The New Multnomah Hotel

Built by the R. R. Thompson Estate Company

Now that Portland has really become a convention city, as is evidenced by a telegraphic request from prominent Elks at Atlantic City to Manager Bowers, of the new Multnomah Hotel, asking for the reservation of one hundred and fifty rooms in the Multnomah Hotel for the session to be held in 1912, it is well for the people of Portland to realize that in the Multnomah Hotel they are going to have the greatest of accommodations.

The building covers an entire block 200 feet square; and is similar in location to that of the Palace Hotel in San Francisco. It has a frontage on Third street, is convenient to banks, railroad ticket offices, railroad stations, and in the business portion of the city; has an entrance on Third street similar to that of the Palace Hotel on Market street; a principal entrance on Pine street for the hotel busses and automobiles. free of carlines, similar to that of the Palace Hotel on new Montgomery street; and also an entrance on Fourth street, similar to that of the Palace Hotel on Stevenson street. In addition to this the Multnomah Hotel will have an entrance on Ankeny and Ash streets for the baggage and sample trunks, clear of hotel lobby. The lobby, arranged somewhat like the lobby in the Brown Palace in Denver and the St. Francis in San Francisco, has an area of 10,400 square feet, over which a large mezzanine floor overlooks the lobby. In the northwest corner of the second floor there is an immense banquet hall without a column in it, connecting through ante-rooms and committee rooms to a convention or assembly hall, in the northeast corner, being the same size as the banquet hall, and also without a column in the room, the upper floors being carried over on steel trusses as heavy as an ordinary railroad bridge truss.

The Multnomah Hotel will contain 525 rooms, with about 300 baths, and one whole floor being devoted to the best-arranged sample rooms on this Coast. The building is entirely fireproof, and in addition to the restaurant on the main floor there is provided a handsome grill in the basement larger in area and far greater in height than the well-known Mission Grill in the Hotel Alexandria of Los Angeles.

The Leonard Construction Company, of Chicago, contractors, promise the completion of the building by the first of December. When this building is finished, streets renewed and lighted, house furnished and lighted, and placed under the splendid management of Mr. Bowers, the widely-known hotelman of this city, and Mr. Julian Brownell, coming from the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, as assistant manager. the people of Portland will be proud to welcome, not only delegates of the Elks' convention, but all other conventions coming to our city.

This block has been owned by the R. R. Thompson Estate Company for many years, and they own a number of other properties in the same vicinity, which the writer has had improved during the past two years.

The Oregonian has used an argumant which, to say the least, is open to criticism. There are thousands of voters in the United States who, like Mr. Crim, be-lieve that the present policy of the prohibitionist in fighting intoxicants is like trying to kill a dog by cutting off the tip of his tail. As long as intoxicating liquors are manufactured they will be sold. The man who raises hops and shouts for prohibition is a hypecrite; but there are other uses for wheat, corn, rye, sugar cane and potatoes than the manufacture of hitoxicants. It requires very fertile soil to raise hops, and the hopgrowers would suffer no finan-cial loss were they to turn their fields into potato or grain fields; in fact take it year in and year out, potatoes are a better money producer than hops. As for the surplus products now used by brewers and distillers, there are millions of half-fed women and chil-dren throughout our land who would use up this surplus and whose hus-hands and fathers could and would buy the comforts of life for their fam-lies it they could not spend the money for strong drink. The street loafer, too, would be eliminated, as strong drink is the greatest producer of loaf-ers known to man. We would lose the wealthy brewers and distillers, but they might turn their talents into more useful chan-nels, were their present vocation closed to them. At any rate, the price we pay in the lives of the little ones is too great for the benefit we derive from this class. The slogan of the Endeavorers, "A stoonless nation in 1920," means noth-

when it closed, and for some time be-fore that, and also that the officers of the bank knew it at all times. It is alleged that numerous fraudulent en-tries were made to deceive the State Bank Examiner, and that they carried two certificates of deposit for $50,000 each, making $100,000, to make it ap-pear that there was more each than ac-fuely was in the bank.
