ANNIVERSARY BRINGS END

Woman Killed When Lamp Explodes Year After Husband Dies. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 7.—On the first anniversary of her husband's death in a railway accident, Mrs. Anna Atwater, widow of Colonel H. G. Atwater, founder of Clearwater Colony, died from burns received in a lamp explosion at her home.

Mrs. Atwater was 73 years old and the mother of H. Giles Atwater, professor in the College of Dentistry, University of Southern California. All Russians have a weakness for handsome footwear and the result is that there are more pairs of showy boots worn in the city than in any other city on earth.

The government estimate for the running of the public schools of this for the year 1911 amounts to $9,000,000, of which quite a large portion is to be expended on new buildings and equipment.

OLDFIELD HOLDS OUTLAW MEET
With Jeffries as Chauffeur He Breaks Pacific Mile Record.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—At the second outlaw meeting at Ascot Park today, Barney Oldfield, driving his "Tulzer" Benz, set the Pacific Coast one-mile track record, covering the distance in 51 1-5 seconds. James J. Jeffries acted as Oldfield's mechanic.

There was a large crowd in attendance and many cars competed in the eight events. The feature of the meet was the appearance of Harry Ryan, the Eastern pilot who thereby renounced his allegiance to the American Automobile Association. Ryan won two events.

Ed Maier, former official referee in the territory for the American Automobile Association, and many other prominent local automobilists formerly identified with the association affiliated at the meet.

The officials of the first outlaw meet held at Ascot Park a month ago were suspended. Another day of racing will be held tomorrow.

Oldfield sails with his manager, William Pickens, for Australia next week. He will return to America in May or June and intend to conduct outlaw meets all over the country.

WIFE NO. 5 WILL GO
"KID" MCCOY, EX-PUGILIST, TO LOSE LATEST SPOUSE.

Heavyweight Has Tempestuous Career Along Matrimonial Lines. Fighter Is Not Worried. "Oh, very well. It's just add these to my collection," remarked Norman E. Selby, better known as "Kid" McCoy, the erstwhile heavyweight pugilist, as he was served with papers announcing divorce proceedings started by his fifth wife, whose petition was granted a few days ago at New York.

"Kid" McCoy's matrimonial ventures have not been as successful as his fighting career, for while he was married seven different times, three times to one woman, six times these women divorced him and only once in his matrimonial life did he secure the separation on his own petition. A New York paper gives the following account of Selby's adventures:

"The late Mrs. Selby was the widow of Edward C. (Bud) Ellis, who inherited a fortune made in the locomotive building industry. She stood No. 5 on Selby's list of wives, and you count the three times he married one of them, and that makes her No. 7. She appeared in court arrayed in jewels, silks and furs of gorgeous hue and color. Accompanying her was Emanuel Volt, a young New York University student and gridiron hero, who was her principal admirer.

Lillian E. Selby is the former pugilist's third actress wife, for before her marriage to Ellis she was known behind the footlights as Lillian Earlston and "Jimmy" Clarke, when her attorney asked her if she knew Mr. Selby, she admitted the acquaintance. She now lives at No. 212 Riverside street.

"When Volt took the stand he told how, at Mrs. Selby's request, he had tracked the former fighter through the city of New York, and that, in fact, he last, he declared, he found McCoy in a room in a hotel near Broadway and Forty-first street. In the room was a woman. He was sure it was not Mrs. Selby.

"McCoy, he said, was clad in vivid pajamas, and the young woman was garbed in 'oh, a fine sort of thing." "Justice Fitzek asked if Mr. Volt had left the room when McCoy told him to.

"I did," was the quick response. "I was frightened as much," said the judge, with a quiet smile. "McCoy's marital adventures have been numerous. In 1904 he married Edna Fisher, a milliner in Middletown. She promptly divorced him. In 1907 he wedded Charlotte—last name unknown—in St. Louis. She divorced him at Atlantic City. This was his first marriage to Mrs. Julia S. Crossman, who had just divorced a husband.

"She divorced him, remarried him, re-divorced him, remarried him. Then she ran away to Japan with Ralph Thompson, a young broker, and McCoy got a divorce himself. In 1904 he married Edna Fisher, a milliner in Middletown, and in October, 1905, he married the present Mrs. Selby."

