about the building they experienced some difficulty in entering, but after a few hours' serious application of pick and shovel they were able to gain an entrance, and then by aid of fires thawed things out a bit. The house is all and more than could be expected, and the guests who will leave Portland today for New York, whence they are booked to sail on the 14th for Europe, Bridge and "90" were the games of the afternoon.

Red carnations and smilax were the effective house decorations which Miss Lucille Smith used Thursday afternoon at a farewell afternoon at cards for Miss Dorothy Newhall and Miss Janet Noble, who will leave Portland today for New York, whence they are booked to sail on the 14th for Europe, Bridge and "90" were the games of the afternoon.

Colonel J. W. Duncan, of the general staff, U. S. A., who has been chosen to fill the place of Brigadier-General Walter Howe, who retires on account of the age limit, was stationed at the Vancouver Barracks when C. E. S. Wood served as a Lieutenant there. Many of Portland's fashionable folk who were then members of the younger set will remember him well. Practically an older, he is the third successive generation to hold a commission in the United States Army. He has participated in three Indian wars, fighting under the late General George Crook. He was also active in the fight of San Juan, and has served twice in the Philippines.

Mr. and Mrs. W. U. Sanderson have arrived from their place near Dundee for a week's visit. They are at the Portland Hotel.

Mrs. Frank Bruhn, of this city, whose miniature of Miss Fannie May appears on today's page, is taking high rank among Portland's portrait painters. Mrs. Bruhn's work is not professional, though exceedingly clever. She has also received high praise for her landscape work, which shows a deep understanding of the true color of colors.

Miss Dorothy Morrison, who is the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Frederick W. Langhitt at their Pacific avenue home in San Francisco, was the honor guest Thursday, January 23, at a luncheon given by Mrs. Eleanor Martin. Miss Morrison also was a guest at the last Greenway assembly, attending under the chaperonage of Mrs. Henry Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Oakley, formerly well-known Portland folk, but for the past few years residents of Spokane, left that city in July for a tour of the world and are at present in Asia. Their Christmas was passed in Colombo, Ceylon.

be attended by her cousin, Miss Margaret Johnson and another cousin of the bride, Whitney Norden, will be best man. Miss Northrup, a dainty blond type of maid, is well liked in this city, where she has passed her life. Last Winter, however, she attended opera and playhouses in New York, as well as traveling extensively throughout the East. Mr. Miller, who has only recently come to Portland, is the son of Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Miller, of Alexander, N. D.

In San Francisco preparations are being made for a Mardi Gras ball, to be given February 28 at the Pavilion, Steiner and Sutter streets. This affair is expected to surpass in brilliancy all similar enterprises of the past and the proceeds will accrue to the Children's Hospital. Boxes to hold six seasons are selling at 50c apiece and admission tickets, including a coupon for supper, are 25c. Handsome prizes will be awarded for the most beautiful

Red carnations and smilax were the effective house decorations which Miss Lucille Smith used Thursday afternoon at a farewell afternoon at cards for Miss Dorothy Newhall and Miss Janet Noble, who will leave Portland today for New York, whence they are booked to sail on the 14th for Europe, Bridge and "90" were the games of the afternoon.
