

KOHL'S CONDITION STILL PRECARIOUS

Surgeons Fail to Find Bullet Though Millionaire Is Improving.

GIRL'S STORY SUPPORTED

Evidence That Detectives Were Employed by Shadow French Maid Is Given by Proprietor of Employment Agency.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—(Special.)—Although C. Frederick Kohl, the millionaire clubman, who was shot Tuesday afternoon by Miss Adele Verge, is still in an extremely dangerous condition, encouraging reports continue to come from the Adler Sanatorium, where he was taken shortly after his shooting. Several X-ray examinations have failed to find the bullet in Kohl's breast.

It was said at the Sanatorium today that although he was still suffering great pain, the patient's condition was better than had been expected. He passed a fairly good night.

Mrs. Frederick Kohl is still watching anxiously by the bedside of her wounded husband. From the time of the shooting until late yesterday afternoon she refused to take a moment's rest so to see any of the friends who have come by the score to inquire about Kohl's condition. She will remain at the sanatorium until her husband is out of danger.

French Girl Near Collapse.

In the meantime, Adele Verge, the French maid who shot Kohl, following the loss of a suit which she had instituted against him and Frank A. Miller, proprietor of the Glenwood Inn at Riverside, is in a state of collapse at the city prison. She has been hysterical in the extreme since the shooting, and last night it was found necessary to give her medicine to quiet her. She is still praying that her victim may recover and declares repeatedly that she did not mean to shoot him and does not know why she did it.

She will probably be formally charged with assault with intent to commit murder. Her assertion that she was being shadowed by detectives received a partial confirmation today by Miss Higgins Kelly, whose conduct in employment agency at 1816 Sutter street, Miss Kelly said that when the girl had first come to her seeking a position she told a story of having been followed by a detective and in proof pointed to a man who was loitering on the other side of the street.

Detective Shadows Girl.

He walked up and down for several hours while Miss Kelly permitted the girl to remain inside, letting her go later by a door in the rear of the building. The next day a man went to Miss Kelly to inquire whether she ever had French maids applying for work. She gave him the name of Adele Verge but withheld that of Miss Verge, and he went away dissatisfied.

Miss Kelly also said that last Sunday a man whom she had never seen before came in and asked similar questions. He went away without asking to make the appointment customary in seeking a girl for employment. Miss Kelly did not mention Miss Verge's name. Because of the woman's extreme nervousness, Miss Kelly was unable to recommend her to her patrons.

SOLDIER SHOT IN FIGHT

Astoria Constable Tries to Stop Row, Draws Revolver.

ASTORIA, Or., June 10.—(Special.)—Private Roy Jones, of the Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Stevens, was shot here this evening by Constable John Sayer and several others. It is believed, not dangerously injured.

Several soldiers were fighting on the street and the constable stepped in to stop them. When the soldiers pulled their pistols and in the mix-up fired, the bullet striking Jones in the right cheek and going through to the back of the neck. The bullet was removed at the hospital.

As there was considerable excitement among the soldiers, Constable Sayer was taken in charge by the police to prevent further trouble.

SAD LIFE STORY IS TOLD

English Workingman Relates Stories of Condition of Poor.

LONDON, June 10.—(Special.)—At the festival of the Claremont Central Mission the other day Mr. Parsons, a workman described some sad scenes witnessed by the Claremont "Crusaders" during their midnight work among the Embankment outcasts during the last five years. As many as 1720 hope- less men and women were counted on one Saturday night.

"We see men walking along asleep," said Mr. Parsons. "I have seen them huddled in the trees. We have seen them asleep on the seats, covered with snow. One man we found asleep on the wrong side of the parapet, on a narrow ledge, and he said he slept there occasionally to get out of the wind."

KING GEORGE APT SCHOLAR

He Learned to Ride Bicycle Without Trouble and Is an Enthusiast.

LONDON, June 10.—(Special.)—King George, who has just presented a perpetual challenge trophy for cyclists, has long been an enthusiastic of the wheel. Like so many other members of his family, he was taught to ride by Mr. Mayes, a famous racing man of the '80s, and proved such an adept pupil that, to quote his instructor's words, "He didn't want any teaching. He jumped on his bicycle, wobbled about a bit, and away he went, riding it—well, not exactly like an old hand, but very well."

Mr. Mayes' next royal pupil was Prince Henry of Battenberg, who had her first lesson on a tricycle in the grounds of Buckingham Palace. Queen Alexandra (then Princess of Wales) had her first lesson at Sandringham on a tricycle which had been built in five days as a Christmas present for her.

attempts to cross a thoroughfare. The popular feeling towards the average chauffeur was significantly illustrated when a man who after having been nearly run down, pulled out a knife and plunged it into the back of the driver of that particular motor car, was greeted with loud and approving cries by the spectators of the incident.

GREAT MEN HAVE TROUBLE

Doubles of Celebrities Frequently Cause Strange Predicaments.

LONDON, June 10.—(Special.)—Many celebrities have had their doubles. Grant Duff records that he found "Professor Schrader" so ludicrously like Huxley that he went up and shook hands with him at Lady Alford's. La-calia had just made a similar mistake. There was a strong physical resemblance between Tennyson and Leslie Stephen, in spite of a disparity in years; and between Jules Ferry and Whiteley, the Liberal Provider.

Edwin Yates was so like the late Shah of Persia that his photographs were sold in Brussels. The Shah's cousin Naar-ed-Din visited that city. Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema used to have a double in George Du Maurier. So closely did they resemble each other that a lady at dinner one addressed Du Maurier as "Sir Alma," and assured him that he was "really not a bit like that Mr. Du Maurier, as people tried to make out."

BROTHER OF HEIRESS WEDS

Chum of Missing Dorothy Arnold Married in New York.

NEW YORK, June 10.—(Special.)—D. Hinckley Arnold, brother of Dorothy Arnold, whose strange disappearance on December 12 last still remains a mystery, this afternoon married Mildred Culver, a chum of the missing girl. Miss Culver is the daughter of Mrs. Isabel Clark Culver, and lives with her mother at 843 Park avenue.

She was an intimate friend of Miss Arnold, and during the search for her took an active part in it, going to Philadelphia several times when clues to the missing girl led there. Because the members of the Arnold family believe their daughter dead, and consequently are in mourning for her, the wedding was free from all ostentatious other than a lady at dinner one addressed Du Maurier as "Sir Alma," and assured him that he was "really not a bit like that Mr. Du Maurier, as people tried to make out."

Charm and Elegance of True Beauty

(Stillwell in Fashion.)

"Every woman delights in a velvety skin and fine complexion, but few realize the harm done to the skin's delicate surface by smothering it with powders or cosmetics," writes Mme. Stillwell in Fashion.

"A mayatone lotion gives grand results and is quickly prepared by dissolving a small original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch-hazel. Massage this freely into the skin every day and you will be surprised how soon it is cleared and beautified, while the complexion takes on the charm and elegance of true beauty.

"Nothing equals mayatone to protect the skin from changeable weather, tan or freckles. It is easier to use and more satisfactory than powder, is greaseless and will not grow hairs."