CHEMAWA, Or., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—In the first basketball game of the season in the home gymnasium the Chemawa Indian quintet, defeated McMinnville College tonight, the score being 48 to 13. The Indians were outclassed in every department, in passing, tossing and teamwork, while the guards were unable to cope with the effective combination of the Baptist boys. McKee, forward for McMinnville, started with long sensational passes for B. H. H. Gray, guard, Portland, Y. M. C. A., director. TRACK TEAM CALL GETS 15 ASPIRANT

Winter Training Commences on Denny Field at Washington Varsity. UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, Seattle, Jan. 7.—(Special.)—In response to the call of Captain Hugh Bowman, of the University of Washington track team for 1911, more than 15 aspirants appeared on Denny Field, Thursday, for the commencement of the winter training.

The turn out was better than expected, said Captain Bowman today, "and I consider the prospects favorable. I do not consider how many may be in the course, cripples or team success." The first semester examinations coming on may find some not only falling in credits, but a few may leave school. This will be the entire team of last year will be in action, together with undeveloped material. This gives much hope to the Southern team, as last year they were the Coast champions. Men as Wright, Campbell, Gish, Stoll, Ridgeway, Smith and Bowman, in the quarter-mile, who are well known, and in the half-mile, Patton and Eakins; broad jump, Brokaw; high jump, Evans; Hugh Bowman, captain, on polevault, and Brokaw on hurdles, should bring to the Seattle university the 1911 championship.

The season promises to see the university track improved over what it had been during past meets at Seattle. Work will be commenced on it early in the Spring to get it into proper shape. During the winter months about 100 yards of the track will be covered for winter training.

The return of Bralley Gish, Washington's all-star track man back, brings no little pleasure to the students and the fellow trackmen. Gish is probably the best all round athlete in the West, having taken not only firsts and seconds in events, but has received many prominent places on the field. He has been able to mix up with his professors the master of military training and will take up the active work this week.

The schedule which was arranged recently is satisfactory to Washington. They will meet O. A. C. at Seattle, the Triangular and Eugene, the Coast meet at Berkeley, probably Washington State College at Seattle, and the McGill College, of Vancouver, E. C. at Seattle. Relative to other sports much uncertainty arises. Baseball will see many vacant positions not to be filled by old men of last year. Clemenson, Ten Millon and "Jimmy" Clarke will not be able to occupy places on the varsity, because of action taken by the conference at Spokane last week. All have played on in Summer baseball in Eastern and Northwestern leagues. Millon's and Clarke's absence will give Washington a severe blow. Clarke has officiated in the box with great success, while Millon has held down the first sack much to the credit of Washington. What men can take the place of these two men will be a hard problem for the team to solve.

Basketball seems to have its troubles. Captain Williams believes that his team will be much weaker than last year. Lack of credits has thrown many of the best men out of the game. Forwards are greatly lacking, which is of much need to the team. New men are being broken into action not to the satisfaction of Williams. January 17 the team goes east of the mountains, where they meet the schools there.

Williams said today that he expected that he would lose to Whitman and Idaho, but would win from W. S. C. Relative to the Oregon colleges, Williams is uncertain, as the Webfoot colleges always have strong quintets, which will be all probability give the Washington five a rough game.

CO. I BEATS SILVERTON CLUB
Athletic Organization Loses Game by One Point.

SILVERTON, Or., Jan. 7.—(Special.)—One of the most hotly-contested games of basketball ever played in this part of the state was that at Woodburn last night, between the Silvertown Athletic Club and the Company I team, of that city. The Silvertown boys were, of course, handicapped in not being accustomed to playing upon the visitors' floor. However, they held their opponents down to a close score. One minute before the game closed Company I won one point in the lead, but just before the referee called time one of Silvertown's forwards snotted a basket, which put them one to the good. The score was 25 to 24.

THOUGHTS OF FANS ROLE OF CLEANERS

McCredie Will Select Training Camp on Present Trip South. RED SOX WILL BE PLAYED

Interest Centers on Portland Team's Series With Boston Americans. Staff for 1911.

The advent of Joe Tinker, who visited Portland for the first time since he helped win the pennant here in 1901, and the departure of Manager McCredie for San Francisco to attend the league meetings, afforded plenty of chance for the bugs to fan.

