berth there from the stream. When the coal is unloaded the vessel will be cleared with wheat.

During her layover yesterday the steamer J. N. Teal was ordered to the dock of the Willamette Iron & Steel Works, where a new cylinder was recently cast for her port engine, as the one in service was cracked. She will resume her run to the Big Eddy tomorrow.
