PERFECTION

SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

It gives just as much heat as you desire. It is safe, odorless and smokeless.

It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be quickly cleaned. Burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and can always be easily unscrewed for reworking.

An indicator shows the amount of oil in the font. Filler-cap does not need to be screwed down, but is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain. Finished in Japan or nickel, strong and durable, well-made, built for service and yet light and ornamental. It has a cool handle and a damper top.

TESTIMONIAL.

Publishing letters is not our long suit, and we never publish the name of the author (not do we ever ask for a letter, they are all voluntary and unsolicited by us). We are prepared to show the genuine, original letters to those who call, are interested in dental work. The 13 letters published last week brought so many inquiries that we feel constrained to try it again. We have a great many such letters on file.

U. S. Custom-House, Oct. 12, 1910.—Gentlemen: The complete upper set of Alveolar put in for my wife is delightfully satisfactory. The lower bridge will have to come out, just as Dr. R. said it would. I fear those teeth to which it is anchored, same as upper bridge did. She will come in Tuesday or Wednesday if you can give her an appointment then.

State of Washington, Department of State, Olympia, Nov. 19, 1910.—Gentlemen: It has been one year today since you finished my upper Alveolar work and discharged me as cured of Pyorrhea. I will be there December 29 to have my lower left five teeth replaced if you can wait on me then. My upper is superb.

Dew Moines, Iowa, Dec. 3, 1910.—Gentlemen: I went to Algona, Iowa, to see the party you referred to. The work is certainly worth going after. I do not mind the expense. My Pyorrhea is about as bad as this lady thinks hers was. She says she is entirely cured and it looks that way. I will require a complete upper Alveolar set of teeth, as I have only five teeth left, and have lost four lower back and three on one side, one on the other. I will be there on December 15, and stay as long as is necessary.

Alveolar vs. False Teeth

When you invest in ALVEOLAR teeth you assure yourself an annual dividend of comfort for all the years to come, and we will guarantee to give a set of teeth that will surpass in beauty, comfort and service the most beautiful set of natural teeth ever grown in any human being's mouth.

No one will pretend to say that teeth fastened to a partial plate or bridge are any more than a makeshift. They simply fill up the gap in the mouth where the teeth have been lost. The Alveolar Teeth fill up the gap, and they also allow one to chew with them with entire satisfaction.

Alveolar Teeth, Where Bridgework is Impossible.

If only your front teeth are left, say 3 or 4 or more, we can replace all those that have been lost on both sides clear back with perfect Alveolar teeth, whilst bridgework would be impossible even if you had 8 or 10 front teeth to tie to. If you have only two back teeth on each side, say molars, we can supply all the front teeth that are missing with beautiful, serviceable, lifelike Alveolar teeth. This could not possibly be done by the bridge route. And where bridgework is possible, there is no comparison between the two. A very large percentage of our work is taking out bridge work put in by supposedly high-class dentists and replacing it with the beautiful and artistic Alveolar Teeth. And, unlike bridgework in another respect, it is practically painless. No boring or cutting into the gums, nothing to be dreaded. Now, then, prices being equal, which would you choose?

Curing Pyorrhea (loose teeth), a disease given up by other dentists as incurable, is another of our specialties. We cure it absolutely. It's a boastful statement to make, but we can do anything that is possible in dentistry, and what we do is always of the very highest class. Our booklets, Alveolar Dentistry, are free. Write for one if you cannot call. We have samples of our work to show at all times.

AMELIA PALACE, SALT LAKE CITY. PHOTOS BY DAILY NEWS SERVICE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(Special.)—Hardly an event can transpire nowadays but what the alert newspaper camera man is there to snapshot the scene or place that is a feature of the day's news. The text that follows relates to the accompanying photographs received by The Oregonian from various news agencies: Fighting is still going on in Mexico. It is reported that an engagement took place near the city of Guerrero in which 79 of the insurgents were killed and a large number wounded and captured. The fight lasted five hours and ended in the rout of the rebels. Further engagements are expected in this vicinity.

The police of New York believe that they have finally solved the problem of child kidnaping in New York. For some years past the children of wealthy Italians have been kidnaped and held for ransom. Italian detectives were put on the different cases, but their efforts proved unavailing until recently, when the detectives, aided by Deputy Commissioner Flynn, captured a number of Italians who are believed to be the ringleaders of the kidnaping gang. The trial is now going on in Brooklyn. One of the accompanying pictures shows a crowd of Italians waiting for the case to be called.