Tinker, of course, was the prize attraction, yet the departure of McCredie brings to mind the fact that the ball season is but a few weeks distant, and forcibly impressed upon the fans that it will not be long before the ball tossers are at work on the training fields, and shortly afterwards will commence the struggle which is hoped to bring another flag to Portland.

Before leaving, Manager McCredie announced that he would select his training camp while in the South, and would also arrange for several games with the Boston Americans, which team will do its preliminary work in California this Spring.

Red Sox Games Interest. The games with the Red Sox will be the most interesting of the long series of preliminary contests to be arranged during this week by the Portland manager. This is the first visit of the Boston Americans to the Pacific Coast, and, naturally, their coming is attracting widespread attention in the South. If McCredie is successful in getting three or four games with the Boston "Speed Boys," he will be greatly pleased, for the contests with the big leaguers ought to try the metal of his players.

The Portland manager also expects to arrange for an almost continuous series of games during the training period, for he thinks this is the most practical method of seasoning his team for the commencement of the regular season. While at Santa Maria, McCredie will look over the prospects for practice games, and on the result of his visit depends the decision whether or not the team will make its headquarters there. McCredie was highly pleased with the experience he had at Santa Maria, for that place proved an ideal training camp and the workouts had at that place undoubtedly helped the Beavers greatly.

McCredie is figuring on visiting San Bernardino around Santa Maria, and it may be that the former point will be selected by the Portland manager. This year the Beavers open the season at Los Angeles, and San Bernardino is much closer to the Angel City and also is in closer proximity to larger places than Santa Maria. The Portland manager will also visit the cities of Merced and Modesto on his tour of investigation.

Twenty Players Will Report. Instead of having 25 players at the training camp this year, McCredie says that not more than 20 men will be called upon to report at the camp, and the "failure" of the team to Nick Williams team and afforded a chance with that club.

Manager McCredie is building his pitching staff around Bill Stebbins, the only one of the star trio left to Portland this year, for Gregg and Krapp go to Cleveland. Stebbins' work was simply satisfactory, but other pitchers usually as good as must be secured to hold Portland in an "upper berth." Frank Archer is looked upon as a find by the big leaguers who saw him in action last season, and his attendance at the meeting of the National Association in November, McCredie received several offers for the youngster, but refused to sell.

Archer is a left-hander and said to be a twirler of as much promise as was Gregg when he broke in with Spokane two years ago. If he equals Gregg's record by half, he will prove of able assistance to the Portland team and McCredie will have accomplished something many would have deemed impossible.

Seaton Is Retained. Tom Seaton will again wear a Pacific Coast League uniform, for the "silent one" showed enough class last season to be retained. Seaton is said to possess the widest curve of any pitcher in the league, and last year showed flashes of form which promised to earn him a berth in the big leagues. At times, however, he was inclined to be taken out of the box more frequently than any other Portland pitcher. However, Tom won more games than he lost, and participated in some high-class pitching exhibitions.

Sanchez and Ariett, the two California youngsters McCredie has landed for his Pacific Coast League team, are both highly recommended by the Williams, Claude Berry, Ernest Mohler and other California leaguers who have seen them perform. Ariett has pitched a number of good games against first-class teams and was about to have signed with San Francisco when McCredie beat Danny Long to it. Nick Williams speaks of Sanchez as a bigger star than either Wolters or Arrellinas, both of whom were former teammates of the new Portland pitcher.

McCredie has not yet heard anything from Neal Ball, the new infielder secured from Cleveland, but expects to meet Ball in Los Angeles this week and talk matters over. McCredie expects no trouble in signing up this player, for he is prepared to make a liberal offer.

CATHOLIC CLUB TO SEE BOUTS Young Men Will Hold Boxing, Wrestling, Soccer. The Catholic Young Men's Club will hold another boxing and wrestling smoker on Tuesday night, January 11. One of the features will be a four-round bout between Steven Hanns, a Coburg, Or., giant, who is anxious to show what he can do before the Portland fans, and "Cy" Young, a clever young pupil of Jack Day, the physical director of the Catholic Club, who thinks he has discovered another "hope of the white race."

Another match that will elicit considerable interest in amateur circles is the bout to be staged between Loratti and McDonald, two lads who made quite a favorable impression in the recent smoker.