The Mexican government is fearful of being involved in a dispute with the United States. So when this picture of the dead revolutionists being buried at the cemetery at Parral by Mexican troops of the service known as rurales was made public and the government discovered that there was an American among the dead, the picture was quickly suppressed. The American was Edward Lawton, of Detroit, and he was killed by a stray bullet. A copy of the pictures escaped the authorities and was sent to the Daily News Service by its El Paso correspondent.

Gankyo Mitsunaga has just been convicted of the murder of Katherine Wilson, of Denver, whose home he visited while working for a housecleaning company in that city. The case will probably be appealed, as the jury chosen was of less than average intelligence. In fact it was hard to get a jury because of Mitsunaga's nationality. The Japanese Consul attended the hearing to see that fair play was given to his countryman. Ridgely Wilson, husband of the murdered woman, and Mrs. Mabel Galland were also present.

who intended that it should be a Christmas surprise to her husband. Just when the home was practically completed Secretary McVeagh was told of the plan by some over-zealous friend. The McVeaghs hope to give a housewarming in their new mansion during the Christmas holidays.

WASHINGTON SUFFRAGISTS DESIRE TO ABOLISH CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Women Move to Secure Passage of Law and Strive to Enlist Aid of Governor and Legislators—No Action is Yet Taken By Suffragist Leaders Against Liquor Problem.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 24.—(Special.)—Activity of women as a result of universal suffrage in Washington has not been directed immediately to the liquor question, as prophets asserted it would be. Instead, its first mark seems to be capital punishment. Although the prediction has been made that the suffrage movement would send the state to prohibition within five years, the start has not been made. With capital punishment, the situation is otherwise. The plan to abolish it is under way and appears to be supported by strong sentiment.

An instance is found in the Ludovitch murder case, now on trial before Judge Wilson R. Gay in the Superior Court. So less than 24 jurors have been excused because opposed on principle to the extreme penalty. The case gives evidence of being an ordinary brutal murder. R. Ludovitch was a prisoner in the city stockade. The charge against him is that in last November he brained Mathias Rude, a guard, with a mallet. But the 26 talesmen, when questioned one after another, declared that they could not conscientiously give a verdict to hang. With this as an index to public opinion, coupled with the increasing difficulty of courts all over Washington to secure juries in murder trials, Mrs. Katherine Stirran, of this city, has begun to circulate petitions for the abolition of capital punishment. They are directed to Governor Hay and members of the Legislature, and they will be used in support of effort to pass a bill repealing the law. Such a measure will be introduced by Representative Goss, a Seattle newspaper man, who has been elected to his first term in the House.

Mrs. Stirran brands the law as inhuman—a relic of the dark ages. She advances the usual argument that if men are dangerous through murderous impulses they should be placed in detention, where they may be controlled. "This," she contends, "is sufficient for the protection of civilization. Murder by law is on a plane no higher than murder through sudden passion. Both are against nature's law. The mysterious springs of life are beyond human beings, and we have no right arbitrarily to meddle with that which has been created by a higher power. I find the sentiment against capital punishment far more general than the public realizes, and I believe the Legislature will repeal the law."

Women have their eyes on the forthcoming conventions to be held in Tacoma January 14, which occasion will be of two-fold interest to the voters of Washington. There will be two conventions—a "National" convention comprising delegates for the women voters of Washington, Colorado, Wyoming and Utah, and also a state convention. The leaders in the movement say that the representatives from the four states have the backing of 270,000 women voters. From the National standpoint, the organization will probably be called the National Council of Women Voters. One of the leading eligibles for president is Mrs. Emma Smith DeVos, of Seattle, president of the Washington Equal Suffrage Association. The state convention will be composed of delegates from the various suffrage clubs throughout the state. Out of 63 applicants for registration clerk in the City Controller's office, 48 were successful; and of the 48 ten were women. The names of all of them were placed on the eligible list of 71 submitted to Controller Bothwell. All of these clerks are employed in checking the petition for the recall of Mayor Gill, which has just been filed with the Controller, and also will be retained for the registration to begin January 3 for the municipal primary. The ten women who have passed their first civil service examination in Seattle are Mrs. Sylvia Hunsicker, Miss Frances Malone, Mrs. Ruth Dahkpn,
